COVER STORY

Following the signing of the Constitution of the United States of America in Philadelphia in September, ratification became the most important topic of the day.

On December 7, 1787, a Delaware convention voted unanimously for the adoption of the U.S. Constitution—the first state to do so. Delawareans commonly refer to their state as the "First State" because of this ratification.

The cover photo features the grandeur of the State House on The Green in Dover, Delaware's capital city. In nearby Battell's Tavern, the state's delegates signed the Ratification Document. The State House stands on the site of a 1722 county courthouse. It is the second oldest state house in continuous use in America. Its construction in 1792 used some of the materials from the original 1722 building.

The photograph is used through the courtesy of the Delaware State Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs.

Dear Friends,

"’Tis the season to be jolly.’” ’Tis also the season to be filled with the joy, the wonderment, love and beauty of Christmas. Let us always be mindful of the spirit of Christmas and its true meaning—the celebration of the birth of the baby who changed the world. No matter how we celebrate—decorations, music, gifts, parties, cards, festive lights, the truest Christmas is the Christmas in our hearts.

Merry Christmas to all.

Search and research for the character of one Jacob Broom, Delaware's only native-born Signer of the Ratification of the Constitution of the United States of America, has proved to be a challenging study! He was a noble philanthropist, descendant of royalty, and a promoter of ulterior ideals for his family, community and country. He was a practising Christian and generous with his immense wealth—yet, with the exception of a street in Wilmington, Delaware, bearing his name and his signature on the Ratification, he is nearly forgotten! There is not even a known likeness remaining for posterity.

Ironically, after leaving his son, James, an entire graveyard, Jacob Broom lies in an unmarked grave in Christ Churchyard in Philadelphia.

It is difficult to surmise the motivation behind this great American patriot. His record of public life is well documented, but his private life and fame remain obscure.

Born in 1752, in Wilmington, to James and Esther Broom, he was never baptized in a church—a fact he seemed to have resented. His mother was a Quaker and attended meetings at Old Friends Meeting House in Wilmington, Delaware, but Jacob began worshipping in Old Swedes Church as a small boy. In ensuing years, all of his children were baptized there. He became devoted to the pastor of the church and was greatly affected by the courageous pride and patriotism of this mentor. We find his later life emulated these ideals.

James Broom was a blacksmith. This occupation was considered "gentry" during the 18th century. If a proprietor of a business owned considerable real estate and had gold and silver investments, he was ranked as one of the "400." The "class" of his standing was determined by the circumstances of his birth, his education and his worldly possessions. Thus, in his youth, Jacob was exposed to the cultural advantages with which he endowed his own family. His father was a direct descendant of the royal Plantagenet family, who lost the throne of England to Richard II in 1399. The family adopted the Plantagenet axiom, "Illiterate, base nobles are the clowns of heraldry."

In 1765, when he was thirteen, he delighted in the instruction and education he received at the Old Academy on Market Street between Eighth and Ninth streets in Wilmington. His studies in the classics never ceased; therefore, it seems odd that he would choose the profession of surveying. We must recall that this was an occupation of great importance during the 18th century and proved very profitable to all engaged in land measurements.

By the time he was twenty-four, Jacob was an outstanding young man among his two thousand fellow Wilmingtonians. The city was called a borough then, being more of a residential hamlet than a center of industry.

Jacob Broom was a quiet, studious and industrious gentleman who had pursued his self-education in history and jurisprudence until he was considered a "scholar of high order." Nevertheless, he exhibited a positive stubbornness where he saw injustice and became an active political opponent of "taxation without representation." This attitude probably led to his introduction and subsequent marriage to Miss Rachel Pierce, daughter of Robert and Elizabeth Pierce from Greenville, Delaware. The Pierces were devoted to the patriots' cause to the extent that, during the Revolution, a special detail of British soldiers was organized to take Robert Pierce captive. The detail failed in its assignment.

The mutual interest of the sweethearts supposedly led to a happy and fruitful marriage. Their union produced eight children — two of whom are mentioned here later as being famous in their own right. DAR members all over Delaware are trying to trace their ancestry to the three sons and five daughters of Jacob and Rachel Broom.

Although Jacob Broom never neglected his family or his profession, his political importance spiraled and he soon became the Second Burgess of Wilmington. His election in 1776 was only the first of five successive terms. The position was relative to the office of assistant. In turn, he enjoyed four terms as Chief Burgess.

His real estate holdings, which he administered personally, were vast and his family lived amidst a wealthy atmosphere in the Nicholas Way mansion at (Continued on page 897)
The proposed Family and Medical Leave Bill, popularly known as the Mandated Parental Leave bill, doesn't have anything to do with maternity or with the disability connected with childbirth. We already have a Pregnancy Anti-Discrimination Law. Two-thirds of U.S. companies grant maternity leave and, in most companies, maternity medical costs are included in the health and medical benefits plan.

The proposed Mandated Parental Leave bill is a proposal to force employers to skew their employees' benefit package in favor of one narrow group of workers at the expense of others. The proposed bill is highly discriminatory in favor of highly-paid, two-earner yuppie couples who, as a practical matter, would be the only ones able to benefit.

The proposed bill is highly discriminatory against every other type of employee: the men whose wives are full-time homemakers and mothers, the single parents and all low-income workers who could not afford to take off unpaid time, women over child-bearing age, all singles, self-employed persons, women who work at home, and all temporary workers including the one who replaces the one who receives the parental leave.

The proposed bill is highly discriminatory in the burden it imposes on some types of employers. Its costly mandate would fall more heavily on businesses which employ a majority of women since, as a practical matter, more women would receive the benefits.

The proposed bill would discriminate against small businesses because the costs and loss of productivity that result from training and substituting a temporary worker are more costly when a small business has only one person in a given job category rather than a pool of workers who can be transferred.

Other costs of the bill include carrying double health and medical benefits during the period of the leave, for both the employee on leave and the temporary worker who takes her place, and the cost of the unemployment insurance for the temporary worker who will be dismissed when the employee on leave returns to work.

The 13 million new jobs in the private sector in the last five years have been created by small businesses. Yet many small companies are struggling at the margin to stay in business and to meet foreign competition. Any newly-mandated cost will have to come at the expense of something else.

The proposed bill is a foolish approach to the problem of job security. In today's world, competitiveness is the name of the game, and a business that is not competitive simply cannot provide jobs for anyone. The most important job benefit anyone can have is a job that pays a wage.

The advocates of the proposed Mandated Parental Leave bill try to shame us by saying that other countries in the world have mandated parental leave. That's right, many other countries have made the mistake of mandating costly benefits, and they have mandated their citizens right out of jobs. Europe has had a net loss of a million jobs in the last couple of years, and unemployment is much higher than in the United States.

The proposed Mandated Parental Leave bill would be the wrong way to go even if it didn't cost anything. The whole trend of employee benefits in the country today is toward a "cafeteria" system of benefits.

Since employee benefits add an additional 33 to 40 percent of "goodies" over and above wages, it makes a real difference to workers which benefits they get. People's lifestyles and needs differ. The cafeteria approach allows each employee to choose the benefits that best suit his or her needs. To mandate a particular benefit desired by only one small group is unfair to others.

There isn't even any evidence that the unpaid parental leave mandated in this bill is the specific benefit that every working mother would choose. Mothers of small children might prefer other benefits, such as a more inclusive health and medical plan, a pension plan, more paid vacation or holidays, a work day that is one hour shorter, a four-day work week, flexible time schedules, job sharing, or child-care facilities or vouchers.

The tremendous array of other employee benefits in the American economy has grown up voluntarily, either from employers' decisions or collective bargaining. These include paid holidays and vacations, health and medical plans, and pension plans. There is no evidence that the job benefits available in America would be as high as they are today if government had straitjacketed business by mandating the benefits chosen by the posturing politicians.

The advocates of the Mandated Parental Leave bill complain that we have no national child care policy. On the contrary, we do. Our successful policy is to let employers and employees work out their own solutions. That's the system that works the best and fairest of all.

WHAT GOVERNMENT SHOULD DO FOR MOTHERS. Do we believe that the Federal Government should be concerned about the financial bind that Americans are in today when it comes to the costs of having and raising children? You bet we do. We believe that Congress has an obligation, first of all, to eliminate the current discrimination that exists against some kinds of children and their mothers and in favor of other kinds of children and their mothers.

While de facto discrimination against various groups still exists in practice, in some areas and against some minorities, de jure discrimination (specified in the law) has been pretty much eliminated. When challenged, legal discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, or sex can hardly ever stand up in court, and it's hard to find a lawmaker at the Congressional or state level who has the temerity to propose a discriminatory bill.

There is one class of Americans, however, that still is openly and massively discriminated against. This class of Americans is made up of the 16 million fulltime homemakers. The discrimination is most blatant in the income tax law. Nobody really defends the discriminatory provisions. Public officials and media spokesmen just evade the issue by not talking about it.

The income tax law discriminates against the mothers who take care of their own children, and in favor of the mothers who pay someone else to take care of their children. It's so outrageous that one wonders how the lawmakers had the nerve to pass something so unfair.

You can see it for yourself on line 41 of the 1986 income tax return Form 1040 which most people are preparing right now, and on attachment Form 2441. If you pay someone else to take care of your children under age 15, you can reduce your income taxes up to $1,440 for two or more children. But the mother who cares for her own children? Tough for her, she is denied these tax credits.

