To see that his guests enjoyed the best of everything, H. A. Willard, founder of the famous hotel, used to steal out to market at 3 o'clock in the morning before any of his rivals were awake.

That every guest "might have the best," the Willard management has gone out of its way for 87 years to keep ahead in guest service and improved facilities. Besides the traditional regard for its long leadership in American affairs, the Willard’s modern accommodations are coveted by discriminating seekers of comfort and convenience at the Capital.

Between Conventions, the D. A. R. visitor to Washington finds a sentimental consideration for her welfare while a guest at the Willard.

—that is the "irrefutable answer" to the woman planning her Spring clothes. Everything that prevents a sleek, firm foundation for one's clothes must be corrected—and, quoting Vogue, "everything conspires to keep both beholder and wearer unconscious of the corset." Such subtle garments are these—from our important collections. They provide the smart definition to the waistline—define the bust and slim down the figure—yet permit one exquisite freedom of action.

Heraldic Reproductions

Closely allied with the fascinating study of genealogy is the science of armorial bearings.

The use of coats of arms by the present generation aids in retaining the identity of the family and definitely links it with distinguished ancestry.

We maintain a completely equipped department for the reproduction of heraldic devices and invite correspondence from the members of the N.S.D.A.R. for information and prices.

ARMS OF THE WASHINGTON FAMILY

Paintings of coats of arms in proper colors, executed by hand with the highest degree of artistry.

Arms woven in tapestry or tooled in leather.

Engraved dies for embossing invitations, letter and note papers, place cards, tally cards.

Reproductions on book labels and playing cards.

Seal rings of gold, platinum, semi-precious and precious stones engraved with crest or full arms.

Family silver engraved with crest or full coat of arms.

The East Entrance to Memorial Continental Hall
Welcome to Washington and to the forty-third Continental Congress. May it prove for you at once a joy—a pulsating force and an unforgettable memory. We gather to renew our allegiance and loyalty to the aims, objects and ideals of our Society, and to listen to reports of work well done.

The Program has been planned with vision, care and precision. Each session has its particular attraction and is worth while. No one can afford to miss any part of the proceedings. Committee work reported is worthy of careful attention, not only because of actual accomplishments but as a guide and encouragement for continued efforts.

Flying made it possible for me to deliver a message to many state conferences this spring, but as a matter of record and for those who could not hear it, the following brief extracts will strengthen statements expressed therein.

This Society stands, without equivocation, for adequate national defense. What this means requires no definition.

Many outside of our ranks believe our National Defense Committee interprets this only in the terms of a large army and navy. The truth is, we wish no more than adequate protection for America on land, sea and air. Therefore, we advocate the military teaching of such groups as the Reserve Officers Training Corps, the Citizens Military Training Camps, Girl and Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs, the Civilian Conservation Corporation.
Camps, and any and all groups of like nature which, through a disciplinary teaching, will make better men and women of the youth of our land, and trained, disciplined adults for the betterment of the country. Training to obedience means the consciousness of service. Service means unselfishness and respect for duty. A disciplined individual will have a well ordered mind.

We stand for adequate preparedness, not for aggression. We want peace. We are not militaristic. But we believe the United States should always be able to protect herself against external and internal enemies. We demand adequate defense to maintain a righteous peace. We believe in the disciplinary teachings which Washington advocated.

Any study of the subject of common defense, national security against crime, and public safety, to be comprehensive and intelligent, must embrace an educational program. In our Society, this is naturally patriotic. If organizations are to be effective when they pronounce themselves either for or against certain angles of such subjects, the program of instruction should be studied throughout the membership by educational methods.

The National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, through Resolutions adopted by its Continental Congresses, is committed to the support of the National Defense Act of 1920, which seeks to provide for National Security. Likewise, the Society is committed to the provisions of the London Naval Treaty. Your President General stands officially and personally committed to these measures; and yields place to none in loyalty to the Society and in love of country.

The strength of our Society lies in the fact that we are non-partisan and non-political. Any deviation from this position weakens our force, changes our character and is against the tenets of our procedure. Absolute adherence to them is at once the defense of our Society as a national group and our protection from exploitation. As strongly as we advocate support of and adherence to the Constitution of the United States, just so strongly should we as a Society operate under our Constitution and By-laws; the former our forefathers fought for, the latter our founders adopted. Only by following this procedure can we keep our Society true to its founders and its own ideals.

The many resolutions which have been passed over a period of years, and during various administrations, testify to the fact that it has been deemed necessary to reiterate our stand against affiliation. The following repetition of these resolutions will present them in a clear, concise manner:

"May 5, 1894.—Inasmuch as the objects of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution are fully defined in Article II of the Constitution, Resolved, that those objects be strictly adhered to, and that neither the Society nor any part thereof shall identify itself in an official capacity with other Societies having dissimilar objects. (Vol. IV, P. 799)." The American Monthly Magazine, (now known as Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine.)

National Board of Management, June 5, 1912:

"After discussion in regard to right of chapters to cooperate with other organizations—Moved, That Mrs. Mussey be requested to frame a uniform reply to be sent to all Chapter Regents."

Mrs. Mussey's Opinion Regarding Affiliation:

"To Cooperate is to work to or for an end.
To Affiliate is to attach to, or unite with a Society or Body.
The objects of the N. S. D. A. R. as set out in the Chapter and Article II of the Constitution can best be obtained by an active cooperation with other organizations having for their objects either national or local betterment on Civic or Patriotic lines. One of our objects is 'Encouragement of historical research,' another is 'Promotion of celebrations of all patriotic anniversaries, and still another is 'To aid in securing for mankind all the blessings of liberty.'
There is no provision whatever in our Constitution for anything of this kind.
The Federation of Women's Clubs does provide for affiliation. We do not, and cannot, therefore, legally do so.'"

This opinion was also presented to the Congress of 1913 (22nd) to be incorporated in the Proceedings.

Resolution Adopted by National Board of Management, June 22, 1927.

Whereas, Our Society is being constantly invited to join with other organizations in various projects necessitating the expenditure or collection of funds; and

Whereas, The By-laws of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, make no provision for affiliation where financial cooperation is involved; and

Whereas, A legal opinion to this effect has been rendered; therefore be it

Resolved, That this fact be brought to the attention of our Chapters; and be it further

Resolved, That Chapters be reminded that the authorized activities of our own Society already cover so large an area of service that they be urged to realize the necessity of concentrating their talents and finances upon the work of our Committees already established.

Resolution Adopted by the Forty-second Continental Congress, N. S. D. A. R., April 17-21, 1933.

Whereas, The National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, is being constantly requested to join or affiliate with other organizations in various projects necessitating the expenditure or collection of dues; and

Whereas, The By-laws of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, make no provision for affiliation where financial obligations are involved; and

Whereas, Dating from May 5, 1894, various resolutions have been adopted to the effect that we adhere strictly to the objects as defined in Article II of our Constitution and that neither the Society nor any part thereof shall identify itself in any official capacity with other organizations; and

Whereas, A legal opinion was sought and given stating that we cannot legally affiliate with other organizations; be it

Resolved, That the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, assembled in the Forty-second Continental Congress, hereby reaffirms these resolutions, and expressly states that it cannot affiliate in any way with other organizations or group of organizations, but that it may cooperate, when it seems advisable, with any organization having objects kindred with its own.

All officers and members of the Society are committed to all the resolutions of the Congresses. To these, members will adhere with the same loyalty which has supported it, that we may reconvene and enjoy, as delegates and alternates, the 43rd Continental Congress.
Advance News of Our 43d Continental Congress

LUCY GALT HANGER
Chairman, Program Committee

THE 43d Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C., Monday, April 16th, to Friday, April 20th, inclusive.

In preparing the program for our Congress the Committee has carefully planned and consulted with our President General, Mrs. Magna, as well as with the State Regents at their meeting here in February. The result has been the introduction of a few innovations which we trust will not only facilitate the carrying out of the work of the delegated body, but give additional pleasure to everyone attending the sessions.

At this early date all names of our speakers cannot be announced, but we can say they will be prominent in official life, and our hope is great that the President of the United States will find time amidst his arduous duties to honor us by attending a session. Mrs. Roosevelt has graciously promised to address us on Friday morning.

While the Congress does not open until Monday morning, numerous events will claim the interest and attention of those who come a few days in advance.

On Friday, April 13th, the National Officers Club will hold its annual meeting in the Assembly Room of the Administration Building. A luncheon will follow the session. Because of the absence, due to illness, of the President of the Club, the banquet will be omitted this year.

The regular meeting of the National Board of Management will take place in the Board Room of Memorial Continental Hall, Saturday, April 14th, at 9:30 A. M.

Sunday, April 15th, at 2:00 o'clock, the Memorial Service conducted by our Chaplain General will be held in the auditorium of Memorial Continental Hall. Music will be provided by a chorus composed of members of the clerical staff. Their work as D. A. R. clerks has brought them in intimate touch with those whose memory we honor, and it seems eminently fitting that these young women should share in this final tribute to our revered dead. Immediately following this Memorial Service tributes will be paid at the N. S., D. A. R. Memorial, where the President General will lay a wreath.

The Bishop of Washington has invited all D. A. R. to attend the Evensong service in the great choir of the Washington Cathedral at 4 P. M.

Sunday evening, April 15th, at 8:30 o’clock, the Constitution Hall Committee will hold its meeting in the President General’s reception room in Constitution Hall.

A pleasing feature before the Monday morning session, April 16th, will be a concert by the United States Marine Band Orchestra. It, therefore, behooves delegates and alternates to come early if they wish to enjoy the music of this famous group of musicians. Monday and Thursday evenings two well-known concert singers will be heard. The three celebrated United States service bands—Army, Navy and Marine—will not only be in attendance as usual but will provide soloists from among their musicians for all other sessions. This arrangement we feel will prove not only an entertaining innovation but a fitting recognition of the services of these bands.

The program for Monday morning’s opening session will follow the same general plan of previous years, ending with an address to the delegates by our President General. In the afternoon the Honorary Presidents General will bring greetings; also, the National Officers will report to the Congress. The evening session will be “Army and Navy night.”

For Tuesday morning we have grouped the reports which specially concern our headquarters in Washington—Buildings and Grounds Committee, Constitution Hall Memory Book, Constitution Hall Committee, and a talk by our Treasurer General on the financial status of Constitution Hall. These reports will be followed by gifts and contributions to Constitution Hall. The afternoon from 12:30 until 3:00 o’clock has been reserved for State and National Committee meetings. Our annual pilgrimage will start at 3:00 o’clock from Constitution Hall to Arlington National Cemetery, where the President General will lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier; thence on to Mount Vernon to honor the memory of George and Martha Washington.