How could this be written into federal law without a big public policy debate? One explanation might be that the two-earner couples, having an average of $11,000 a year more family income to spend than the traditional breadwinner-homemaker couples, are more aggressive in demanding tax reductions and preferential treatment, while the mother who is not employed is less able to go public about her needs. Another explanation might be that the social service bureaucracy lobbied for these changes in order to create a bigger demand for more government-financed child care services.

One way to remedy this discrimination is to "universalize" the child care credit, that is, make it universally available to all children regardless of the lifestyle of their mothers. This could be done fairly and efficiently at $500 per child for the 19 million children under age six.

Now we can hear the argument, "but that is too costly!" Costly? There should be no price tag on discrimination. When it comes to taxes, fairness is far more important than cost.

An alternate remedy for this discrimination would be to trade off the child care credit for a $1,000 increase in the tax exemption for all children. We could increase it from the $2,000 figure established in the new tax reform law to $3,000. If the cost argument is raised again, the increased exemption could be limited to children under age 15, or even under age 6.

Actually, the children's tax exemption ought to be $5,000 if a child were to be worth as much in the income tax system today as a child was worth 35 years ago.

Another provision of the income tax law that discriminates against homemakers is the Individual Retirement Account (the IRAs). Under the new tax reform act that was passed last year, the number of people eligible to take the IRA deduction is greatly diminished, but the discrimination in IRAs is still as unjust as it has been.

Check it for yourself on line 26 of Form 1040. If both husband and wife are employed, they can put a total of $4,000 per year into IRA accounts. But if the wife is a fulltime homemaker (whom Internal Revenue falsely calls a "nonworking spouse"), the couple can put a total of only $2,250 into IRA accounts, which is a discrimination of $1,750 per year plus all the income that produces for the rest of their lives.

Like any employed man or woman, the fulltime homemaker will grow old and need funds in her senior years. Why is the homemaker denied her equal opportunity to save tax-free funds for retirement in IRAs?

Mandated Parental Leave, the current trendy issue promoted by the feminists, is a plan to give one more preferential benefit to the employed mother which, as a practical matter, cannot be used by the fulltime mother.

Mandated Parental Leave is another discriminatory benefit that would force the traditional family, which provides its own child care on a lower average income, to subsidize the two-earner couples who have a higher average income. Mandated Parental Leave should be rejected first of all because it is a new discrimination against a class of mothers already savagely discriminated against.

This testimony was given to the Subcommittee on Labor-Management Relations of the U.S. House Committee on Education and Labor, March 5, 1987.
WHOM WILL PAY FOR PARENTAL LEAVE?
By Dr. Allan C. Carlson

Is "parental leave" the way to go? When one actually looks at the differential or discriminatory impact of the currently favored plan, the answer is no. As in all state-mandated benefits, there would be winners and losers, and the losers under the parental leave plan would be fairly numerous.

Who would bear the negative costs for this attempt at social reconstruction? There appear to be four groups:

Small businesses. Large companies with employees numbering in the thousands find it relatively easy to cover a four-month vacancy caused by a parental leave through the use of similarly trained personnel. Small companies have much less flexibility and would commonly face great problems of filling a skilled vacancy with short-term help. The real, if somewhat invisible, costs of providing leave would also have to come out of some other pocket, possibly through a reduction in other benefits or in a greater reluctance, at the margins, to hire new employees.

Lower income families. An unpaid leave of absence is tailored primarily to the needs of highly paid, professional women who can afford more easily a period of time without income. The working poor and families at the lower end of the income scale have less "choice" here and receive a "benefit" that they cannot afford, while probably losing other benefits that employers might have offered.

Traditional families. Behind all the hype about the massive flow of mothers into the labor force lurks one little-noticed fact: nearly half of mothers with children age three and younger are not in the labor force. About the same proportion do not return to work after their first child's birth; they become a clear majority of mothers after the second and third births. Often at considerable personal and professional sacrifice, these women continue to perform the socially valuable task of nurturing small children on a full-time basis. The "opportunity cost" (foregone income) of this choice is, on average, nearly $16,000 a year. It is unclear why this financial sacrifice for family-supportive ends should receive no recognition from the government, while working mothers demand benefits for which others (small businesses, the poor, the traditional) will directly or indirectly pay.

One possible response is that leaves should be transformed into a government maternity grant, paid to all mothers, whether working or not. While plausible, the answer simply reveals how partial measures, in face of the equity problem, quickly descend down the welfare state's slippery slope.

Children. Common sense tells us that an ideological vision, however fine in theory, cannot turn women into fathers or men into mothers. Social research, fortunately, confirms the same point and suggests that efforts to create the envisioned "new human type" are futile and can only damage the children. A team of research psychologists headed by Michael Lamb set out in 1980 to determine whether "nontraditional" Swedish fathers, who, under various state pressures, had taken parental leave to care full time for their infant children, were as effective as stay-at-home mothers and more effective than "traditional" fathers who worked. Measuring qualitative actions such as discipline, play, and affection, the team hypothesized that a reversal in sex roles and the assumption of "the primary caretaker role" by the father would result in an effectively nurturing, unisex parent.

To their surprise, though, they found that mothers—whether working or at home—proved more likely to hold, tend, vocalize to, smile at, and display affection toward their infants than did fathers, whether traditional or "caretaking." Moreover, they discovered that while traditional mothers engaged in more effective play with infants than working mothers, the opposite effect occurred among men: traditional "working" fathers engaged in better play with their infants than "nontraditional" fathers. In other words, men did not change even after being the full-time caretaking parent; in some ways, in fact, they became less effective.

In sum, women remained better mothers; men remained better fathers; and social engineering had failed. The researchers reluctantly concluded that biological gender was apparently a more important influence on parental behavior than caretaking role or sex role. They did, though, hold out hope that truly "radical changes in gender-related prescriptions and expectations" might still make a difference. In the interim, though, it was clear that infants made by the social engineers to suffer the full-time caretaking of their fathers were paying the price of stunted psychological and emotional development.

We should focus on the problem itself: the collapse of the historic family-wage economy in the United States and our failure to acknowledge or correct the situation. By 1976, only 40 percent of American jobs paid enough to support a family of five in minimal comfort, not so long ago the standard measure of a fair wage. Today the figure is closer to 25 percent. Particularly on the lower and low-middle sectors of the income scale, there is truth to the cry of women and men that two incomes are needed just to get along. We know, for example, that perceived "income inadequacy" is tied heavily to employment in the "service sector," where the large majority of new female workers is concentrated.

Finally, as George Gilder has recently pointed out, it is a great mistake to view "working women" as a uniform mass of full-time laborers. In 1984, only 37 percent of all women ages 20 to 64 held full-time, year-round jobs (including teaching). The large majority were either homemakers or holding seasonal or part-time work. Even managerial, professional, and executive women—by a 51 to 19 percent margin—still prefer seasonal or part-time to full-time work, if they can find it. A parental leave policy constructed to help meet an ideological vision of dubious, if not absurd, policy constructed to help meet an ideological vision of dubious, if not absurd, dimensions and catering primarily to the needs of the richest segment of the target population does almost nothing to accommodate this great complexity.

The family-wage problem and the real diversity of family working arrangements can both be addressed, though, through a "supply-side" family policy, allowing parents to keep more of their earned income through tax deductions and credits keyed to birth, age, and number of children. The components of such a plan could include: (1) raising the personal exemption, for children only, to $4,000 per child; (2) granting an indexed, $500 child-care tax credit to every family for each dependent preschool child, up to a maximum of $1,000 (at present, the credit is available only to parents who hire someone else to care for their children).

And, then there is the correspondence! It takes three secretaries and part time help to keep up with it.

ANN D. FLECK
President General

The First Vice President General, Mrs. Richard O. Creedon, gave her report.

Report of First Vice President General

Since the April 18th National Board meeting, all sessions of Continental Congress and the April 24th Board meeting were attended. On April 25th, the National C.A.R. Banquet was enjoyed. Work on the Handbook continued. Indiana May District meetings were attended in Anderson, Greenwood and Seymour. On May 23rd, this officer joined Mrs. M. H. Miller, Indiana State Regent, and Vice President General, Mrs. Howard Lee, to drive to Tamassee DAR School, South Carolina, on May 25th where the Executive Committee meeting and the Board meetings were attended.

We flew to Boston to attend DAR Day at Hillside School in Marlborough May 27-29, which was very well attended. Had nice visits with Headmaster and Mrs. John N. Butler, and Mrs. Hook, Massachusetts State Regent. Flew to Washington, D.C. May 29th for work, Executive Committee meetings and NSDAR Board meeting on June 5th. Returned to Washington to work on the Handbook for the week of July 12.

This officer, and Mrs. M. H. Miller, Indiana State Regent, drove to Chautauqua, New York on July 22nd for DAR Day. It was a delightful time, thank you to Mrs. Jack Clark, who was our hostess. It was nice to see Vice President General, Mrs. Theobald, and visit with her.

Spent the week of July 26th in Washington finishing up the "paste up" of the NSDAR Handbook. On Sunday, August 2nd rode with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lee to Tamassee DAR School, South Carolina, for the Executive Board meeting. Gave program and showed tape of Continental Congress to the Horseshoe Prierie Chapter, Noblesville, Indiana. A mini-Executive Committee meeting was attended in Cape Cod, Massachusetts, August 16th to 20th, where we had an agenda of over 100 items.

September 11 flew to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania to speak at the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution meeting of the General Richard Butler Chapter, Mrs. Peter Leo, Regent. On the 12th was guest at fund-raising luncheon of the Colonel William Wallace Chapter. On Sunday, the 13th attended St. Andrews United Presbyterian Church service honoring the Bicentennial of the Constitution where both DAR and SAR were honored. Drove to Washington with my hostess, Mrs. Edgar Weir, Historian General for work in the office. Drove with Mrs. Weir and the President General to Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, for the busy five-day DAR Celebration for the Bicentennial of the Constitution. Mrs. Gavin C. Barr, Chairman, executed wonderful plans for a never-to-be-forgotten occasion. Those of us who marched in the parade had many interesting experiences with recognition of DAR.

The Handbooks were delivered to Headquarters on September 17th. We had taken bids for the printing and they were printed for less than half the cost of those three years ago. They are heavier and only the picture section is on slick paper, thereby cutting down the reflection. Two new picture pages were added. This officer is deeply indebted to Miss Jean Jacobs and Miss Sandy Johnson for the hard work in proofreading the Handbook and to Ann Kane for her typing and willingness to help.

On September 22nd flew with Mrs. M. H. Miller, Indiana State Regent, to Rhode Island to be a speaker at their fall meeting. Mrs. Robert W. Causey, Rhode Island State Regent, gave us a wonderful tour of Newport. She drove us to Norwich, Connecticut for the Connecticut Fall State meeting where this officer spoke, Mrs. Harold S. Hemstreet, Connecticut State Regent. From the 26th through the 29th, attended the Indiana State Conference, Mrs. M. H. Miller, State Regent.

On the 30th of September drove from Indianapolis to St. Louis with Mrs. Gabriel O. Saaedra, National Schools Chairman, to represent Tamassee at a fund-raising workshop. Mrs. H. Dean Bare and Mrs. Linda Chastain also attended. It was an excellent workshop. Returned to Indianapolis the evening of October 2nd.

Flew to Washington October 7th for work, and Executive meetings. Personnel Committee meetings were chaired June 5th and October 11th. We have had many changes in personnel. We hired a typesetter in June, but lost two printers in September and October. Mrs. Holland, Recording Secretary General’s Office, retired last week. Two positions were eliminated in Registrar General, Clerical. Since April 1986, 14 positions have been eliminated, seven new ones created, at a saving to the NSDAR of approximately $92,000 annually. We are doing all we can to compensate for the lack of a sufficient dues raise.

It has been a busy DAR summer and fall.

Chaplain General

The Recording Secretary General, Mrs. Kemper, gave her report.

Report of the Recording Secretary General

Every month is a busy month in the Office of the Recording Secretary General. This is especially true from April through October.

During April we are preparing for the Continental Congress, receiving reports, verifying candidates for election to the offices of Vice President General and Honorary Vice President General and During the week of Continental Congress we strive to meet all requests and accommodate those who discover they left out "the most important" part of their reports. The minutes of each business session must be prepared for reading the next day and this year we keenly felt the absence of Mrs. Floy Swanson who served our Society so faithfully in preparing these minutes for more than 50 years. Her retirement left a void for us.

We are so pleased to have her with us for the October Board and to take the verbatim report. Another lady, here with us today for the first time, is Mrs. Miriam Huffines, serving as Administrative Assistant. Mrs. Frances Holland retired this past week. We wish her well both in good health and enjoyment of leisure.

The Resolutions adopted at the 96th Continental Congress were edited, proofed and printed.

Board meeting minutes were prepared for publication in the DAR Magazine. Verbatim transcripts and minutes were recorded and indexed.

Minutes of Executive Committee meetings were written and copies sent to all members of the Committee, copied for binding in book form and indexed. Rulings affecting the work in each office were typed and made available to that office.

It was our pleasure to prepare and mail the commissions to the newly installed members of the National Board of Management.

Several pieces of the desk top publishing equipment were delivered to the Recording Secretary General's office just prior to Continental Congress and all was to be operational by the end of April. Efforts made in April and May to have the company deliver the remainder of the equipment and install it for use were at no avail. It is an unfortunate reality in the business world that the computer market maintains such an unequal balance between sales and service support.

And so, at the time of the June meetings of the Executive Committee we were at the same point of installation as we had been in April. We were behind in the preparation of the data for the printer and our contract for the printing of the proceedings was based on desk preparation. This officer, with the assistance of two staff members from the mail room and accompanied by Mrs. Butts, Reporter General, personally returned the equipment to the supplier, notifying the supplier that the contract had not been fulfilled on the part of the company, and therefore the National Society refused to accept the order, negating the transaction.

We contracted with another firm for the same equipment. The computer, reader and printer are now operational. The staff received instructions for its use during June.

The editing, recording and indexing of the verbatim transcript for each session of the Continental Congress is especially time-consuming. All written reports of National Officers, State Regents and National Chairmen must be proofread and edited. It has been a push to complete the needed data for the printer. Even the printer has had to adjust to the new process of automatic typesetting. The transformation into automation literally changes the way the proceedings is compiled. The long term benefits will outweigh the short term, but real, frustrations of change.

Your copy of the Annual Proceedings will be ready the latter part of October. It will be a tribute to the cooperation of the President General and the dedication of a superb staff. This officer expresses profound appreciation to our tireless staff in the office of the Recording Secretary General; Frances Holland, Administrative Assistant, Miriam Huffines, Isabel Allmon and Helen Ball.

Since April 24, 1987, 2475 Certificates of Membership have been prepared and mailed, 17 reissuued, 27 reissued, 7 paid, for a total of 2526. Eighteen Commissions were issued to State Regents, Vice Regents, and National Officers.

Notices of meetings of the National Board of Management and Executive Committee were prepared and mailed.

This office has received endorsements of candidates for the office of Vice President General and Honorary Vice President General. All necessary forms and information were sent.

The evening following the adjournment of the 96th Continental Congress, this officer attended the C.A.R. Awards Banquet as a guest of the California State Society.

After returning home she welcomed the members of Gold Trail Chapter as hostess for the May meeting. She installed the newly elected officers and reported on Continental Congress.

The meeting of District II was held on May 19 in Rocklin, California. This officer was pleased to hear the State Regent, Mrs. Jerry J. Strayer, report on the Congress activities.

On the 23rd of May, she flew to Huntsville, Alabama, to attend the graduation ceremonies of Kate Duncan Smith DAR School and the Board of Trustees meeting which followed. It is a privilege to serve on the Advisory Committee for that Board.

She then traveled by car with other Daughters on the 25th of May to Tamassee DAR School for the activities there.

On the 27th she accompanied the First Vice President General, Mrs. Creedon, and the DAR Schools Chairman, Mrs. Saavedra, as they flew to Massachusetts. They were met upon arrival in Boston by Mr. John N. Butler, Headmaster of Hillside School. He gave them a quick moving tour of the school grounds before taking them to their hotel.

DAR Day at Hillside on the 28th was a delight. It was a real joy to meet the boys and the staff, tour the building and observe the livestock on the school's farm. The Daughters certainly came in great numbers to show their support and love for the school.

It was off to Washington on the 29th where we worked in our offices and attended Executive meetings the following week and the National Board meeting on the 5th of June. A reception, in honor of Abraham Baldwin, was attended in the DAR Museum, hosted by the District of Columbia Daughters, Mrs. May Day Taylor, State Regent.

The Sacramento Chapter of SAR held a meeting at McClellan Air Force Base Officers Club on June 19th which was attended by this officer with her husband.

The Dedication of a Marker on the USS Battleship Missouri, anchored at Pier 3 in the San Francisco harbor, on July 6, was the highlight of the summer. The Recording Secretary General participated in this Bicentennial of the Constitution project. It was a beautiful day, clear skies, sunshine and many happy people. The Daughters of District IV had planned and coordinated this lovely program. The State Historian, Mrs. Kenneth Thomas and the District Director, Mrs. Donald C. Veronda, were honored to have the Librarian General, Mrs. Richard P. Taylor, in attendance. It was on this great battlefield that the Document of Surrender was signed by the Japanese on September 2, 1945 and the ship's motto remains, 'Strength for Freedom.'

On September 1st, this officer attended the Southern California Council meeting in Riverside where over 400 Daughters were in attendance.

She then drove to Visalia, California following that meeting where she was the house guest of Mrs. Frank Jaggers. The following day, she spoke on our Constitution at a luncheon sponsored by the Kaweah Chapter, Mrs. Jaggers, Regent.

The 5th day of September, this officer attended a reception honoring the Regent of Sacramento Chapter, Mrs. Betty Rameiser, and her officers. Sacramento Chapter is the largest chapter in California.

September 8th found her traveling to San Francisco for the Northern California Council meeting held at the Marriott Hotel, where 180 Daughters were in attendance.

Philadelphia and the Bicentennial of the Constitution celebration was her destination on the 15th of September as she flew east. The Daughters who participated in this event will long remember the happy times shared with our President General on this historic occasion. Mrs. Gavin C. Barr and her committee must be complimented on a job well done in planning and coordinating the tour.

On September 20th this officer was the overnight guest of Mrs. J. Lewis Farlander in Rhode Island. The following day, she was the guest of the State Regent of Rhode Island, Mrs. Robert W. Causey, who was a most gracious and hospitable hostess. It was a pleasure to be a speaker at the Fall Meeting there.