Always one of the most delightful and colorful events of our Congresses is the annual reception given by our President General for the delegates and members. This reception will be held Tuesday night. Mrs. Magna, assisted by her National Officers, will welcome her guests in the auditorium of Constitution Hall, while the State Regents will greet the guests in the spacious south corridor. An unusual feature of the reception will be music by two sections of the United States Army Band: one in the auditorium, for the President General’s reception, and the other in the corridor, for the State Regents’. They will play alternately, thus providing uninterrupted music for the entire evening.

The dance given for the Pages of the Congress by the President General and the National Board of Management will be held that same evening at the Mayflower Hotel.

On Wednesday, April 18th, National Committee reports will continue, National Defense and Ellis Island being scheduled for the afternoon. In planning the program for that evening we have endeavored to conform to the wishes of the State Regents, for this is, indeed, the State Regents’ own night. The session will convene at 7 o’clock. They will meet with the President General in the President General’s reception room at 6:45 o’clock, where the line will be formed for their entrance to the platform. The State Regents’ reports, as usual, will be divided into three groups. The interim between the first and second groups will permit the pleasure of a solo by a musician from the United States Navy Band. During the interim between the second and third groups we will have assemblage singing. These reports will be followed by nominations for the office of the Report General to the Smithsonian Institution and the Vice Presidents General.

Important National Committee reports will again be heard at the morning and afternoon sessions on Thursday. The polls will open at 8:00 o'clock, Thursday morning, and remain open until Congress votes the closing hour. Registration and voting will be in Memorial Continental Hall. The Report of the Chairman of Tellers will be given Thursday evening. Thursday afternoon very special programs are in preparation by the Americanization, Approved Schools and the Sons and Daughters of the U. S. A. Committees.

Friday morning the final report of the Resolutions Committee, followed by Mrs. Roosevelt's address, will be the order of the day. Friday afternoon the confirmation and installation of the newly-elected officers and State Regents will be followed by adjournment.

While no definite announcement is possible at this time, it is hoped that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will receive the delegates at the White House.

Friday evening the annual banquet at the Mayflower Hotel will round out what promises to be a very enjoyable and a very important annual Congress.

D.A.R. Member Honored by President Roosevelt

A member of Western Reserve Chapter of Cleveland, Ohio, Judge Florence Ellinwood Allen, now a resident of Columbus, Ohio, is the first woman to be appointed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth District. She is the fifth to be designated by President Roosevelt to high positions never before filled by members of her sex.

Judge Allen was admitted to the D. A. R. on March 1, 1911. At that time she resided in Salt Lake City, Utah, the place of her birth. She is the daughter of Clarence E. and Corine Marie Tuckerman Allen. Her grandparents were Jacob Tuckerman and his wife, Elizabeth Ellinwood; great-grandparents, Isaac Tuckerman and his wife, Esther Elizabeth Colgrove; great-great-grandparents, Stephen Colgrove and his wife, Elizabeth Bartelot. Her great-great-great-grandfather, Benjamin Colgrove, served gallantly in the American Revolution from Stonington, Conn.

Judge Allen attended the New Lyme Institute, Ashtabula County, Ohio, in 1895-97; Salt Lake College, 1897-99; received her "A.B." from Western Reserve University in 1904; her "A.M." from the Law Department, University of Chicago, 1909-1910; and her "LL.B." New York University, 1913.

She began the practice of law at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1914, and has advanced rapidly in her chosen profession: Assistant county prosecutor, Cuyahoga County, Ohio, 1919-20; elected Judge of Court of Common Pleas, Cuyahoga County, term, 1921-26; elected Judge, Supreme Court of Ohio, two terms, 1921-33.

Judge Allen played an active part in securing suffrage for women and belongs to numerous well-known clubs.

EDITH SCOTT MAGNA
President General, N. S., D. A. R.

Fate has decreed that I am the first President General to use flying as a method of transportation to facilitate the demands of my office and to save time. I have flown so much during the past two years that I take it as a matter of course — and have long, since ceased to treat it as an adventure, or as a courageous feat.

One day I read an article in an air magazine entitled “Flying Becomes Nonchalant” — but it had become just that to me before I saw that caption. My friends and secretaries still scan the headlines for crashes after they know I have taken off for some point — as for myself, I have no fear and never consider it. I use airplanes because they are fast, clean, and as safe as any mode of transportation when handled properly, under expert, intelligent, self-controlled operators.

I have been up hundreds of hours — have assisted at controls, have flown over nearly all the states and probably can write “all” by the time Continental Congress convenes this April. I like it, enjoy it and use planes whenever and wherever I can.

Last fall I would have had to disappoint two State Conferences had I not been able to hire a licensed pilot and a plane to take me from point to point.

I have absolute faith in the companies operating regular lines, for the planes receive constant overhauling and testing. I also have faith in the pilots, who have to undergo a physical and mental examination at regular intervals. If they fail on any requirement, they cannot fly, much less take up passengers. This information was given me by a physician for one of the lines.

Accidents do happen, but this is true of any method of transportation, and, excluding stunt flying, the average for passenger planes is very small.

It is interesting, too, to try to regulate one’s personal baggage to the minimum of thirty pounds. Lace or
THE PRESIDENT GENERAL, IN BORROWED FLYING TOGS, JUST BEFORE THE TAKE-OFF FROM DEVILS LAKE, NORTH DAKOTA, IN A CHARTERED OPEN PLANE PILOTED BY DANIEL SCHOLTZ, TO WATERTOWN, SOUTH DAKOTA, TO ATTEND THEIR STATE CONFERENCE.

LANDING AT THE AIRPORT IN WATERTOWN TO ATTEND THE SOUTH DAKOTA STATE CONFERENCE.
net dresses help to solve this problem and, like every other contingency in life, it can be met if the desire is strong enough.

Audiences like to hear about flying; and, while I have had joyous, happy, unusual, and exciting experiences, seen gorgeous settings, learned untold geography, etc., the happenings have been constructive and educational rather than thrilling, and never terrifying.

I have had infinitely more real thrills on a roller coaster than in any plane. Perhaps it's Lady Luck—but so far this is true. I have traveled in nearly every make of plane. All my comments are confined to generalities.

The fastest bird cannot compete with the speed of our everyday transportation. The airliners, carrying passengers, mail, and express, hit 180 miles an hour, 3 miles a minute, but without any annoying sensations to the travelers.

A few facts quoted directly from the aircraft yearbook for 1934, published by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Incorporated, may be of interest and, in the future, a matter of history:

"The air lines complete more than 95 per cent of their scheduled mileage annually.

"Because of improved motor exhausts, geared engines, which reduce propeller noise, and scientific insulation of the airplane cabins, our modern airliners have reduced noise to a minimum.

"There are 600 planes in service on air lines in the United States and operating under the American flag to other countries—one air liner for every 9 Pullman cars.

"An average of 1,550 men, women, and children, three-fourths of a million letters, and 4,700 pounds of express were flown over our air lines every 24 hours during the first 10 months of 1933.

"More than 40 per cent of the flying is done at night."

In 1926, 5,782 passengers were carried and this has grown to 550,000 in 1933—less than ten years. Every detail is interesting.

Such scenery!—unbelievable cloud effects—indescribable dawns—breath-taking sunsets—fires—floods—colors in the autumn the envy of any magic carpet of Arabian Nights' fame. The wonders of the earth and sky and the waters below and the heavens above are memories I shall never forget. It led me to write in one of my messages, "God-given nature is as bountiful as ever"; trivial personal things seem as nothing after witnessing such glories.

From my own notes and quoting from an interview with one in authority, I give here some random observations which will interest my readers:

One of the most potent signs indicating that air transportation has passed through its so-called experimental stage and has become a permanent and everyday form of transportation is the widespread custom of having women stewardesses as an integral part of the crews of the transport planes.

There are nearly 150 women in the country today who travel constantly on the various air lines for the purpose of making the passenger's trip more pleasant. These girls serve the meals on the plane, point out and explain interesting views from the plane enroute, and answer the many questions which occur to the air traveler.

The requirements for the stewardesses are strict. The girls must be trained nurses, not because their work demands such training, but because of their being accustomed to rigid disci-
Discipline on board a plane must be maintained with military precision, with the pilot in complete command and the co-pilot and stewardess receiving their instructions from him. The girls must not weigh more than 118 pounds, and must not be more than 5 feet 4 inches in height.

The stewardesses fly approximately 5,000 miles per week, or, allowing 50 weeks, 250,000 miles per year. This is equivalent to more than eight trips around the equator each year.

The foods that have been found best for the air traveler include sliced chicken, chicken salad, imported and domestic cheeses, baked ham, tongue, veal, and turkey. Pastries are brought, fresh from the bakery, just a few minutes before the plane is scheduled to arrive at the airport and are served a few minutes later, after the plane is in the air again. Bouillon cubes are taboo; but real bouillon is served, and tomato juice and fruit juices, as well as coffee and tea.

Sandwiches are of uniform size throughout the system. The bread is sliced to specified thickness and the completed sandwich must be 4 inches square.

A survey, made during the last summer, showed that women averaged about 30 per cent of the total passenger lists. This figure is increasing every year. Mothers find it much more convenient and successful to carry very young babies by air on long trips. The babies enjoy every minute of the trip and the mother is greatly pleased to have her journey completed in less than one-third of the usual time.

Many adventures have been humorous, as the illustrations of this article will testify, when I had to fly in an open plane in borrowed finery. The architect of the suit evidently planned it for someone about 250 pounds. Though my dignity suffered considerably, my amusement, when met by a committee of much civic importance, was enlivened to meet the occasion.

Two statements, one pertinent to the Army and one to the Navy, are of importance:

"An efficient airways system will, in time of an emergency, permit the quick transfer of tactical units from various parts of the United States to air defense frontier strategic points, thus greatly increasing the potential strength of these units."
"Young as it is, air transport, better than all the surface facilities, could meet the two main requirements for war-time transportation—speed and mobility."—Maj. Gen. B. D. Foulois, Chief of the Air Corps, U. S. Army, December 11, 1933.

"The transport airplane manufacturing plants are practically dependent upon the air lines to supply a market for cargo and passenger planes and support the constant engineering research and development. Thus the air lines help maintain an important branch of the aircraft industry which would be called upon for the greatest possible number of planes in the event of war, and so are potential reserves for the national defense. If war were declared, the contract air-mail lines would provide the fast, reliable transport service needed from the first day of the emergency, for mobilization and thereafter for movement of troops and indispensable military (naval) supplies."—Rear Admiral E. J. King, Chief of Bureau of Aeronautics, U. S. Navy, December 1, 1933.

My advice to anyone who wishes to take a flight is not to "go up" just for fun. In this event the passenger is self-conscious and self-analytical. Decide on a trip, have a definite mission to a definite place, take a plane and fly there.

Be awake to the present, make history for the future, fly! and may you enjoy Happy Landings!