Mrs. Causey drove her guests to Connecticut, where we were the overnight guests of Mrs. Harold S. Hemstreet, State Regent. This officer was honored to be a guest speaker at the Fall Meeting in this
The Gold Trail Chapter celebrated its 10th Birthday on October 5 and the Recording Secretary General was honored as the Organizing Chapter Regent of this fine group of women.

Report of Treasurer General

Following Continental Congress all Chapter Regents and State Treasurers received notices of the Bylaw changes concerning fees and dues.

The Chairman of Finance Committee, Mrs. Catherine C. Clark, gave the report of the Finance Committee.

Report of Finance Committee
The Finance Committee met Monday, October 12, 1987. Members attending were Mesdames Catherine Clem Clark, Chairman; John S. Bisce, Vice Chairman; Raymond Franklin Fleck, President General; Richard O. Creedon, First Vice President General; Henry A. Klle, Treasurer General; Gavin C. Barr; Doris H. Diebold; and Mr. Edward J. Burns, Jr., Auditor, NSDAR.

For your information, we have 397 Life Members fully paid and 55 partially paid. The total amount of the Fund, including interest, is $224,000.

We are negotiating this morning with the American Security Bank concerning the Liquid Asset Management Program to keep the minimum checking account balance as near to the current figures as possible. Hopefully we will be successful.

The Finance Committee recommended to the Executive Committee that the reinstatement of $112,000 received from the insurance company for prior year legal expenses be transferred from the Current Fund to the Endowment Fund in order to bring that Fund's principal to a larger amount capable of earning more interest toward payment of the increased cost of steam and electricity brought about by the Climate Control Project.

You have seen in your packet the budget and the actual figures for the last six months.

The bottom figure for the Current Year shows a profit of $7,511 compared to a budget loss estimate of $120,036. Before you get too happy thinking how well we are doing, I have asked Mr. Burns to comment on these figures.

Mr. Burns explained that since we are on a cash basis certain figures for large bills paid in September apply to the month of August, thus increasing the deficit for the first six months of the 1987-88 fiscal year to $130,489.

Catherine Clem Clark
Chairman

Mrs. Clark presented Edward J. Burns, Jr., Auditor, for a few comments.

The Chairman of Auditing Committee, Miss Jane-Elizabeth Har-
The Registrar General, Mrs. Donald D. Zimmerman, gave her report.

Report of Registrar General

I am pleased to report we are continuing to make progress in reducing the backlog of supplementals.

It is imperative that application papers be more carefully prepared and documented. Step by Step Instructions as revised October 1986 must be followed.

The Registrar General was part of a panel which included NSDAR Staff Genealogists at the National Genealogical Society Conference in Raleigh, NC in May. In June she conducted an all day workshop for Kentucky Daughters, Mrs. Martin Thompson, State Regent. In August she conducted a workshop and forum for West Virginia Daughters, Mrs. Gary Gess, State Regent and in September conducted a workshop and was the luncheon speaker for the Wisconsin Fall Workshop, Dr. Marilyn Baxter, State Regent.

She was a guest of Dr. Silas Hamilton Chapter, IL at which time she rode in Vintage car for the Jersey County Fair Parade. She has spoken to Illinois Division V and VII Workshops and Illinois DAR DAY in Decatur.

A great deal of time is devoted to the large volume of correspondence of this office and in working with staff so that we can better serve the Society in securing new members.

I have the honor to present the Board the following report:

Martha R. Zimmerman, Registrar General

The Organizing Secretary General, Mrs. Alex W. Boone, gave her report.

Report of Organizing Secretary General

This office has encouraged the trend of chapters merging their membership and their assets versus disbandment. The process makes for stronger leadership. At this Board six chapters decided to follow this route. However, we regret the disbandment of nine chapters. The official chapter count as of this date is 3,128.

There have been 6,388 applications and supplementals processed through this office since March.

Would you please alert your respective State Membership that the fee for applications is now $40.00, that black ink is a requirement instead of blue which fades in time and that these must be typed or neatly printed on original application blanks. We unfortunately had to return 350 applications because of these problems.

There has been a problem concerning the addition of a new Division. To clarify it, the following changes needed to be made: The Southwestern Division was established for the following States: Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah. The first number for the computer code was changed to 8, which indicates this new Division. The first number of the computer code was changed to 9 for the following Countries: England, France, Mexico, Canada, Australia.

We are in the process of revising our book, "Promoting and Conserving Our Chapters," and welcome suggestions to make this pamphlet a more useful and meaningful tool.

The Credential Blank has been modified for easier comprehension. To help alleviate any difficulties occurring at Continental Congress as to the legality of a voter's privilege, we request that all State Regents bring in April their chapter's Credential Blanks.

It was a privilege for this officer to participate in the NSDAR Celebration of the Constitution's Bicentennial in Philadelphia as well as being the luncheon speaker at the Massachusetts Fall Meeting in Plymouth, Mrs. Eric G. Hook, State Regent.

My staff and I are eager to help solve your problems. My appreciation goes to the personnel of this office for their cooperation and invaluable help in carrying out the duties of this busy office: Mrs. Pierce Acred, Administrative Assistant; Mrs. Elba Rivera, Mrs. Jerice Wilson and Miss Rose Gadson.

Through the State Regent the following Member-at-Large is now presented for confirmation as an Organizing Regent:

Mrs. Edna Early Thomas, Goshen, Ohio.

Through the Units Overseas Chairman the following Member-at-Large is now presented for confirmation as an Organizing Regent:

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Shoemaker Davis, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia.

We invite you to come and see the beautiful displays in the Americana Room...your room! Your continuing contributions, both in the form of historical materials and monetary assistance, have enabled the American Collection to expand and the archival staff to mount new displays. Currently, three exhibits may be viewed. Two of these honor the Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States of America. The large exhibit entitled "The 39 Signers of the Constitution" focuses on the men who signed the Constitution on September 17, 1787. Drawing upon materials found in the Americana Collection, both engravings of each man, as well as documents autographed by each signer, have been included in the exhibit. Short biographical sketches of each of the signers complete this display. The other display focusing on the Bicentennial, "The Constitutional Debate of 1787, Voices of Dissent," features copies of two major documents in the Americana Collection, George Mason’s Objections to the Constitution and Richard Henry Lee’s Propositions to Amend the Constitution. The third exhibit in the Americana Room, “From Paper to Stone: Preserving the Architectural Record,” explains the conservation techniques recently employed by the NSDAR archival staff to preserve the 1500 blueprints, pencil drawings and reports pertaining to the NSDAR building complex in Washington, D.C. Do come and see your beautiful Americana Room.

The following donations and additions have been made to the Americana Collection, the NSDAR Archives, the Special Collections Pertaining to NSDAR History, and the Historical Research Library between April and October, 1987. The list of acquisitions has been arranged according to date of receipt.

The Librarian General, Mrs. Richard Powell Taylor, gave her report.

Report of Librarian General

The expansion of the Library's book collection continues at a steady pace. In the six months from April 1 to October 1, 1987, 1,458 new books were donated or purchased. This was a slight increase over the same period in 1986. Among the more noteworthy additions have been various indices for several states to the 1860 federal census, the Index to The Confederate Veteran magazine, a complete set of the periodical The Colonial Genealogist, eleven volumes of will abstracts for Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (1682-1825), fourteen volumes of abstracts of marriage and death notices from Philadelphia newspapers (1791-1865) and twelve volumes of the series New York Historical Records: Dutch. New books for the American Indian Collection total 105.

To continue this growth and to encourage State Librarians and members to donate books needed by the Library, the staff has prepared "Lists of Requested Books" for most states. Multiple copies of these lists (enough for each chapter) were sent to the State Librarians in mid-September. These lists were prepared on computer for the first time, after the Data Processing staff developed a data base especially to meet the Library's needs. The Librarian General and the members of the Library Staff wish to thank Linda Hatfield and the other staff members in Data Processing for their constant assistance on this summer project. Their efforts have helped to streamline a complicated procedure.

As part of the need to increase the security in the Library to protect our irreplaceable materials, a closed-circuit television surveillance system was installed in May. Monitors in the Library office and at the main guard desk provide visual supervision of the Library and book stacks. Additional security measures are also under consideration.

On November 1, 1987 Dr. George Nash, Presidential Scholar at the Hoover Presidential Library in Iowa, will deliver a paper in the DAR Library entitled: "The Libraries of the Nation's Founders." The lecture will be held at 3:00 p.m. and is open to the public. Dr. Nash has recently published volume two of a projected six-volume set on the contributions of Herbert Hoover to American history.

The Library lost a valued staff member to cancer when Mr. William (Kit) Carson died on July 8 after a prolonged illness. Mr. Carson had worked as a bookshelver in the Library for almost ten years and is missed by his co-workers and by those he helped in the Library.

Income from photocopies and entrance fees totalled $34,117.60 during the period of April 1 to October 1, 1987. Sales of both volumes of the DAR Library Catalog amounted to $3,526.17. Approximately 7,600 researchers used the Library during the same six-month period, including 733 who visited on Sundays. Assistance to the regular Sunday staff by local volunteers remains enthusiastic and constant.

The Friends of the Library Committee Chairman, Mrs. James A. Williams of Arkansas, expresses her sincere appreciation for the wonderful support members have given her committee and is confident that this support will continue. In the past six months forty-two new Life Members have joined the Friends donating $8,400. Contributions of all types have totalled $9,018.00. The Library will benefit greatly from this generosity.

The Librarian General greatly appreciates the efforts of all the members of the DAR Library staff and volunteer bookworms for their efficient and enthusiastic handling of the day to day details involved in the administration of the DAR Library.

The list of books received in the Library follows.

Report of Curator General

From mid-April through late July, Christine Minter-Dowd, Director, was on maternity leave. During her absence, Gloria Seaman Allen, Curator, acted on her behalf as Director and Curator of the Museum. She wishes to thank Mrs. Allen and everyone on the staff for their superb performance during the period of her absence.

Since her return, Mrs. Minter-Dowd has resumed her duties on a part-time schedule. Her activities have included assisting the Curator General, negotiating donations and loans for the Museum, and working with the DAR Museum Docents Training classes. She was especially pleased to be interviewed by a local radio station regarding the exhibition First Flowerings: Early Virginia Quilts.

From April through July, Curator Gloria Seaman Allen acted for the Director. In that capacity, she oversaw the administration of the Museum office and assisted the Curator General in the preparation of her Packet Letter, Museum Committee letter, and Museum computer reports. She also worked with the Curator General on policy decisions and arrangements for the Annual Congress and the June Board Meetings.

As Curator, Mrs. Allen was extensively occupied with final arrangements for the exhibition, First Flowerings: Early Virginia Quilts and with writing the accompanying catalogue. After the opening of the exhibition, she gave lectures on Virginia quilts to the Quilts Congress annual convention and to a group of quilters at Carlyle House. She spent a day at the Portsmouth Museum (Virginia) where she gave a lecture on American quilts, a gallery talk on the quilts loaned by the DAR to Portsmouth, and a quilt identification clinic. She also spoke on Maryland quilts as part of a lecture series, "Quilts: A Living History," in connection with the musical Quilters.

Mrs. Allen's other curatorial duties included the design and supervision of renovations in several state rooms, the review of objects offered as donations, the direction of the curatorial staff in their cataloguing and exhibition planning, and the presentation of lectures on the state rooms to the Docents Committee. As Education Consultants to the Washington Antiques Show Mrs. Allen advised the 1988-1989 chairman on the show's theme and loan exhibition, and she gave a lecture "Floral Images in the Decorative Arts" to the general committee.

Associate Curator, Denise McHugh, worked extensively interpreting, publicizing, and curating the Museum's collection. Within the reporting period, she spoke to groups from the Valentine Museum of Richmond, Virginia, a Washington quilting group, the DAR Museum Docents, and George Washington University graduate students. She also introduced over 660 elementary school children and day campers to the DAR Museum and presented the program "The Colonial Child." Tours of the period rooms by the Museum Docents followed her presentation. From July to October, this program incorporated activities related to the First Flowerings exhibition. With colleagues from nearby Museums, Miss McHugh trained 30 volunteers to give walking tours of the Federal City Neighborhood. Morning tours were scheduled through the summer months; increased visitation has resulted from this major effort. Additional educational activities included revising the Docent Handbook, with contributions by the entire curatorial staff; writing an article for the DAR Magazine and planning for a spring internship with George Washington University. Miss McHugh coordinated the production of the catalogue, First Flowerings (available for purchase from the Museum).

It was a busy time for publicity as well. Miss McHugh sent out a press release to over 700 publications and colleagues publicizing First Flowerings. Articles appeared in the Washington Post, Washington Times, Antiques, and a number of other publications. Also, several Museum objects were highlighted in a special Constitutional issue of Life magazine.

In terms of curatorial responsibilities, Miss McHugh mounted the exhibition, Geographical Views, on the Library Balcony. This show features maps, textbooks, textiles and globes related to the teaching of geography in early America. Two educational events were held in conjunction with Geographical Views. The Washington Map Society held their first meeting for 1987-1988 at the Museum, and Deborah Warner, a curator at the Smithsonian, gave an afternoon lecture in the Gallery on American globes.

Oliver Graffam assisted the Curator in the research, cataloguing, study and care of the DAR Museum collection. Her cataloguing and research efforts during this period were concentrated primarily on portraiture, silver and metal objects, and needlework. She also researched the social and economic history of Virginia between 1750 and 1850 as preparation for the catalogue, First Flowering. During the annual DAR Congress, Mrs. Graffam assisted the Curator with the research and study of objects brought to the museum by prospective donors. She also assisted the State Period Chairman or their representatives. In May, Mrs. Graffam attended a one-week lecture and laboratory seminar at National Archives, Going to the Source: An Introduction to Research in Archives which was graciously funded by the DAR. Mrs. Graffam continued to work with donors and lenders throughout the period. She also presented a lecture to the DAR Museum Docents in-training.

In preparation for First Flowerings: Early Virginia Quilts, Assistant Curator, Judith Nordin, corresponded with several scholars of Black History in an attempt to determine the role of Virginia slaves in textile production during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. She also performed extensive research in Virginia court records. Cataloguing of newly-accessioned objects continued along with attending genealogy, correspondence, and research. Among the objects of special interest catalogued by Mrs. Nordin are two recently purchased pieces of case furniture. She continued to work with donors and institutions' representatives requesting to borrow from the Museum's holdings.

Since the last report, Nancy Tuckhorn, Curatorial Assistant, has assisted the Curator with Virginia quilt research. She made numerous trips to Virginia to study probate records in York and Loudoun Counties and she studied the textile collections at Winterthur Museum and Colonial Williamsburg. Mrs. Tuckhorn acted as courier for quilts borrowed for the Virginia exhibition from museums and private lenders. She was instrumental in the donations of four quilts to the Museum. Mrs. Tuckhorn continues to catalogue quilts and textiles and she is currently planning an exhibition of doll and crib quilts For My Little One to open on November 16th on the Library Balcony.

In the past six months Mary Beth Kurth, Associate Registrar, spent considerable time acting as courier for incoming and outgoing loans. In mid-June, she travelled to Portsmouth, Virginia to deliver a collection of DAR Museum quilts to an exhibition at the Portsmouth Museum. July and August were spent arranging the return of objects borrowed for the Museum's exhibition, In the Style of the Signers: The Decorative Arts of Philadelphia. With the assistance of Sue King and Broncia Miller, Miss Kurth prepared 20 quilts for the quilt exhibition, First Flowerings: Early Virginia Quilts.

Eleanor Merica, Museum Shop Manager, and Catherine Tuggle, Museum Business Manager, spent the summer restocking the Shop after the Congress depletion. Among new items being featured are blue and white DAR canvas tote bags and stationery bearing an eagle design taken from a Museum quilt.

In September, Ms. Tuggle attended a Museum Stores Association Conference at Monticello in Charlottesville. Among topics discussed were direct mailings and mail orders for the museum shops.

Mrs. Merica has begun entering in calligraphy the names of the life members and memorial tributes to the Friends of the Museum and the DAR Museum Committees in the new leather volumes which will be placed in the Museum.

Report of Executive Committee

Plans are in motion for a DAR History to be written. DAR Good Citizen pin, certificate and card will now cost $2.50. The DAR Good Citizen State Winner pin $2.50; the DAR Manual for Citizenship, $2.50; the Flag certificate $2.00.

We have approved the renovation of the ceiling in the Board Room. It was damaged by a severe leak.

We have approved a safety test for all four elevators. That is required by the District of Columbia, and they are, of course, investigating the necessity for replacement of any elevators.

A rose project is in progress. They are developing an NSDAR Centennial rose.

We have negotiated many maintenance contracts for equipment—one maintenance contract runs around $23,000.

We have initiated a fund-raising for the "Signers and Delegates" Lunch Room.

We are renewing the contract for maintenance of the organ in Constitution Hall.

The Recording Secretary General read the following recommendations from the Executive Committee and moved their adoption:

To authorize the Administrators of Tamasee and KDS DAR Schools to maintain and use a mailing list to express personal appreciation to donors as well as seek grants and funds through personal appeal to individuals and corporations with the approval of their respective Boards of Trustees. Any appeal for funds from DAR members must be approved by the President General. Amended.

That the four approved schools—Berry College, Inc. (GA), Crossnore School, Inc. (NC), Hillside School Inc. (MA), Hindman Settlement School (KY), as well as Bacone College (OK)—may compile mailing lists to raise funds by direct personal appeal to DAR members and non-DAR members for school needs. Adopted.

That the following students be awarded Caroline E. Holt Nursing Scholarships in the amount of $400.00 each: Sheila L. Clark, Salem, OR; Candace Elizabeth Corley, Saluda, S.C.; Michelle Catherine Francois, Metairie, LA; Steven F. Johnston, Philadelphia, PA; Claudia Mary Schilling, Berkeley, CA; Lara Montgomery Smith, Lake View, S.C.; Elizabeth Willoughby, Colorado Springs, CO: Dianna Lynn Fawcett-Stair, Wooster, OH. Adopted.

The Building and Grounds Committee, Mrs. Lichtefeld, gave her report.

Report of Building and Grounds Committee

Many renovation projects have been accomplished during the past months—chiefly in repairing walls and painting.

The walls of the Banquet Hall have been completely restored and then painted. New tile replaced the worn out floor in both kitchen areas. The room is now in excellent shape.