I am confident that, just as the automobile has brought interstate relations closer, so the airplane will develop an interstate consciousness that will bring a deeper meaning to the term United States of America.
To Make It a Crime

LAMAR JEFFERS
United States Representative from Alabama

THERE has long been an urgent need for some governmental agency to keep in constant contact with the activities of communist groups in our country, composed largely of aliens who openly advocate the overthrow of our democratic form of government by force and violence. When Congress undertook its investigation, it was generally understood that our government already had such authority as might be necessary to protect itself against any such alien conspiracies and to keep itself fully informed of the activities of those who might be guilty of treasonable action against our institutions. When it was learned that no agency of the government had the funds or the authority to act and after a committee had made extensive investigations into such activities, it became clear to those familiar with these conditions that some remedial legislation along this line was absolutely essential.

I therefore introduced a bill in the 71st Congress which would have provided that any person guilty of advocating or promoting the overthrow of the government by force and violence would be guilty of a crime, and providing for fine and imprisonment for any one so convicted. Another bill, which might be properly called a companion bill, introduced by my colleague, Representative Martin Dies of Texas, would provide for the deportation and exclusion of alien communists. My bill would automatically give much-needed authority to the Department of Justice to check up carefully on the activities of all subversive groups and to be prepared in case of emergency to take the necessary steps for the protection of our institutions and our government. In the meantime it would give these officials the opportunity to prevent the continued spread of communism and communist propaganda in the United States by the apprehension and conviction of any communist leaders who might be carrying on treasonable activities against the government.

The bill failed of enactment in both the 71st and the 72d Congresses, although supported by practically all patriotic organizations. I reintroduced it in the 73d Congress (H. R. 1611), and it is now pending before the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives. If it is to receive favorable action there, it will be necessary for all interested organizations to actively support it and to make requests of the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, as well as their own Representatives and Senators, that they cooperate in securing favorable action before the adjournment of this Congress.

Since the original introduction of this bill, the activities of the communists have rapidly increased in practically all sections of our country, and the Daily Worker is constantly carrying on a vicious and concerted campaign, as the official organ of the Communist Party of the United States, to organize all its affiliated groups in a ruthless campaign against the governmental policies which have been developed over the past year to meet the extreme emergency with which we have been faced. Each issue of the Daily Worker carries scurrilous and inflammatory attacks against the N. R. A. and practically every agency of the administration, as well as against the President of the United States. Its policy is to besmirch all attempts of the administration to afford relief to our people, to falsely twist the reports of all administrative agencies created to relieve distress, and to picture all efforts of our governmental authorities, elected by the people of this country, as corrupt and dishonest, while deluding its readers with the glories of Soviet Russia. It is outspoken in its advocacy of the overthrow of our system of government and the establishment of a Soviet America, with headquarters at Moscow.

The Daily Worker upholds the acts as a mouthpiece for hundreds of organizations—all communist or communist controlled—spread throughout our land and incites the members of these various groups to more militant and violent activities to create strikes against self-created or imaginary wrongs, haranguing them to actual riots and sabotage. They claim this is excellent training for the bloody revolution which they are bound to bring about for the purpose of overthrowing our present democratic government and substituting a Soviet Republic.

The Daily Worker is not the only communist publication carrying regularly pictures of the revolutionary movement. There are literally dozens of them—all working toward revolution and the overthrow of the government by force and violence. Some of these are recognized as official organs of the Communist Party, or one of its affiliated groups, while others have designated groups to serve with material for inciting their adherents to violence. The Upsurge, organ of the Anti-Imperialist League, which has its headquarters in New York City, aids the communist-led and instigated strikes, riots, and sabotaging activities of their affiliated groups in Central and South America and in Cuba, inciting the peoples of these countries to hatred of the United States and our citizens, as well as of their own governmental authorities. Still others concentrate on flooding our schools, colleges, churches, women’s clubs, and other American groups with communist propaganda; practically every walk of our American life being in some manner tainted with such propaganda and responding strangely to its influence.

Recent revolutionary activities of the Communists and their Socialist allies in Cuba, France, Austria, and Germany show clearly the destruction and bloodshed that these groups, organized under the direction of the Third International in these various countries, as in all the world, can cause by revolutionary uprising against the constituted authorities, society in general and the middle classes, as well as the working people whom they claim to champion. Their greatest point of agitation is to try to prejudice class against class; they constantly stress what they call “class consciousness,” and harangue the working classes into revolt, aiming to use them as tools to carry on their revolutionary activities, while at the same time taking advantage of other groups in these countries that may have some real or imaginary grievance or susceptibility. The same elements are organized in the United States, and with the growing unrest in the world, it is becoming more and more essential that our government be prepared to protect itself against this ever-increasing cancerous growth. That all these movements are co-related is evidenced by the fact that simultaneously with the outbreaks in Europe, the communists of America held mass meetings and street demonstrations in New York, Washington and other cities throughout the United States, expressing their sympathy with the revolutionary outbreaks in France, Austria and Germany. The Daily Worker has even raised funds in the United States to send to Germany, France, Cuba and Austria to help finance the Communist Parties in those nations in their efforts to overthrow the governments of those countries. They also sent some of their most prominent leaders into Cuba, under the auspices of the Anti-Imperialist League, to try to organize a communist revolution there of such proportions as to seize the then disorganized government and to attempt to establish a Cuban Soviet. James Ford, the negro who was the Vice-Presidential candidate of the Communist Party in 1932, and officials of other communist groups in the United States were of this party. From these facts, it would appear that the communists in this country have been permitted to go along with a freer hand than in any other nation in the world outside of Soviet Russia itself. They are not content to carry on their activities against our government and institutions, but send support from their headquarters in the United States to aid communist organizations in other nations.

The Daily Worker insists, both through its editorial columns and its news items, that the Communist Party of the United States is a section of the Communist International and that there is no intention that it will now, or in the future, cease receiving its instructions from Moscow as heretofore. Its heading carried daily the legend “Section of the Communist International,” and the Communist International’s resolutions are instructions to the Communist Parties throughout the world and are faithfully reproduced as issued.

Under these circumstances, and I have touched only the high points and given only a brief outline of these communist activities, I believe it will be evident to any one who will take the trouble to give serious study to this question, that there is greater need now than ever for this proposed legislation. I believe it is our duty, under the conditions known to exist today, to work unceasingly to insure all necessary authority to our government through its Department of Justice, to enable it to get the exact facts and accurate information regarding these activities within the United States. Our government will then be prepared to counteract plots to incite strikes, riots, sabotage and treason which, under communist leadership, further the doctrines of bloody revolution and their plan for the overthrow and destruction of our government by force or violence.

Editor’s Note: This article was written by Representative Jeffers at the request of Mrs. William A. Becker, National Chairman, National Defense Through Patriotic Education Committee. Continental Congresses have repeatedly endorsed this bill “to make it a crime to advocate or promote the overthrow or the destruction of the Government of the United States by force or violence.”
The Settlers of Georgia

Virginia Nicholson
State Historian

The two hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Colony of Georgia has just ended. This Bi-centennial celebration began on Georgia Day, Sunday, February 12, 1933, with services in the churches throughout the state, and closed on Thanksgiving Day, November 30, 1933, with thanksgiving for the glorious realization of Oglethorpe’s great dream.

It has been appropriate and fitting for Georgia to observe the anniversary of this important historic event, both for educational and patriotic reasons. A celebration inspires a sympathetic understanding in social and in business activities, and unites the various groups of people in a common bond of brotherhood; and long after it is over the results it has produced will be felt from the “Hills of Habersham” to the “Marshes of Glynn.” And future generations will take greater interest and additional pride in the deeds of courage of their heroic forefathers.

The first people who came to Georgia for the purpose of establishing a new home were the English. Prompted by a benevolent desire to help those who had been unjustly thrown into prison because of adverse fortune and debts unpaid, General James Edward Oglethorpe, a member of Parliament, interested other English noblemen in forming a corporation to petition the King of England for a grant of land in “His Majesty’s Province of America.”

Parliament, recognizing the advantage of expanding English trade and of establishing another colony in the new world to be a “buffer colony” for the protection of South Carolina and the provinces farther north against England’s old rivals, the Spanish and the French, granted the Charter.

The power of government was given to twenty-one Englishmen for a period of twenty-one years. The land granted comprised the territory between the Savannah and Altamaha Rivers, from the Atlantic coast to the head waters of these streams, and extended westward to the “South Sea,” or Pacific Ocean.

This territory was not granted outright, but was given to a settler for life, and at his death to be inherited by his son. Each family received fifty acres, with the understanding that twenty shillings would be paid annually to the King after a period of ten years. The Charter received the great seal of England June 9, 1732. The province was given the name “Georgia,” in honor of King George II.

On one side of the seal of the Trustees was the motto: “Non sibi sed aliis,” which means “Not for ourselves but for others.” On the reverse side was the Latin inscription, “Colonia Georgia aug.,” meaning “May the Georgia Colony flourish.”

Most prominent of the Board of Trustees of the colony was Oglethorpe—soldier, statesman and philanthropist. His honest dealings with the In-Oglethorpe, his experience as a soldier, and his untiring devotion to the unselfish cause he sponsored, gave to the colony the birth and growth which caused the settlement to develop into the great state of Georgia.

Facing a brighter future with the prospect of a permanent home for themselves and their children in "the promised land," thirty-five families numbering in all about one hundred and thirty persons, accompanied by Oglethorpe, sailed from Gravesend on board the ship Anne, Captain John Thomas, Master, on November 17, 1732. Arriving at Charleston January 13, 1733, they were warmly greeted by the Governor of Carolina. Sending the settlers on to Beaufort-town to await his return, Oglethorpe, accompanied by William Bull, set out in a canoe to find a desirable site to establish his colony. Eighteen miles from the mouth of the Savannah River they arrived at a high bluff occupied by the Yamacraw Indians, an outlawed tribe of the Creeks, who were governed by an old chief, Tomo-chi-chi. Through a half-breed Indian interpreter, Mary Musgrove, Oglethorpe succeeded in making a treaty with Tomo-chi-chi. Oglethorpe conducted his little band of settlers to the bluff on February 12, 1733. They were quartered in four large tents on the edge of a pine forest. Work started immediately, squares were laid off, forty lots were cleared for houses, forts were built, and the city of Savannah came into being.

Hearing that the mulberry trees, on whose leaves the silkworm feeds, was indigenous to Georgia, the Trustees believed that a fine quality of raw silk could be produced in the colony. So firmly were they impressed with this idea that the first ship arriving with supplies from England, May, 1733, commanded by Captain Yoakly, brought over several skilled laborers from the Piedmont region of Lombardy, Italy. These men were sent to the colony to instruct the settlers in the raising of the mulberry trees, breeding the silkworm, and unwinding the silk threads of the cocoon.