The ceiling of the Connecticut Board Room was damaged by water dripping from the floor above. Estimates have been secured to replace the intricate design of the molding that has fallen down. That work will be accomplished in the next few weeks.
The National Officers Club Board Room has been redecorated. Walls needed replastered and the entire room painted. New drapes have been hung and the settee and two chairs reupholstered. The expense of this renovation was paid by the National Officers Club. Likewise, furniture was moved around to give more space for a meeting room.

A notice from the Elevator Inspection Division of the District of Columbia has notified us of a safety test due every five years. This is the year it must be done. This test consists of a capacity load put on the elevator and then the cab dropped to test its efficiency. Our representative from General Elevator Company who does our maintenance work will make arrangements for this test to be done on a basis of time and material. This is a must that we have no choice but to do it.

Destruction of wood in basement area led to supposition that there was evidence of termites. Estimates have been received and we will proceed with treatment in the near future.

Work on elaborate cabinets in the O'Byrne Room has been completed. These cabinets were designed by the late husband of Mrs. Marian Miller, State Regent of Indiana. They lend much dignity to the room. The house seats of all the States which were made by Mr. and Mrs. Medina. This Room was dedicated at a ceremony held October 14, 1987.

Social events held the past months include two receptions, two chapters meeting for lunch and three outside organizations using the Banquet Hall.

Constitution Hall had twenty-three commencement exercises in May and June. July, August and September were lean months but twenty-five shows are scheduled for October. Our Maintenance crew continues to keep things cleaned and polished.

It is the hope of this Chairman to start work now in the hallways. Plastering and painting is needed. Work on Pipes and Drums will start in a month or two. Because of this project redecorating is limited to areas not to be affected by work on the plumbing.

DOROTHY LICHTEFELD

The Chairman of DAR Magazine Committee, Mrs. Victor G. Marty, gave her report.

Report of DAR Magazine Committee

The Constitution has been called "The Miracle at Philadelphia." The "We the People" issue of DAR Magazine was a miracle as well. A number of factors made it impossible to keep the Magazine on its carefully pre-planned schedule. The staff is now down by four. The staff member who resigned in the summer of 1986 has not been replaced. Another retired this past June and we were deeply saddened this past week by the death of a third after a long illness. Staff medical problems, illnesses of family members and technical problems also were contributing factors. A fourth staff member has announced her resignation effective October 16th. Efforts are underway to find replacements — so please bear with us.

We, of the DAR Magazine Committee, and the staff are very proud of the "We the People" issue and we hope that you are as well. Pre-publication sales resulted in nearly 800 copies. Many of you have been kind enough to extend your compliments. We do thank you for taking the time to let us know.

DAR Magazine — 200 copies — went to Philadelphia for the Bicentennial Celebration. Each person on the NSDAR Celebration Tour was given a copy plus copies also were distributed to various dignitaries with whom we were associated on the trip.

A question frequently asked of this chairman in Philadelphia after the exclamations of delight was, "Why can't every issue be like this one?" The answer is advertising. The Magazine should have one page of advertising for each page of editorial content. I will not dwell upon this because it is in Miss Ginther's area. But please be reminded that the Magazine cannot be supported on subscription alone. It is simplistic to say — but none-the-less true — advertising pays the bills.

In June this chairman had the privilege of meeting some of the National Officers in Richmond, Virginia, for a tour of Byrd Press, the company which currently holds the contract for the printing of the DAR Magazine. The contract with Byrd began with the January 1987 issue. Byrd's printing plant in Richmond is truly "state-of-the-art," demonstrating the latest in modern technology. I wish you all could have had this opportunity. The few problems we have encountered with Byrd are transitional and are being solved as we get to know them and they get to know us. At the June meeting we prevailed upon Byrd Press executives to perfect bind the "We the People" issue as a gift to NSDAR. They complied and we are most appreciative.

Our committee is very anxious about the newly-established DAR Magazine Endowment Fund. A contribution of $100 entitles the donor to purchase a pin if she desires. The pin design is in progress. Contributions are being received in the Magazine office.

The subscriptions totaled 4,687 for the "We the People" issue. Please encourage renewals and new subscriptions within your state. The Magazine's recent renewal promotion resulted in 1,826 subscriptions. See that new members form the magazine habit early. Some chapters offer new members one-year gift subscriptions. This is an excellent idea.

State Regents, be aware of the new contest — an award to the state whose magazine chairman produces the best idea for increasing subscriptions in her state and implements it to reveal that increases occurred as a direct result of her promotional effort. The deadline is February 1 to your national vice chairman and March 1 to this chairman.

Do — please — continue your letters to the editor and to me. Your input is important to us. It is YOUR magazine.

MARJORIE GINTHER
Chairman

The Chairman of the DAR Magazine Advertising Committee, Mrs. Marjorie Ginther, gave her report.

Report of Magazine Advertising Committee

The DAR Magazine special issue commemorating the Bicentennial of the Constitution is a fitting and lasting tribute to one of the most important documents of the American people. It is a momento of the reverence, high regard and love with which that document is held in the Year 1987 by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Magazine Staff did a remarkable job and recognition should be given. Kudos to Mary Rose Hall, the Editor, for putting together an eye-catching, informative and professional issue; to Cheryl Estancona, Art Director, for her original cover, art work and unique design supporting the theme; to Karen Plunkett, Advertising Associate, for her beautiful photography and tribute to Constitution Hall and for researching and developing the theme used in the National Chairman's message; to Oretha Barbour, Circulation Director, Kathryn Cook and Bertha Hale, Circulation Staff, for getting the issue to you; AND Special recognition to the States and Chapters sponsoring Ads. They represented a lot of thought and creativity. Also, more importantly, your 100 pages of advertising enabled the Magazine to use the many interesting and informative articles and messages that have made this issue so special and wonderful.

Remember, the number of articles in every issue of the Magazine is determined by the amount of advertising received. Ideally, a page of editorial should always be supported by a page of advertising. If you would like to see more articles, urge your state and chapters to solicit more ads! Ads pay commission and also enable us to have a bigger and better Magazine. Don't forget commercial ads, especially those that will bring visitors to your historical areas. Many of the ads in the Special Bicentennial Issue were in reality pages of history. Perhaps, like me, you may want to visit the inn where "Things go bump in the night."

Promote your state sponsored co-op ads! This is a great time for your chapters to participate and to get the magazine advertising habit.

MARJORIE GINTHER
Chairman
The Chairman of DAR School Committee, Mrs. Gabriel O. Saavedra, gave her report.

Report of DAR School Committee
As we begin the second year of the “We The People” administration, let us challenge ourselves to surpass the accomplishments of the past year. The FRIENDS OF DAR SCHOOLS pin is now available to members who have contributed $200.00 or more. I challenge every chapter to have at least one DONOR. Sincere appreciation is expressed to the 43 Friends whose contributions have totaled $9,200.00 since Congress. Please promote the new FRIENDS OF DAR SCHOOLS contribution.

My appreciation goes to Miss Jean Kelsey, National Vice Chairman in Charge of the DAR School Supper, and her hard working committee for a successful and enjoyable evening. Please know how grateful I am to those who attended as well as to those who provided the delightful favors and appropriate decorations. The 1988 DAR School Supper will be held Thursday, April 21st. Please join us.

Additions, corrections and necessary changes were made by this chairman for the DAR School Committee in the 1987 DAR Handbook.

BERRY COLLEGE is the only college among the six schools designated by the DAR to receive assistance. Mr. Thomas C. Carver, Dean of Students, accompanied by Mrs. Carver, brought us informative messages during Continental Congress. Gifts received by Berry from NSDAR amounted to $1,089.00 for the six-month period March through August.

CROSSNORE SCHOOL INC. received contributions for the same period totaling $2,093.50. Mr. Joseph H. Mitchell, Executive Director, and his family were with us for Congress.

A new video is available for chapter programs.

Over 150 Alumni attended the reunion in August.

Three different projects are under construction: a new residence for the Executive Director, an administration building and a maintenance facility.

The staff and students of the emergency care program have moved from Alpha House to the Atwell building in order to house eight instead of five students.

A “student of the month” award has been implemented. Wednesday night Bible studies continue to grow in popularity. During the summer the children picked blueberries, attended a wrestling match, hosted a watermelon cutting for the Community on July 4th and a medical evacuation helicopter provided an educational experience for the young people with an interesting demonstration.

HILLSIDE SCHOOL was represented at Continental Congress by the Headmaster, Mr. John N. Butler, Mrs. Butler and two eighth graders who manned the booth for the sales, especially the delicious maple syrup made on campus.

DAR Day in May broke all previous attendance records bringing over 350 Daughters to Hilsdale. The students very proudly ran tours of the campus. Following a homemade luncheon under a festive tent on the front lawn, everyone went to the gymnasium for an afternoon program of greetings, DAR Awards and student plays. Appreciation is expressed to Mr. & Mrs. Butler and to Mrs. Eric O. Hook, State Regent of Massachusetts, for their special hospitality.

Hillsdale School opened this September with a full enrollment of 53 boys, representing a significant increase over last year. The school recently opened a “Farm Store.” Summer and fall items include plants, fresh produce, eggs, maple syrup, and frozen pork products such as bacon and chops. Please continue to send the very useful Campbell’s labels. Total contributions for the six months period since March 1st were $7,946.00.