Through the courtesy of Miss Ruth Blair, State Historian of Georgia, as the result of many years of research on her part, I am allowed the privilege of being the first to give the public twenty-five names of the heads of the first families settling in Georgia: Nicholas Amatis, Richard Cannon, Thomas Causton, William Calvert, Joseph Coles, Mrs. (Henry) Coles, Thomas Cristie, Joseph Fitzwalter, Peter Gordon, Rev. Henry Herbert, Joseph Hughes, Richard Hodges, Noble Jones, Francis Mugridge, Samuel Parker, Henry Parker, John Penrose, William Rooker, Francis Scott, George Symes, William Waterland, John West, J. Norton Wright, Thomas Young and Robert Clarke.

When the Georgia enterprise was launched, contributions to promote the undertaking were accepted from everyone. Three Jews, offering assistance, collected forty Hebrews and sent them there in July, 1733. This was contrary to the wishes of the Trustees, but Oglethorpe made them welcome and found them to be good and useful citizens. These were known as the Portuguese Jews and many of their descendants may be found today in Savannah.

In 1733, twelve families, mostly French, arrived in Georgia and located four or five miles southwest of Savannah, at the head of the Vernon River.

In the mountains of Austria resided poor, hard-working, simple peasant people known as the Salzburgers, many of whom were members of the Lutheran church. Three years before the colonization of Georgia, they had been so persecuted because of their religious belief that they scattered over Europe. The Trustees, hearing of their plight, wrote to their pastor in Germany inviting them to make a home in the new colony. Through the influence of James Vernon, one of the most active Trustees of the colony, seventy-eight Salzburgers, forty-two of whom were men, were moved from Bavaria across Europe to Dover, England, where they embarked for Georgia. Under their leader, John Martin Bolzius, the first group landed at Savannah in March, 1734. Oglethorpe, with Baron Von Reck who had accompanied them, decided to locate the new settlement twenty-five miles from Savannah on a creek in what is now Effingham County. Here they built the town of Ebenezer, the “Stone of Help,” and started life anew. This location proved unsatisfactory and in 1736 a New Ebenezer was laid out at Red Bluff on the Savannah River.

Other groups followed until by 1741, probably twelve thousand Salzburgers had settled in Georgia. This large emigration gave the colony a decidedly German aspect.

Oglethorpe returned to England for a visit in May, 1734. Early in the following year he sent over a colony of Swiss and Moravians who settled at Fort Argyle on the Ogeechee River, eighteen miles from Savannah. A grant of five hundred acres of land was secured by Count Ludwig von Zinzindorf for the purpose of settling in Georgia another group of persecuted Protestants from Austria. Accompanied by the Reverend Gottlieb Spangenberg, this emigration of the Moravians, 47 in number, better known as "the United Brethren," started for Georgia in 1735. This group settled along the banks of the Savannah River, between the Salzburgers and the town of Savannah. They proved to be the only settlers coming to Georgia during the period of the Trustees who became self-supporting. They accomplished some missionary work among the Indians, establishing the Indian school "Irene."

However, their religious principles forbade them to bear arms in warfare. It was difficult to make exception in the case of these new settlers in this respect, and they began to leave the colony, so that by 1740 the whole group had departed for Pennsylvania.

The Trustees, realizing that fighting men were needed, then decided to send such settlers to make their homes on the frontier. Lieutenant Hugh Mackey recruited one hundred and thirty Scottish Highlanders, fifty of whom were women and children.

With their Minister, Rev. John McLeod, they sailed from Scotland on board the Prince of Wales in January, 1736. This group settled on the extreme southern border of Georgia on the northern bank of the Altamaha River, near its mouth. Their settlement was named New Inverness—the district was called Darien. Later, needing a seaport, they built the town of Sunbury.

The first group of Puritan settlers, who had previously established a settlement in Dorchester, South Carolina, about twenty miles from Charleston, sent out three of their members to seek a location more suited to their needs. They selected a spot midway between the Savannah and Ogeechee Rivers. A grant of 32,000 acres of land was obtained and here they removed in 1752, calling their new settlement "Midway."

These people came originally from Plymouth, England, and had located first in Dorchester, Mass., but suffering many privations in New England they resolved to remove to one of the southern colonies. This first group was followed from time to time by others. "Midway" was peopled by men and women of a high moral and intellectual type who have become known as "the cultured Congregationalists" and who have played an important part in the history of the state, producing two of Georgia's three Signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Georgia, the youngest of the Thirteen Colonies, became the most cosmopolitan of them all, offering a haven to nine distinct groups of peoples from eight countries beyond the Atlantic Ocean.
Our Service Extended at Ellis Island

BLANCHE HAYNES PERKINS

National Chairman, Ellis Island Committee

ON JANUARY second we extended our service of occupational therapy to the United States Marine Hospital on Ellis Island at the request of the Commissioner of Immigration and the Medical Officers in charge of the U. S. Public Health Service. This hospital is primarily an immigration hospital, owned by the Immigration Service; and operated for their benefit by the Public Health Service. All alien patients are regarded as patients of the Commissioner.

On account of the decline of immigration in the last few years there have been a large number of empty beds in the Ellis Island Hospital. With the permission of the Immigration Service these beds have been used by the Public Health Service for the care of its regular beneficiaries, which include seamen of the American Merchant Marine, that is, men who are employed on registered vessels of the United States, these men being entitled to treatment under federal laws; coast guardsmen and a large number of official patients.

This hospital at Ellis Island is somewhat unique in being a combination Immigration and Marine Hospital.

It is different from other Marine Hospitals in that it is so organized and so staffed as to care for any variety of illness, but the patients must be sent there by the Immigration Service or the Public Health Service.

The daily number of patients is 450. The average length of treatment for each patient is about 35 days, although many are there for months.

The tubercular patients average 125. These cases require prolonged treatment and occupational therapy should really be part of their treatment. The neuro-psychiatric patients average about 50. In this class it is a well-known fact that the beginning of recovery from the mental condition dates from the first interest shown in some simple occupational therapy task. This has been proven in many hospitals. A large number of other patients are suffering from diseases of a chronic nature or disabilities incident to age. These cases require lengthy treatments and occupational therapy is again of immense benefit. Thus it may be noticed there has been an urgent and great need for a full-time, trained occupational therapist—one who understands these types of patients. Quoting from a letter received by your National Chairman in November from Dr. C. H. Lavinder, Chief Medical Officer—“The patients in this hospital frequently, pathetically ask for something to do, and unfortunately there is nothing that we can give them. Any assistance that you can give us in establishing this very necessary and important work in the hospital will be greatly appreciated by us, and, I am sure, will greatly benefit the patients.”

Now we have installed a young woman who has had experience in just this kind of work. She spends the mornings in the wards and the after-
Each patient must present a written permit from his attending physician before he is set to work. This permit states his ailment and the type of work, restful or active, which is most beneficial to his case. For example, if there is reason for the arm and leg muscles to be exercised, he may be set at a loom weaving rag rugs, which would be physical exercise as well as mental diversion. Our workshop is bright and airy with a broad view from its many windows of New York harbor and the Statue of Liberty.

This extension of service will not affect our original unit in the least. We will draw our supplies from the same storeroom and work together in every way. This service at the hospital seems very fitting, for when an immigrant or alien is taken ill, his whole family is detained while the sick one is in the hospital—so we keep the family busy, as well as the invalid, while he is convalescing. We have had many instances such as the following:

Not long ago, a father, mother and two little boys were cited for deportation to Australia, as they had over-stayed the time allotted for visitors. The younger boy became ill: the malady developed into pneumonia and he was sent to the hospital. We tried to keep the father and mother occupied making sweaters and a cap for the little sick fellow, thus relieving the dreadful tension of anxiety. Just before the child was discharged the second boy developed the same trouble so the entire family was on Ellis Island three months.

How grateful they were for the work we gave them during the long period. Pause and think what those days might have been if they were idle from morning until night.

A young Italian is detained for some technical reason which prevents his joining his brothers here in America. He has been waiting for weeks to have the matter cleared up. What a blessing our work has been to him, keeping his mind clear for his legal hearings!

There are not as many coming in to our country as in former years, but their duration of detention on the Island is much longer.

This same work of occupational therapy is being carried on by the Ellis Island National Committee at Angel Island in San Francisco harbor. This immigration station is smaller but very important, being the Western Gateway to our great country. Many Orientals, Mexicans and some Europeans come through this port of entry.

The chapters in the far western states supply the material which is distributed by Deaconess Katherine Mauer of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Boxes for Angel Island should be directed to her.

When sending boxes to Ellis Island, send them parcel post, insured, to: Mrs. J. Warren Perkins, D. A. R. Social Service Dept., Ellis Island, New York Harbor.

Window Display to Feature D. A. R. History

Woodward & Lothrop, a well-known department store in Washington, D. C., asked the privilege of having a window display in April arranged in compliment to the 43rd Continental Congress meeting here then, and the District of Columbia D. A. R. have gladly cooperated with the firm.

All delegates and alternates will find much to interest them in this display, for there will be depicted the beginning and development of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution up to the present time. In the back of the window will be displayed the seals of the thirteen colonies in color.

In the center will be shown our official insignia, and to one side a picture of our first President General, Mrs. Caroline Scott Harrison, while across from it will be a photograph of our President General, Mrs. Magna.

Also on display are to be views of Memorial Continental Hall, the Administration Building, Constitution Hall and the beautiful monument to the founders of our organization.

DOROTHY BOWLES DALBY,
Window Display Chairman, D. C., D. A. R.
JUNE 19, 1215, should be a date cherished by all Anglo-Saxons and their descendants, for upon it King John of England signed that perfect instrument of liberty, the MAGNA CHARTA, at Runnemede; and as the birthplace of the MAGNA CHARTA, Arundel Castle, the home of the d’Albini, then old in history, should be the Shrine of Shrines of the English speaking world.

King John was a frequent guest at Arundel Castle, where he met the Barons, ever resisting their threatening demands. But the chivalry of the times made more difficult the denial of the pleas of his charming hostess, Countess Mabel of Arundel. Schooled in France, speaking that language with a charming grace, so history says, that excelled the French themselves, we can well realize how irresistible must have been this blue-eyed, golden-haired Countess, and hear the defiant King say: “Barons, I grant the Charter, not through fear of ye, but for yon bonny Lady.”

Years ago the descendants of the Magna Charta Barons produced, at Arundel Castle, a pageant of its signing on June 19, 1215, each taking the part of his ancestor. The original armor, regalia and banners were used. This scene, as reproduced in a stained-glass creation known as The Great Norfolk Window of Arundel Castle, is shown in the English engraving of 1818, and probably constitutes the most accurate record of this great event that Lord Macaulay designates as “the beginning of English history.” (See Boone Bulletin, Vol. II, No. 7.)

The editor has in her possession a small and ancient volume, bound in calfskin and titled in fine lettering, “Insig. Armor XXV Bar,” and from its vellum pages, hand painted and hand printed, the following coats of arms are faithfully reproduced; also the sometimes quaintly worded text describing the escutcheons of the Barons who were appointed to enforce the observance of the MAGNA CHARTA. We have only reproduced eighteen of these, for five Barons died without issue; de Fortibus had no grandchildren, and de Hardell had no issue that is known.
John de Lacie, Constable of Chester and Baron Halton, was the son of Roger de Lacie, who died in 1211, and Alice de Mandeville. In 1213 John paid the immense sum of twelve thousand marks for livery of his lands. It was for his good services at the siege of Damietta, that he was rewarded by a second marriage with Margaret de Quincy, through whom he received the Earldom of Lincoln. Obit anno 1240.

William d'Albini was the son of William d'Albini, who took the name of Todeni, Baron of Belvoir. The son William forfeited Belvoir Castle on joining the Barons and was appointed by them Governor of Rochester Castle. He married first Margery Odonel d'Umfraville and died in 1236.

William Malet, Lord of Curry-Malet in County Somerset, was the son of William Malet, Lord of Donegal in County Somerset. He died 1224, leaving two daughters, Mabel and Hawise, his heirs. His wife Alice, was the daughter of Thomas Basset.

John Fitz-Robert. Little is known of the Baron, but from his arms he is generally supposed to be related to the families of Clare and Fitz-Walter. He was the Earl of Warkworth and Clevering and married Ada de Baliol. He died 1240.

William de Lanvallei was the son of William de Lanvallei, a Baron who possessed land in the County of Essex in the time of King John. In 1215 he was Governor of Colchester Castle, but about this time he joined the Barons. Obit 1217. He married a daughter of Alan Basset of Wycombe.

Hugh Bigod was the son of Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk, and Isabel, daughter of Hamelyn Plantagenet, Earl of Surrey. He succeeded to his father's estates but enjoyed them for a short time only, for he died in 1224. Hugh's wife was Maud, daughter of William le Mareschal.
Richard de Clare, Earl of Clare and Hertford, was the son and heir of Roger de Clare, third Earl, and his successor in all his honors. He married Amicia de Meullent. He died in 1218.

Robert Fitz-Walter, Baron of Dunmow, which barony descended to him from his grandfather Robert Fitz-Richard, to whom it was presented by Henry I, being the forfeiture of William Baynard of Baynard Castle. He was the chief leader of the Barons assembled in arms against King John, and was constituted by them general of their armies under the title of “Marshal of the Army of God and the Holy Church.” Obit 1234. He married Gunora, daughter of Robert de Valoinies.

Saher de Quincy, Lord of Groby, was created Earl of Winchester by King John in the eighth year of his reign. He married Margaret, daughter and co-heiress of Robert Blanchmains de Beaumont, Earl of Leicester, and Petronella de Grentemaisnil. He died 1219.

Henry de Bohun, son and heir of Humphrey de Bohun, who is sometimes called Earl of Hereford (eldest son of Humphrey de Bohun by Margaret, daughter of Milo, Earl of Hereford) was in right of his grandmother Earl of Hereford. He was also Lord High Constable of England. Obit 1220. His wife was Maud, daughter of Geoffrey Fitz-Piers, Baron de Mandeville.

Roger Bigod was the son and heir of Hugh Bigod, Earl of Norfolk. He had the Earldom of Norfolk confirmed to him by Richard I, anno 1189. He was also Steward of England. Obit 1220.

Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, brother and heir of Aubrey de Vere, was Lord High Chamberlain and Baron Bolebec in right of his wife, Isabel, daughter and heir of Hugh de Bolebec.
Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, was the son and heir of Richard de Clare, by Amitia, daughter, and at length sole heir, of William, Earl of Gloucester. Obit 1229. Gilbert married Isabel le Mareschal, daughter of William, Earl of Pembroke, Protector of England.

Eustace de Vesci was the son and heir of William de Vesci, sometime Sheriff of Northumberland. In anno 1190, on his coming of age, he paid two thousand and three hundred marks to Richard I for fiery of his lands and liberty to marry Margaret, daughter of the King of Scotland. Obit circa 1216.

William de Mowbray, son and heir of Nigel de Mowbray and Maud, daughter of the Earl of Clare. His name was remarkable for his dispute with William de Stuteville concerning the barony of Font-de-Boef, for the restoration of which he gave de Stuteville nine knight's fees and twelve pounds of yearly rent, besides one thousand marks to the King for the determination. Obit anno domini 1222. He married Agnes, daughter of William d'Albini, second Earl of Arundel and Sussex.

Geoffrey de Say, son of Geoffrey de Say, had lands for which he paid King John four thousand marks. He died anno domini 1230. He married Alice, daughter of John de Cheney.

William de Huntingfield was the son of William de Huntingfield, so called from a menage of that name in the County of Suffolk. In 1209 he was one of the Justices at Lincoln and for a part of the next year was Sheriff of the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk. Obit anno 1256-7. He married Alice de St. Liz.

Robert de Roos, sometimes called Robert Furfan, son and heir of Everard de Roos by his wife Rose, daughter and heir of William Trusbut. He was one of the witnesses to the great Forest Charters of 1224. He died anno domini 1227. He married Isabel, daughter of King William "the Lion" of Scotland.
“Capital Comments”
By Frederic William Wile

EVENTS at Washington continue to march with kaleidoscopic swiftness, as the Roosevelt Administration embarks upon its second year. “Action,” keynote of the opening phase of the New Deal, gives every indication of remaining the President’s watchword as he leads the country into another twelvemonth of his breathtaking régime.

* * * * *

Though Mr. Roosevelt’s hold on public confidence is not seriously impaired, it requires to be recorded that his stock of popularity underwent no inconsiderable slump during the month of March, while in Congress he suffered the first rebuffs of his political leadership that he has so far encountered.

It was in connection with the carrying of the airmail by the Army that public criticism was directed at the President to a degree to which he is wholly unaccustomed. Fatal accidents to ten Army flyers within twenty days shocked the country and produced in Congress violent charges of “legalized murder.” The President came under fire not only for hasty and ill-considered action in cancelling the airmail contracts of private aviation companies on charges of “fraud and collusion,” but for entrusting the service on short notice to an under-equipped and inadequately trained Army Air Corps.

* * * * *

The President, taking prompt cognizance of public indignation, ordered the service curtailed and practically discontinued, pending installation of proper safeguards. In instructions to that effect to the Secretary of War, the President set forth that he had received “definite assurance” that the Army was equal to the job of flying the mail. Later evidence indicated that when suddenly confronted with a suggestion that Army flyers would be drafted for postal service, the War Department authorities, in a spirit of traditional military duty and readiness, naturally expressed no reluctance. But in public opinion there was blundering and ineptitude somewhere, and in consequence a deluge of popular wrath descended upon the White House.

On March 13 Secretary of War Dern appointed a board of inquiry to survey the question of the Army’s operation of the airmail and aviation matters in general. Headed by Major General Hugh A. Drum, Deputy Chief of Staff, the board includes three famous figures in aviation, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, Orville Wright and Clarence Chamberlin. The other members of the board are high Army officers, including Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, Chief of the Army Air Corps. The highly controversial subject of a unified Air Service is to be studied. Hitherto the Army and Navy have strongly opposed unification. Colonel Lindbergh, despite Secretary Dern’s entreaties, declined to serve on the committee because of the Administration’s haste in canceling the airmail contracts.

* * * * *

In the midst of uproar over the airmail, Roosevelt leadership was defied by both the House of Representatives and the Senate. On March 12 the House by a vote of 295 to 125 passed the Veterans bonus bill calling for cash payment of the balance of $2,200,000,000 due on adjusted compensation certificates, and for a special issue of paper currency to meet the cost. Although the President only a day or two before had categorically announced, in a letter to Speaker Rainey, that he would veto the bonus measure, 231 House Democrats joined with 59 Republicans and five Farmer-Laborites to thwart the President’s wishes. While the vote was sufficient to override a presidential veto, it was an open secret that many members who voted for the bill would change their position after Mr. Roosevelt formally disapproved the measure. When these comments were prepared, the bonus bill had not yet reached the Senate. There, Democratic leaders were certain, it would be beaten, saving the President the necessity of a veto. The President opposes the proposition because of its threat to his economy program and because he opposes the creation of printing-press money.

* * * * *

Ever since the World War the bonus has been a political football. Many members of Congress who support Veterans' legislation often do so not because they believe it is justified, but because they fear the "Veterans' vote" in a campaign year like 1934. Having now gone on record as favoring the bonus, probably many a member of the House is indifferent as to whether the Roosevelt veto axe is swung or not. Of such is the kingdom of politics.

* * * * *

On March 14, the President met a second Waterloo in the Senate when that body by 46-42 vote refused to ratify the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes Waterway Treaty with Canada. The vote fell far short of the two-thirds required for ratification. Twenty-two Democrats, ordinarily staunch supporters of the Administration, deserted its standard, notably Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, chief opponent of the treaty. Fourteen Republicans rallied to the Administration's side, but they were not sufficient to give the President victory.

While Mr. Roosevelt's heart was set on ratification, he is not dismayed by the Senate's action. The seaway will be built some day, he is certain, either by Canada alone, or in eventual cooperation with the United States. Sooner or later an amended treaty will in all probability be negotiated, submitted to the Senate, and, in due course, ratified.

The Administration is naturally chagrined over the first major legislative setback it has suffered—and at the hands of a Senate which is overwhelmingly in Democratic control—but the President takes heart of grace from the fact that neither the bonus rebuff in the House nor the treaty defeat in the Senate affects the sweep of the great recovery program. In that Mr. Roosevelt's interest is mainly centered; on it, his chief energy concentrated.

* * * * *

It was on D. A. R. premises—in noble Constitution Hall—that Mr. Roosevelt on March 5 rededicated himself to his major policy for combating depression—the National Industrial Recovery Act. In a speech, considered his most important utterance since the inaugural address of exactly one year previous, the President told an audience of 4,000 N. R. A. code authorities, representing every industry in the country, that the Blue Eagle is here to stay. "This great evolution," he said, "must be permanent for all the rest of our lives. One thing is very certain—we are not going back either to the old conditions or the old methods." The immediate need of the hour, he added, "is to re-employ more people at purchasing wages on shorter hours, and to do it now."

After thus nailing his colors to the mast, the President paid his respects to detractors of N. R. A. He said constructive criticism is welcome and valuable, but that people who merely complain, without offering anything better, are guilty of unpatriotic conduct. That Rooseveltian theory has not met with universal approbation. The President also declared that the United States is proceeding "in the American way" to put its economic house in order, and is not resorting to Communism or Fascism, or following certain foreign nations in violating the principles of constitutional and parliamentary government. No dictatorship, in other words, F. D. R. argues, has been set up at Washington.