HINDMAN SETTLEMENT SCHOOL was represented during Continental Congress by Mr. Mike Mullins, Executive Director. On May 30th I attended the Board meeting at Hindman. Appreciation is extended to Mr. & Mrs. Martin F. Thompson for providing transportation.

The Tenth Annual Appalachian Family Folk Week and Writers workshop were held on campus during June and August as well as an Art Camp and a Literature workshop.

Over 3000 elementary and high school students receive art, music and 4-H instruction each week through the Settlements’ Extension Teacher Program.

Fifty-five children having dyslexia attended the six weeks summer school program which is the only special education they receive. The demand for the East Kentucky Tutorial Program increases each day.

Contributions from March 1 through August 31 were $2,149.00. We look forward to seeing many DAR Members on October 21 for the second DAR Day at Hindman.

KATE DUNCAN SMITH DAR SCHOOL—On May 23 it was my pleasure to attend the 75th anniversary tea of the KDS Alumni Banquet that evening. High school graduation at the DAR school was very special with 36 of the 68 graduates receiving scholarship assistance. The Board of Trustees meeting was attended.

The fall school term began August 24 with an enrollment of 1050 students. Total staff including the administrator is 96.

A temporary library for the elementary school has been established in the Mitchell auditorium. A permanent location must be found as the approval for a temporary location will not be granted beyond two years by the State Accreditation Committee.

Finally, after 13 years KDS has a very extensive and expensive Waste Lagoon System that was required by the State Health Department for the continued operation of the school and to eliminate health hazards.

The following projects have been completed:
1. A new window for the Jacobs building was the gift of the Alabama State Society.
2. A new safety fence for the bluff edge behind the Craft Center was provided by the Michigan State Society.
3. New carpet, bathroom inlay and landscaping for Rexer Memorial Cottage was provided by the Ohio State Society.
4. A new rear-mount mower, hedge trimmer, 5hp air compressor and torch set as well as landscaping were the gifts of the Junior Membership Committee.
5. Tools for the Maintenance crew, new stoves for the Home Economics Department, new roof on the primary school and Physical Education equipment for the elementary school were gifts of the Hollywood chapter.
6. A new fiberglass, 20 year warranty, roof for the Minor Practice Cottage was the gift of the Connecticut State Society in memory of Miss Katharine Matthies.
7. Two new sewing machines for the Home Economics Department were the gifts of the Virginia State Society.

The articles featuring the Kate Duncan Smith and Tamassee DAR Schools appeared in the May 1987 issue of the DAR Magazine. A Special thanks to the administrators for preparing the interesting and informative articles.

TAMASEE DAR SCHOOL—At the annual meeting in May I was privileged to be present when Mrs. John O. Bumgardner was elected to serve for a second term as Chairman of the Tamassee Board of Trustees.

Thirty-four Tamasee “T’s” were awarded at Awards day, signifying that half of our youngsters excelled in the Citizenship program.

Fifty children remained on campus during the summer.

Executive meetings of the Tamassee Board of Trustees were attended Aug. 2-4.

On August 16 the school year began with 85 boarding students and 321 day students. For Founders Day 1987 the new formed choral group will offer its first performance.

Tamasee celebrated the Bicentennial of the Constitution with a very special program including the ringing of the bell 200 times and a moving address by Mr. H. Dean Bare, Administrator.

Chris Carr, senior, has just been elected President of the Student Council at the Tamassee-Salem High School. This is the first time that a Tamasee student has ever been elected to this position.

The following projects on the buildings and grounds are completed:
1. A new compressor has been installed and new sampling equipment ordered for the Waste Treatment plant to satisfy (Continued on page 894)
THE SARATOGA BATTLEFIELD MONUMENT
ERECTED BY THE DAR

The granite shaft of this memorial rises compellingly from the center of the American Cemetery on the Saratoga Battlefield, ground made sacred by the burial there of many unknown
Continental soldiers who fought in those two historic struggles on Bemis Heights. The monument symbolizes the sacrifice and ideals of these men who so loyally served their Commander-in-Chief and their country.

On the bronze tablet beneath the sword are the words which dedicate the memorial and which preserve for the future not only the memory of the brave deeds of these early patriots, but also record the devotion of those who deeply revere that memory.*

TRIBUTE TO A FOUNDER

MRS. ELLEN HARDIN WALWORTH
Our Founder

Lightning bolts split the sky and shade trees bent low before the wind when Ellen Hardin Walworth flung open the door of her Washington, D.C. residence to admit Mary Desha and Eugenia Washington, the stormy night of August 9, 1890. It was during this passionate throe of Nature that the new society was born, and this meeting established these three, together with Mary S. Lockwood, as the Four Founders of The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

The beginning of the society was far from the beginning for Ellen Hardin Walworth, however. It was rather a culmination of more than a generation of endeavor for the preservation of historical spots and promotion of education, especially the study of history.

As the young daughter of a Colonel killed in the Mexican War, Ellen had been transplanted by her mother's remarriage from Kentucky to Saratoga, New York. Here she spent hours roaming over the quiet meadows, dreaming and reliving the two battles fought on September 19th and October 7th, 1777.
Her own ancestor had been one of Morgan's celebrated Rifle Corps at the crucial defeat of Burgoyne, turning point of the war.

The Saratoga Battlefield continued as the focus of her interest in adulthood, and she published a scholarly monograph, complete with maps, on both the battles and the battlefield just in time for the Centennial anniversary in 1877.
Equally proficient as a persuader, authorities credit her with being the one whose determination saw the completion of the Saratoga Battle Monument in 1888. In addition, though the only woman Trustee of the Saratoga Battle Monument Association, she it was who induced private individuals to donate markers to indicate important points on the battlefield. Except for her, authorities confess that many of these historic sites would have been lost.
She was a force in convincing others that the Saratoga Battle Ground was a special place that should be set apart. She did not live to see this accomplished, as she died in 1915, but a decade later it became a reality, and today it is known as Saratoga National Historical Park.*

In the ongoing campaign to preserve the battlefield, the Sons of the American Revolution were reinforced and supported by the Daughters and other patriotic groups.

Finally, in 1931, the Daughters of the American Revolution erected a monument to the unknown dead, the only one on the entire 2600 acres of the Park.

Each year since 1983, a memorial service sponsored by several organizations has been held on this site on the Sunday closest to October 7th. This ceremony was inspired by Mrs. Nancy Childs, Chairman of the Citizen's Advisory Committee of the Saratoga Battlefield, a person imbued with Ellen's spirit of dedication.

Daughters assembled at this service, standing at attention and listening to the last haunting notes of "Taps" die away in the echoes from the autumnal landscape, can almost visualize their Founder, Ellen Hardin Walworth, standing by with a gratified smile, knowing that her crusade to keep alive the memory of those who fought and fell at Saratoga will long endure.

*Saratoga National Historical Park covers 2,600 acres 8 miles south of Schuylerville on US 4. A visitor center on Fraser Hill, the highest point in the park, affords a fine view of the battlefield and surrounding area. Open daily 9-6 in summer; 9-5 rest of year. Theater programs, self-guiding tours and picnic facilities available daily. Also part of the park are the restored Gen. Philip Schuyler House and the Saratoga Monument, both 8 miles from the battlefield.

During the Revolution, he is credited with designing a map which he provided for General Washington to use in the Battle of Brandywine. The map was used by the General for two weeks before the battle and during the conflict. When Washington visited Delaware in December of 1783, Jacob Broom wrote the official welcoming address, resulting in the accolade: "unrivaled in composition" by his peers.

His political career continued to reach further heights when he was appointed Justice of the Peace for New Castle County in 1785. Many other offices were served in his community until the age of thirty-five when he was elected one of five Delaware delegates to the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia. He was present at the opening of the meeting on May 25, 1787, and cast his vote with the other delegates in electing Washington as President of the Convention. He was active in the debates.

The Convention reached a crisis on July 16, and Broom helped prevent its dissolution by a timely appeal. The day began with the states voting 5 to 4 to accept a two-house Congress with representation based on population in one house, and equal representation for all states in the other house. This was a victory for the small states causing Edmund Randolph of the large state of Virginia to ask for an immediate adjournment "in the present solemn crisis." William Paterson of New Jersey jumped up to say that there was no possibility of the small states accepting any other compromise, and that as far as he was concerned, if Randolph wished to move for a "sine die" adjournment and remove the rule of secrecy on the delegates, he would second it. This would have in effect ended the Convention. An attempt was then made to adjourn the Convention temporarily until the next day. This failed by a 5 to 5 vote, indicating "sine die" adjournment would be the next step. At this point, Jacob Broom rose, representing the smallest state present. He declared that he believed "sine die" adjournment would be "fatal" and that "something must be done by the Convention, though it should be a small majority." This plea seems to have been effective, for shortly afterward, the Convention agreed to adjourn to the next day and continue hammering out a Constitution.

Noteworthy among his suggestions for the Convention were certain debatable items such as a lifetime term for the elected President, providing he remained "on good behavior," and the nine-year term office for a senator.

After his signature was dry on the Constitution, Jacob Broom returned to his home in Wilmington to continue serving his city and state. He helped found Wilmington's first library in 1787, and was treasurer of the library company with a beginning capital of fifty dollars. He became the first Postmaster for the city from 1790 to 1792, and headed up the water, sewer and street departments. He was a trustee of the leading school, the Wilmington Academy, for seventeen years.