* * * * *

Following the President's remarks to the code authorities, General Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, dropped a bombshell by demanding that industry proceed at once to carry out Mr. Roosevelt's proposals by making a general decrease of 10 per cent in working hours and an increase of 10 per cent in wages. Business leaders forcefully resented those suggestions, on the ground that trade conditions, especially in the so-called heavy or capital goods industries, do not justify a shorter-hour, higher-wage program. Industrialists said bluntly that to attempt to put such a program in force at this time would only "freeze" unemployment and impose unbearable hardships on many concerns. There was fear that the President might force the adoption of his plan by executive order, but General Johnson and business leaders will try to find middle ground agreeable both to the government and industry. The goal at which the President and N. R. A. are aiming, of course, is reduction of unemployment, which is still enormous. Some estimates place the total of men and women now out of work at more than 8,000,000. The number will be materially increased when government work under the C. W. A. plan ceases in May. During March grave labor unrest developed in the automobile, steel, and railroad industries, with threats of strikes on a wide scale. As these pages went to press, Administration influence was being exerted at every point to bring the various warring factions to agreement. It was recognized on all hands that strikes at this time would seriously impede the recovery program and even jeopardize the existence of N. R. A.

The New Dealers are happy over another United States Supreme Court decision which seems still further to legalize “regimentation” measures. By one more 5-to-4 “liberal majority” decision, as in the case of the Minnesota mortgage moratorium case earlier in the year, the court validated the New York State milk law, which fixes prices. The court decided that such price-fixing is justified by the existing national emergency. The Roosevelt Administration is now convinced that its whole recovery set-up will stand the test of constitutionality if, as and when it is brought before the Supreme Court for review.

Now pending before Congress is a far-reaching proposal by President Roosevelt, asking power to raise or lower tariffs by a maximum of 50 per cent as an aid to the conclusion of reciprocity agreements with other countries. It marks the most significant step thus far in the Administration’s campaign to revive dwindling American foreign trade. Despite increased domestic activities, our volume of imports and exports for 1933 was scarcely half of that in 1929. Measured in dollars, the decline was more than two-thirds. The President contends that the present system of tariff readjustment is unwieldy and cumbersome, and that if the United States is to reap required advantages in international trade, there must be more expeditious machinery for bargaining purposes, such as other countries possess.

The proposal arouses mixed emotions on Capitol Hill. Since time immemorial, Congress has been very jealous of its tariff prerogatives. The Republicans, wedded to the protective tariff ideal, are in violent opposition. They accuse the President of attempting to become a “tariff dictator.” The House is expected to grant the desired authority without much discussion. The proposition will have harder sledding in the Senate. The Republican chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, Robert Lincoln O’Brien, of Massachusetts, in testimony before the Ways and Means Committee, strongly favored the President’s proposals.

The Administration has launched a series of prosecutions in connection with alleged evasions of the income tax law. The Department of Justice has ordered proceedings, among others, against former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, former Mayor of New York James J. Walker, and other prominent citizens in various parts of the country. Mr. Mellon charges that he is the victim of “politics” and says he does not shun the most searching inquiry into his tax matters. He has paid $20,000,000 in Federal taxes in 20 years. The President and Attorney General Cummings explain that the tax campaign is not directed against “big fellows” in particular, but is a drive against evaders of all sorts, regardless of their stations in life. The Treasury estimates the amount of outstanding taxes due to the government at $800,000,000, and the new drive is designed to recapture as large a portion of this sum as possible.

The D. A. R. will be happy to know that the Senate, by an overwhelming majority, concurred in the House bill to build the Navy up to full treaty limits within the next five years. Pacifist organizations fought the bill to the last, but could not prevail.
The State House, Boston, Massachusetts

NANCY HUDSON HARRIS
State Regent

In accordance with a resolve of the General Court, dated February 16, 1795, Edward Hutchinson Robbins, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Thomas Dawes and Charles Bulfinch were appointed agents on the part of the Commonwealth, with authority to erect, build and finish a new State House for the "accommodation of all the legislative and executive branches of government, on a spot of ground in Boston, commonly called the Governor's pasture, containing about two acres, more or less, adjoining the late Governor Hancock's garden and belonging to his heirs, provided the Town of Boston would, at their expense, purchase and cause the same to be conveyed in fee simple to the Commonwealth." The sum of £8,000 was allowed for the purpose.

Charles Bulfinch was chosen architect. The corner-stone, on a truck decorated with ribbons, was drawn to its place by 15 white horses, each with a leader, and was laid with public ceremony July 4, 1795, by His Excellency Samuel Adams, Governor, assisted by Most Worshipful Paul Revere, Grand Master; Right Worshipful William Scollay, Deputy Grand Master, and brethren of the Grand Lodge of Masons. These ceremonies were a part of a civic celebration which was held in honor of the anniversary of American Independence.

The structure was 172 feet deep, 155 feet high, including the dome, and cost $140,000. This sum included the cost of a house for the messenger to the General Court, which, with land, amounted to $5,000.

Thursday, January 11, 1798, the General Court (assembled for the last time in the old State House, State Street, where their sessions had been held for fifty years), having been joined by His Excellency, Increase Sumner, Governor; the Honorable Council, the Secretary, the Treasurer, and architect, Charles Bulfinch, formed a procession and marched to the new building. This building was of red brick.

Early in the 19th century the State House lot appears to have been enclosed by a wooden fence on Beacon Street, with brick fences on the east, west and north. These were later replaced; a front wall of granite, surmounted by an iron fence and a central double gate, with single gates on each side, properly set between massive granite posts, were erected. The stone work was done at the State Prison.

Two wings have been added, one on either side. Other changes have been made, but always in keeping with the original Bulfinch front. The dome is covered with gold leaf, and was illuminated at night in 1898 by 498 electric lights, but in 1924 the system was changed to floor lighting from the wings.

Entering the Bulfinch front from Beacon Street, the visitor steps first into Doric Hall. Here are many marble statues, tablets, and two brass cannon.

Directly north is the Senate staircase hall of Pavonazzo marble. The stairs at the right lead to the Senate and those to the left to the executive department.

Nearly in the center of the building is Memorial Hall. Sixteen pillars of Siena marble support the circular gallery. The dome is surrounded by a heavy bronze cornice environed by the eagles of the Republic, and, above them, in cathedral glass, is the coat of arms of the Commonwealth, encircled, within laurel wreaths, by those of the other twelve original States. Within four niches are the battle flags carried by Massachusetts volunteers during the War of the Rebellion. There are now 311 Civil War flags in this Hall. The large majority of these battle-scarred flags have been in the State House for over sixty years.

The Executive Department occupies the southwest portion of the Bulfinch front. All the governors elected under the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, except three, performed the duties of their office in these Bulfinch rooms, the administrations of John Hancock, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams having ended before the completion of the Bulfinch State House.

Passing through the east corridor, the visitor enters the Senate Chamber, with its galleries formed by Doric columns, the whole being surrounded by Doric entablatures. Over the President's chair are the National and State flags, a gilded eagle holding in its beak a large scroll with the inscription "God Save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," and upon the north wall is the State coat of arms. Suspended from the south wall are two muskets—a King's arm, captured from a soldier of the 43d Regiment of British Infantry by Capt. John Parker on the morning of April 19, 1775, in the battle of Lexington, being the first firearm taken from the enemy in the War for Independence, and the firearm used by Captain Parker in that battle—both bequeathed by Rev. Theodore Parker.

The State Library is at the extreme north of the building. It is one of the largest State reference libraries in the United States, having a collection of over 460,000 volumes and pamphlets.

Leaving the Library and passing into the west corridor, the visitor enters the reading and writing rooms of the House of Representatives.

The entire wall of the House, from floor to gallery, is panelled. The gallery is surmounted by ten Corinthian columns, and above is the beautiful coved ceiling. The National and State colors are suspended over the Speaker's chair; at the right is the United States shield; at the left, the State coat of arms. Opposite the desk, between the two central columns is suspended the historic codfish. The codfish is made of pine, 4 feet 11 1/2 inches long, and is approximately 10 inches through the largest part of the body, and is a "memorial of the importance of cod fishery to the welfare of this Commonwealth."

Throughout the building there are many statues and tablets serving as memorials to those who have played an important part in our Commonwealth and Nation. Much more could be described about this beautiful building, but a personal visit would be much more satisfactory.

In closing, may I quote from a letter written by John Duke, Lord Coleridge, Lord Chief Justice of England, to Sir M. E. Grant Duff, dated New York, October 26, 1883:

"Far the most beautiful city in America, as far as I have seen, is Boston, and the State House is the most beautiful building in the country. At Washington, at Albany, at Chicago, and elsewhere, you see much grander and more costly structures; but this is in perfect taste and proportion: every interspace the right size, every moulding right, every decoration refined—a sort of Adams architecture of noblest type. . . . The situation is noble and has been made the best of."

Attention: Delegates and Alternates

The attention of every delegate and alternate is called to the following resolution adopted by the 42d Continental Congress, April, 1933:

"Resolved that, beginning with the Continental Congress of 1934, a registration fee of $1.00 be paid by all National Officers, Chapter Regents, delegates, and alternates."

Registration will be held in the auditorium of Memorial Continental Hall.
The 28th Annual State Conference of the Tennessee Daughters of the American Revolution was held in Chattanooga, November 1, 2, and 3, 1933, with Chickamauga, Nancy Ward, Judge David Campbell and John Ross Chapters as hostesses. The presence of our President General, Mrs. Russell William Magna, and of other distinguished guests, among whom were Mrs. C. Edward Murray, Vice-President General from New Jersey; Mrs. J. H. Acklen, Vice-President General from Tennessee; and Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, former Vice-President General from Georgia, contributed greatly to the outstanding success of the conference.

On Wednesday morning the State Executive Board held its meeting, and the members were joined at luncheon by the State Chairmen of Standing Committees. Mrs. Magna, Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Talmadge each spoke briefly at the luncheon, giving many helpful suggestions concerning D. A. R. work. On Wednesday afternoon was held an impressive and beautiful service of rededication of the old cemetery of the Brainerd Mission to the Cherokee Indians, located on a main highway about seven miles from Chattanooga. The property has been deeded to the four Chattanooga Chapters by the Hampton family and heirs. The acre of ground which constituted the cemetery has been inclosed by a beautiful rough stone wall set with wrought iron gates. Boxwood and shrubbery have been planted, the beautiful old trees have been tended and bronze markers set telling of the historic and religious significance of the hallowed spot. Addresses by Mrs. Magna and Judge Samuel Cole Williams were the high points of this service. The State Officers' Club held its annual dinner at six o'clock at which Mrs. Magna, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Talmadge, Mrs. Acklen and Mrs. Bryan, former Vice-President General from Tennessee, were honor guests.