He was a trustee of the leading school, the Wilmington Academy, for seventeen years.

The life of Jacob Broom was interesting, prosperous and idealistic. His two older sons were as successful as their father. James, the eldest, was his favorite. A letter to James expresses concern for his health; a desire for news and a regret that he could not find the articles James had requested due to, "the inability to find the keys to Sally's drawers."

James Broom graduated from Princeton University in 1794 and became a member of Congress from Delaware during the years between 1805 and 1807. He was a member of the Philadelphia Bar and was the prime beneficiary of his father's will. The second son, Jacob, was also a lawyer and member of the Philadelphia Bar. He served as a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature and was a candidate for the office of President of the United States in 1852, under the auspices of the Native American Party.

Thomas Scharff, in his History of Delaware, has little to say of Jacob Broom. He does mention his accomplishments in political life and the fact that he gave a bequest of $680.00 to the Female Benevolent Society of Wilmington which enabled them to incorporate. Mr. Scharff also states that Broom owned the Way Mansion and died there (an error).

We have reason to believe, according to the Governors' Papers, published in 1937, that he died in Philadelphia after a brief illness on April 25, 1810. The burial records at Christ Church in Philadelphia state that he was buried there on April 26, 1810. His will was written on April 20, so we presume death was imminent at the time.

In order to gain some insight into the personality of this great American, we need to examine the list of some of the items he willed to others. So magnanimous was he that it took over six years to finally settle his estate! To his wife went the home, stables, gardens and furniture, including many sterling silver pieces; son James received a vast collection of books, including great classics, biographies, Latin, French and Greek textbooks and the works of Homer, Aristotle and Pope. James also received property including a graveyard bounded by the lands of Nicholas Way and Griffith Minshall; all debts owed him by his children were discharged; all grandchildren were left money for education; the children of his brother, Abraham were left money for schooling; the Society of Friends received $500.00; another $500.00 was left for education of blacks; one daughter received a slave, a 12 year old black girl, having a life expectancy of 13 years! The large holdings of money, bonds, investments in shipping, stocks, animals, conveyances and even French Brandy were divided among family members and friends.

Does it not seem strange, when one has given so much for posterity and loved humanity, that one must sleep forever in a forgotten tomb without even an earthly likeness to reflect one's significance?

In August 1782 Sergeant Elijah Churchill and two other sergeants received Badges of Military Merit which were designed by General George Washington. A forerunner of the Purple Heart, these awards were given for bravery without regard for rank.

The original awards were made of cloth in the shape of a heart edged with a narrow binding of silver. On the badge itself was a leaf design embroidered in silver braid. The one given Churchill has the word Merit embroidered in a wreath.

Sitting before a family heirloom, Mrs. Grace Jones, a great-great-great-granddaughter of Sergeant Churchill is justly proud of her ancestor's valor. This Badge of Merit is now on display at the Publick Building, New Windsor Cantonment at Newburgh, New York.

Saint Paul's Church as it now stands was only partially constructed by the start of the American Revolution. At one period during the war, it was used as a hospital for Hessian soldiers. The edifice was completed in 1787.

The Freedom Bell, presented by Rev. Thomas Standard, is a "twin sister" of the Liberty Bell. They were cast in London's Whitechapel Bell Foundry at the same time. The bell was buried during the Revolution by order of George Washington to prevent it from being melted down for ammunition.

In the foreground is the Village Green where the Great Election of 1733 was held. John Peter Zenger's published account and subsequent articles led to his trial for seditious libel. He was quickly acquitted, establishing an important legal precedent for the freedom of the press.

In 1980, St. Paul's was acquired by the Department of the Interior through the generous donations of the Episcopal Diocese of New York and the City of Mount Vernon, and is now operated as a National Historical Site. The carriage shed has been renovated into the Country's First Bill of Rights Museum.

Central New York FRAMERS of

The Federal Philadelphia Convention, called by Congress to amend the Articles of Confederation, formally convened the 25th of May 1787. There were delegates present from seven states, thus constituting a quorum.

Excessive heat, tired men, frayed dispositions - all took their toll. In the early planning it was decided to work in secret. They also decided they could not make an effective revision of the Articles of Confederation, but would work on a new Constitution beneficial and acceptable to all thirteen states.

On the 8th of September a five man Committee on Style and Arrangement was appointed with William Johnson as Chairman and Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, Rufus King and Governeur Morris as members, to put the Constitution into final form. On the 16th of September the printer prepared 500 copies for the official signing ceremony, which was held the next day with thirty-nine delegates representing twelve states. Rhode Island never did send a representative.

On the 20th, Congress received the proposed Constitution. On the 28th, Congress resolved to submit the Constitution to special state ratifying conventions, of which nine of the thirteen states had to sign before it could become law.

Let us heed the words of WARREN E. BURGER, Chairman, Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, and former Chief Justice of the United States, 1969-1986:

"We can best honor our constitution by giving ourselves a history and civics lesson on its origin and meaning."

Round Table Honors the CONSTITUTION

New York probably had the dubious distinction of being the most divided of all the states due to many reasons. For many years its inhabitants had lived under a divide and conquer slogan. Then the British held the New York City area and Long Island for about seven years, making the percentage of Tories higher than common in other states. The patroon system was prevalent in the Hudson and Mohawk valleys, where the rich got richer, and the poor got poorer.

Governor George Clinton was very happy with the situation. New York had developed a healthy income from duties imposed on imported goods that had to pass through New York harbor to neighboring states. He also had built up a lucrative patronage system.

New York stood behind Virginia, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and North Carolina in population. It was therefore entitled to a delegation of only three, while Virginia had seven, Pennsylvania had eight and Massachusetts and North Carolina both had five delegates.

Alexander Hamilton, an immensely gifted man, had been an aide and secretary to George Washington during the Revolutionary War, a former member of Congress, and was a staunch believer in centralized government. In recognizing this Gov. Clinton virtually hand picked John Lansing, Jr., mayor of Albany and Robert Yates, a justice of the New York State Supreme Court for the other delegates, his belief being that their votes would easily cancel out Hamilton’s vote.

On the 10th of July, believing that the Convention had overstepped its authority in working on a new constitution instead of revising the Articles of Confederation, both Lansing and Yates left for home, leaving the New York State delegation without a quorum, and unable to vote. Consequently, Alexander Hamilton was the only signer of the Constitution from New York State.

Who Pays for Leave?
This approach recognizes the contribution to society that women and men make through the birth of a child and allows parents to retain more of their earned income when they need it the most. It gives meaningful social recognition to motherhood without discriminating against either working mothers or those engaged in full-time child care. It provides real financial relief to families, without making them dependent on the state or increasing the size of government (indeed, these measures would work to reduce the size of government). It restores a form of a family wage that is far more efficient than the pre-1965 model and that does not rest on institutionalized discrimination. It accommodates all forms of family and work arrangements and discriminates against none. The sole value judgment behind this plan is that children have social value, which merits recognition.

Parental leave should be left as a voluntary option for firms seeking to attract those employees who choose to model their lives on that arrangement. Yet that life choice should not be forced by law on all Americans. As a universal

DECEMBER 1987

Dear Daughters,

This season is always busy ... and it certainly is the case for the Magazine Advertising Office! First, we would like to extend greetings of welcome to Ellen Harrington, the new Assistant in the Advertising Office. She will be assisting Cheryl Estancona at National Headquarters, as Karen Plunkett has moved on to new employment. Karen's contributions were many and although we will miss her, we wish her well. We are now working to regain control of the workload and return to our regular schedule.

Speaking of schedules! Remember that 1987-1988 honor roll for Magazine Advertising will close February 5, 1988. In order to be credited with your 1987-1988 Magazine Advertising honor roll point, your ad of $30.00 or more must be received in the office on or before that date.

Also keep in mind that any ad is automatically credited to the honor roll year in which it is received UNLESS you specify that the credit is to be given to the following honor roll year. At any given time the office cannot issue credit for past honor roll years, nor can it issue credit any farther ahead than the following honor roll year. Keeping track of this must be up to each individual chapter. Please do not request the office to research this for you!

Thank you all for your good works this year! Your "advertising efforts" are what enables the Society to publish your Magazine.

The Merriest of Holidays to you and yours,

Sincerely,

Miss Marjorie Giinther

The NSDAR Nursing Home Insurance Plan

Available to those age 55 through 79 . . .

Helps Take Care of You. . .
When You Can’t Care for Yourself

No one likes to think about it, but it’s a fact. A sudden fall or serious illness could mean a lengthy stay in a nursing facility, even after you’ve spent time in the hospital. And as you grow older, this becomes even more of a possibility.

With Medicare covering less and less medical costs for older Americans these days, you have reason to worry about how you would pay for this specialized care should you need it.

Now with the new NSDAR Nursing Home Plan you can help protect yourself and your loved ones from staggering nursing home costs. Choose benefits of $40.00, $80.00 or $100.00 a day, payable for up to three full years of custodial, intermediate or skilled nursing home care. Cash benefits that begin where Medicare leaves off.

And best of all, you can cover yourself, your spouse, your parents and your spouse’s parents under this new NSDAR plan.

Complete and return the coupon today to get all the particulars on this valuable new protection especially designed for NSDAR members and their families.

☐ YES, please send me information on the new NSDAR Nursing Home Plan as soon as it is available. I understand there is no obligation.