The Conference was formally opened at a brilliant evening session in the Hotel Patton ball room. Following a gracious speech of greeting by the State Regent, Mrs. Willard Steele, were messages of welcome from representatives of the local D. A. R. chapters, the City of Chattanooga and many state and local patriotic organizations. Mrs. Steele then introduced our most distinguished guest, our President General, who in ringing tones and with inspiring spirit gave a splendid address touching upon the duties and the patriotic attitude of all true Americans and upon the work and aims of the National Society. The address which was broadcast from the platform over Station WDOD received the enthusiastic applause of the large audience present. It is published in its entirety in the proceedings of the 28th Tennessee State Conference. Following this session the State Regent entertained at a brilliant reception in honor of Mrs. Magna.

The Thursday morning session was devoted to the reports of State officers. Just before luncheon Mrs. Magna again addressed the conference on D. A. R. work. In response to many requests she closed her talk with a most interesting account of some of her airplane experiences. A beautiful luncheon was tendered the Conference members by the Chattanooga Kosmos Woman's Club in their handsomely appointed club house.

Reports of chairmen of standing committees were begun at the afternoon session. A most interesting program of folk music and dancing was given by fourteen students of Pleasant Hill Academy, a mountain school which was later voted a D. A. R. State approved school. Addresses were made by Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Talmadge. At the close of the session the State Regent, Mrs. Steele met with the chapter regents for a short conference. From these sessions the delegates, alternates and guests
The following State officers were elected to take office in April, 1934: State Regent, Mrs. Allen Harris of Johnson City; State Vice-Regent, Mrs. Penelope Johnson Allen; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Clarence P. King; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. W. L. Cook; Treasurer, Mrs. William Fillauer; Registrar, Miss Ruth Rodgers; Historian, Miss Anita Williams; Chaplain, Mrs. Rutledge Smith, and Librarian, Mrs. A. W. Eason.

This concluded the final session and the State Regent declared the 28th Tennessee State Conference officially adjourned. Delegates and guests were invited to remain over and enjoy a sightseeing trip on Saturday morning to Lookout Mountain, Rock City and Fairyland as guests of Mrs. Bashie Lindsley Martin.

FRANCES THATCHER MOSES,
State Recording Secretary.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Pennsylvania State Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution held its 37th Annual Conference Oct. 17th-20th, 1933. Four Chapters from the Southwestern part of the State: the Cannonsburg Chapter, of Cannonsburg; the John Corbley Chapter, of Waynesburg; the Monongahela Valley Chapter, of Monongahela; and the Washington County Chapter, of Washington, were joint hostesses. The sessions were held at the George Washington Hotel, Washington, Pa.

At noon, Tuesday, Mrs. William H. Alexander, State Regent, entertained all the State Officers at luncheon, after which the Board retired into executive session.

In the evening the State Officers gave a dinner in the Georgian room in honor of Mrs. Alexander, and all visiting active National and State Officers and the four hostess Chapter Regents.

The spacious ball-room of the George Washington Hotel was decorated with ferns, autumn flowers, colored leaves and American flags—a very beautiful setting for the reception given by the hostess Chapters in honor of the State and National Officers to the visiting delegates. The receiving line was composed of the following: Hostess Regents, Mrs. H. P. Christman, Washington County Chapter; Mrs. W. G. Buckner, Cannonsburg Chapter; Miss Sarah M. Dinsmore, John Corbley Chapter; Mrs. Edwin McKay, Monongahela Valley Chapter; Mrs. William H. Alexander, State Regent; Mrs. Joseph M. Caley, Vice President General; Mrs. N. Howland Brown, ex-Vice President General; Mrs. Livingston L.
Hunter, ex-Treasurer General; Mrs. Robert E. Drum, State Recording Secretary; Mrs. Oliver H. Meyers, State Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. William H. Erwin, State Treasurer; Mrs. Edward G. Caughey, State Librarian; Miss Harriet Holderbaum, State Historian; Miss L. Ethel Boughner, State Registrar; Mrs. Francis H. Doane, Eastern District Director; Mrs. Robert L. Brotherton, Western District Director. Each member in the receiving line was presented with a beautiful corsage by the Pages of the Conference.

The Conference was opened at 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning, with the assembly call by a Boy Scout bugler, Ray Brockway, of the Cannonsburg Troop No. 3, after which the processional entered, escorted by twenty-one Pages attired in white. They formed in two lines for the passage of the guests of honor and State Officers. Mrs. Alexander called the Conference to order.

After the invocation by the Rev. George P. Atwell, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Hugh G. Martin led the Conference in the Salute to the Flag. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung. Mrs. Robert L. Brotherton then led in the "American's Creed."

The speakers of the morning were well chosen. They included Mayor Robert E. Griffith, of Washington; Mrs. H. P. Christman, of the Washington County Chapter; Mrs. Raymond L. Wadham, State Vice Regent; Rev. C. L. McKee, from the George Washington Chapter, S. A. R., and Hon. Charles I. Faddis, Representative in Congress.

Greetings were given by National, ex-National Officers, Honorary State Regents, State and ex-State Officers. Reports on Committee of Rules, by Mrs. Frances H. Doane, State Director, and that of the Committee on Credentials was given by Mrs. James T. Ray. Roll Call was conducted by Mrs. Robert E. Drum, Recording Secretary.

Mrs. Alexander gave a detailed report for the year of her work as State Regent.

A memorial service in memory of Miss Margaret Barnett, ex-Corresponding Secretary General, was conducted by Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton, Honorary Vice President General, Mrs. William D. Hamilton, and Mrs. David E. Davis.

The outstanding business of the sessions was reports of State Officers, State Chairmen and Chapter Regents.

Mrs. John Brown Heron, Chairman of the Committee for the Revision of the State By-Laws, presented a set of proposed amendments of said By-laws for the consideration and action of the Delegates. The amendments were voted upon and approved.

Candidates for the Nominating Committee were nominated and voted upon. The Nominating Committee consists of the following: Mrs. Christman, Chairman; Mrs. Forney and Mrs. Shelly, of the Eastern District; Mrs. Love and Mrs. McLannahan, of the Central District; Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Ray, of the Western District.

The Conference approved a Students' Loan Fund. The Committee is to consist of five members with the State Vice Regent as Chairman and the State Treasurer always a member.

The final report of the Elizabeth Gilmore Berry Memorial, erected by the State Society, was given by Mrs. John Brown Heron. At her grave in the Robinson Run Cemetery a large granite boulder, upon which is a bronze tablet with the record of this woman, was dedicated in November, 1932, with Mrs. Alexander, State Regent, in charge of the ceremonies. The tablet contained this inscription:

"In Memory of Elizabeth Gilmore, who came to this country in the fall of 1777. A nurse in Washington's Army at Valley Forge during the winter of 1777-78. A soldier of the American Revolution from Northumberland County in the company called 'Rangers of the Frontier' as recorded in the Pennsylvania Archives. Elizabeth Gilmore and John Berry, a Continental soldier, were married in 1780, and together they continued in the Army until the close of the War of Independence. Elizabeth Gilmore Berry died August 21, 1824. Pennsylvania Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, October 19, 1932."

The orator of the Wednesday evening State dinner was Dr. Ralph C. Hutchinson, President of Washington and Jefferson College. He declared the Society faces a real crisis in its patriotic endeavor to assist the people of this country to intelligently understand and to willingly work together for the betterment of our national life.

The Thursday evening program was an address by Hon. Henry W. Temple on "Historic Washington County." The Minuet was danced by members of the Ida Cummings Chapter, C. A. R. Laurance Hart gave a clever impersonation of Gen. George Washington. Visiting guests prominent in national affairs and other State Societies were: Mrs. William H. Pouch, Vice President General from New York; Mrs. William A. Becker, Chairman of National Defence Committee; Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton, Honorary Vice President General, from Pennsylvania; Mrs. Joseph M. Caley, Vice President General from Pennsylvania; Mrs. Frank M. Dick, Librarian General; Mrs. Livingston L. Hunter, ex-Treasurer General; Mrs. John Brown Heron, ex-Vice President General; Mrs. N. Howland Brown, ex-Vice President General; Mrs. Edwin Earle Sparks, ex-State Regent; Mrs. Paul O. Reyman, State Regent of West Virginia; Mrs. Asa C. Messenger, State Regent of Ohio; Mrs. John S. Heaume, Vice State Regent of Ohio; and Mrs. Herbert Backus, ex-State Regent of Ohio.

Book Review
KATHARINE CALVERT GOODWIN

This massive work, 743 pages long, on the Guthrie and allied families in America, is one of the best and most complete compilations recently brought to our notice.

The volume is divided into four books, each with a separate index. The general introduction discusses the old stock of Guthries on the east coast of Scotland, their racial traits, the derivation of the name, its many variations in spelling and misspelling. The middle of the 17th century marks the advent of the family in America. Book I records the first-known settler, John Guthrie, who emigrated to the Jamestown colony about 1652. The descendants are traced of his two grandsons, the thrice-married James, of King and Queen County, Va., and John, both Revolutionary soldiers in the same regiment (Va. State Line); and of William Guthrie, of King and Queen County; also lines of other Virginia Guthries, including those of Cumberland and Halifax counties.

The introduction to Book II is an interesting account of the flow of Scotch-Irish migration to the new world during the 18th century, tracing their routes and settlements in the Cumberland and Shenandoah valleys, the Carolina Piedmont, and south-western Pennsylvania. The writer then takes up the Guthrie immigrants from Ulster, 1700-1775, grouping them by decades, but as Book II is by far the longest, covering half the volume, it would not be possible to list them here. It should be mentioned, however, that numerous Colonial Guthries saw Revolutionary service, and that in later wars descendants of these patriots served their country well.

Book III is confined to the principal Guthries coming to America after the War of Independence, during the late 18th and early 19th centuries. Here the lines are given of six post-Revolutionary Guthries: three James Guthries, of Preston County, West Va., of Fayette County, Pa., and of York, Livingston County, N. Y., respectively; two Robert Guthries, one of Westmoreland County, Pa., the other of Washington County, Pa., and Thomas Guthrie, of Allegheny County, Pa.

In alphabetical sequence, Book IV gives accounts of 64 allied families, among them the Battertons, Bayards, Beattys, Chappelles, Doughtrys, Dunns, Gilkesons, Johnsons, Loves, Lyanses, Merrill, Minears, Sterretts, Tuthills, Walshes, and Woodrows. Along with records of the Campbell, Holliday, Coleman and Veatch families appear reproductions of their coats-of-arms.
Marion Chapter (Fayetteville, Ark.). On March 26 impressive memorial services were sponsored by this Chapter and the Thomas Fox of Concord Chapter, D.A.C., in marking the grave of Samuel Gregg, colonial and revolutionary soldier. The ceremony was held at Gehring’s Chapel Cemetery, with several hundred people attending.

Order of the service was the Pledge to the Flag and the Lord’s Prayer led by Mrs.
Gregson, State Chaplain; tribute to Revolutionary Soldiers, Mrs. P. M. Heerwagen; tribute to Colonial Soldiers, Mrs. W. F.
Sonneman; Samuel Gregg’s Service To His Country, Mrs. T. U. Jackson; Value of Memorial Work, Miss Clara B. Eno of Van Buren, State Chairman of Memorial Markings; placing of memorial wreath by Miss Ida Gregg; salute by the R.O.T.C. Unit; taps by R.O.T.C. bugler, and benediction
by Mrs. Gregson.

celebrated its 25th birthday anniversary with a luncheon on February 4th, 1934.
The State Regent, Mrs. William H. Alexander, was the guest of honor. Part of the program consisted of vocal selections by a sextette composed entirely of memers, including the accompanist.

The Chapter has a room in the Century
Club, handsomely furnished, with colonial fittings. There is a library of about seventy volumes, exclusive of the lineage books, which are kept up to date.

All quotas are paid, and a box sent each December to Ellis Island. A group of members does sewing for local charitable institutions. Americanization work is furthered by assisting the DuPont Community Center where very efficient work is being done among people of foreign origin. Naturalization court was attended and Flag Codes have been distributed. Over 2,000 of the Manuals have been distributed yearly for the past four years, by placing them in the public libraries, banks, public schools, night schools and federal court.

Philippines Chapter (Manila, P. I.). On February 28, 1930, the Chapter unveiled a bronze tablet at Fort Santiago to identify the spot where on August 13, 1898, the Stars and Stripes were officially raised for the first time in the Philippine Islands. On the afternoon of the ceremonies in connection with the unveiling on the top of the wall of historic old Fort Santiago, the wind
THE OLD POTOMAC PATH

Originally an Indian trail and traversed by early settlers, it later became the first coach and post road between northern and southern Colonies, and was called "The King's Highway." This old road extends for about three miles through Rippon Lodge, where it has been preserved by Wade H. Ellis, and marked and dedicated in May, 1933, by the Susan Riviere Hetzel Chapter, D. C.

OMPOGE CHAPTER OF PERTH AMBOY, N. J., PLACES MARKERS ON GRAVES OF TWO REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS from beautiful Manila Bay flung out on the breeze the large flags carried by the guard of honor, Company E, 31st Infantry, commanded by Lt. Russell Baker. Major G. P. Wilhelm acted as master of ceremonies, in the name of the Commanding General, and expressed the pleasure of the United States Army in cooperating with and giving its assistance to this dedication.

In a brief address Major Wilhelm told the object of the gathering and recited the achievements of the American Government in the Philippines. He stressed the fact that in selecting this site the Daughters of the American Revolution were commemorating not merely an historical incident, and the victory of American arms, but an event that has brought to these beautiful islands peace, progress, prosperity, security, and liberty which indirectly have resulted in ameliorating the burdens of mankind throughout the colonial empires of the world by showing that a military conquest can be used to benefit and not to exploit mankind.

The tablet was dedicated in the presence of Mrs. Walter J. Robb, outgoing Regent, through whose perseverance the tablet was erected; Mr. Walter J. Robb; Mrs. E. S. Turner, Chairman of the Committee; Mrs. Edwin M. Cooper and Mrs. Stanton Youngberg, Committee members; Mrs. Bayard Stewart, incoming Regent; Mrs. Mabel R. Carlson and Mrs. Lulu K. Skou; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Salmon; Mrs. H. D. Kneedler, State Vice Regent; Dr. Kneedler; Bishop and Mrs. F. G. Mosher; Admiral W. D. McDougal with his aide, Lt. Lawson, and many others.

ELIZABETH F. MILLER,
State Historian.

Rhoda Fairchild Chapter (Carthage, Mo.) on May 13, 1933, unveiled a tablet marking the site of Jasper County’s first court house. The old log cabin, wherein the first sessions of the court were held February 25, 1841, still stands and is more than one hundred years old. It is now the property of Mrs. George Davey and has been made a part of her beautiful suburban home.

The monument was placed at the base of the chimney. It is a shaft of Carthage marble on which is the following inscription:

"On this site, in the log cabin of George Hornback, the first sessions of the County and Circuit Courts of Jasper County were held, February 25, 1841. Erected by Rhoda Fairchild Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, May 13, 1933."

The special ceremonies were opened with the assembly call by a bugler from Battery D. Miss Nellie Wakefield, Chaplain of the Chapter, pronounced the invocation. Judge Grant Emerson, President of the Jasper County Bar Association, spoke briefly, followed by Colonel Ward Schrantz, who gave the principal address of the afternoon, reviewing the early history of Jasper County.

The unveiling of the tablet was in charge of Mrs. F. W. Flower and Mrs. P. J. McNerney, both charter members of Rhoda Fairchild Chapter.

Le Roy Hornback, a lad of twelve years and a Boy Scout, who is a descendant of George Hornback, assisted in this part of the service.

The singing of "America" was led by Mrs. M. W. Izard and the program closed with the sounding of taps by the bugler.

Luncheon at one o'clock preceded the special ceremonies and the members of the Joplin Chapter, the only other Chapter in this county, were guests.

Miss Delia Langston, of Bowers Mill, gave an interesting paper on "Historic Spots in Missouri."

Mrs. John Flanigan, Chapter Historian, was general Chairman in charge of the unveiling ceremonies.

Records of the proceedings of the initial meeting of the County Court were on display at the cabin through the courtesy of Probate Judge Frank Gass.

GEORGIA RADER OSBORN,
Secretary.

Livingston Manor Chapter (Washington, D. C.) placed a bronze D.A.R. marker over the grave of Mrs. William Thomas MacPherson, May 20, 1933, at St. Paul "Piney" Chapel (Protestant Episcopal Church), Port Tobacco Parish, near La Plata, Charles County, Maryland.

The Chapter Chaplain, Mrs. S. D. Shankland, called all the members to assemble at the Methodist Building, May 20, where they were received by Mrs. James Sheara Montgomery, and at 1 P. M. the pilgrimage started, headed by Mrs. McAllister, Chapter Regent, to St. Paul "Piney" Chapel, where they were met by members of William Thomas Chapter, Leonardtown, Maryland, Mrs. George Loker, Regent, who, with Mrs. McAllister, placed and dedicated the marker over the grave of one of its most consistent and patriotic members, Mary Campbell MacPherson.

The services were conducted and the invocation read by Mrs. Shankland. The salute to the Flag was led by Miss Virginia E. Campbell, Color Bearer, and Mrs. Adams S. McAllister spoke briefly of Mrs. MacPherson's active life in patriotic and civic work.

Col. Josiah Smith Chapter (Patchogue, N. Y.). On June 24, 1933, a pageant was sponsored at Coram, Long Island, by this Chapter, Mrs. Charles H. Hunttoon, of Sayville, Long Island, Regent.

This was given to mark the dedication of a tablet on a boulder at the junction of the Middle Country Road and the Patchogue-Port Jefferson Road. At this site, Colonel Talmadge and his small group of colonial soldiers destroyed a British forage magazine in the fall of 1780.

The pageant, written by Mrs. Herman Hilker, was in general charge of Mrs. Lester H. Davis, the principal address being given by Dr. Dixon Ryan Fox, President of the New York State Historical Society, who spoke on the historical events of that time. These were depicted in the pageant which followed, members of the Chapter and their relatives, who were dressed in bright picturesque costumes, making a colorful scene against the background of the trees of Mrs. Daniel R. Davis' grounds, where the pageant was staged.

After the pageant the monument was dedicated by the Regent, accepted on behalf of the Town of Brookhaven by Supervisor Claude C. Neville, and for the State by Mrs. Robert S. Pelletteau, New York State D.A.R. Historian. It was unveiled by Miss Mary West.

Revolutionary Patriots, Brunswick County, Virginia

Compiled from records in the State Library, Richmond, Virginia

ROSA THORNTON LANE
Colonel Charles Lynch Chapter, D. A. R.

THE following is a list of patriots who rendered services during the Revolution, under the "Commissioners of Provisions Law," to Lafayette, Baron von Steuben, General Nelson, General Greene, General Washington, and others.

They gave not only supplies for the Continental troops, but transported the sick, provisions, and guns. There are about 600 of these, not including the 46 officers mentioned.

Descendants of these patriots are eligible to membership in the D. A. R.

Made from the private recipe of Washington's mother

How would you like to serve your family hot spicy gingerbread made from the private recipe of George Washington's mother?

You can—and you can be sure it will come out right. For Dromedary Gingerbread Mix is based on the 200-year-old private recipe of Mary Ball Washington by special permission of the copyright owners, the Washington-Lewis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Fredericksburg, Virginia.

Dromedary Gingerbread Mix brings you, all properly measured and mixed, every ingredient for making this most delicious of gingerbreads. All you do is just add water and pop your gingerbread into the oven. You cannot go wrong.

We guarantee Dromedary Gingerbread Mix sure to come out right, sure to please, or your money back. Order Dromedary Gingerbread Mix today.

If your grocer cannot as yet supply you, just send us the coupon below and we will mail you your gingerbread post-age prepaid for the regular retail price.

ASSOCIATED BRITISH RAILWAYS INC. Announce THE OPENING OF A JOINT OFFICE IN NEW YORK

Realizing that the purposes of travel in Great Britain and the convenience of prospective visitors will be better served, the three British Railways—the London & North Eastern Railway—London, Midland & Scottish Railway—Southern Railway—and the Great Southern Railway of Ireland, have opened a joint travel office at 551 Fifth Avenue New York, known as the Associated British Railways, Inc.

Here, at this bureau, a trained staff is in a position to furnish all information and literature regarding travel in Great Britain and Ireland—and to the Continent by means of steamship services operated from British ports by the London & North Eastern Railway and Southern Railway.

Reservations can be made for all steamship, railway, road and air transportation; hotels, sightseeing, etc., anywhere in Great Britain and Ireland or on the Continent.

Associated British Railways, Inc. are official agents for all steamship lines, and while our principal object is the promotion of railway travel in Great Britain, we are in a position to reserve and book everything for your European trip, here, under one roof.

Good cooks, as well as fine ladies, have changed the course of History

The history books are full of stories about Venus, Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, Nell Gwynne and all the other lovely ladies who had a successful career in the history-making business. But we search in vain for some mention of those equally important women who baked the beans or made the sauces that have swayed the destinies of nations.

Horatio, without a good breakfast, could never have held even a small bridge. The Duke of Wellington didn’t defeat Napoleon on an empty stomach. And certainly no king was ever inspired by cold soup to give his subjects a new deal. That’s why it’s so important right now, while so much history is in the making, to be a good cook.

You will find A & P a useful ally in causing future historians to point to you in pride. When you shop at A & P you command the services of an army of men enlisted to bring you the best food at reasonable prices.
