COVER STORY

It has been said that faith can move mountains; we now know for a fact that faith can name a mountain! When the Valley of Flowers Society of the National Society Children of the American Revolution became aware of the story of Naya Nuki, the "girl who ran," their first thought was to do honor to this valiant Indian girl. Through research, determination, letter-writing, and publicity, members determined that a mountain peak in the Bridger Mountain Range should bear her name. The formal dedication of this accomplishment will take place during the summer of this year.

The cover photo of the Naya Nuki Peak was taken in July 1987.

Dear Friends,

Am always thrilled to be with you at your State Conferences, to hear your excellent reports and have the opportunity to present the 100% certificates for the President General’s project. My next big thrill will be greeting you at Continental Congress in April.

This has been a very frustrating year here at headquarters—waiting for plans, specifications, contracts and building permits. It’s also been rough trying to keep up with all the unexpected emergencies.

The wonderful part is knowing that you, the members, are always there willing to help with fund-raising, willing to work for membership and for the completion of many projects. You do reach out and make a difference.

Blessings on all of you. Thank you, thank you, thank you! See you in April.

Sincerely,

Anne D. Flick

PRESIDENT GENERAL’S MESSAGE
kids name a MOUNTAIN

By Margaret E. Jones, Past National Officer, N.S.C.A.R. and member of Valley of Flowers Society

Members of the Valley of Flowers Society, Children of the American Revolution, Bozeman, Montana, realized a dream when they received word from the United States Board on Geographic Names that a mountain peak in the Bridger Mountain Range would be named Naya Nuki Peak.

It all started when a teacher in the Bozeman Public Schools, Myra Miller, introduced the book, Naya Nuki—Girl Who Ran, by Wyoming author Kenneth Thomasma to her class at the Longfellow School. Ten-year-old C.A.R. Society President, Kristin Anderson, was fascinated by the story. She told it to her society members at a meeting. They accepted the challenge of finding an unnamed mountain peak and then naming it for Naya Nuki.

Naya Nuki was a friend of Sacajawea, the famous guide for the Lewis and Clark Expedition. The girls were members of a band of Shoshoni Indians camped near the headwaters of the Missouri River in Montana. A rival band of Minnetarre Indians attacked the encampment and Naya Nuki was captured along with her friend Sacajawea. The girls were taken to a Minnetarre village over 1000 miles from their home. Today we know that they crossed what is now Montana and most of North Dakota. Naya Nuki was 11 years old at the time.

The only thing Naya Nuki could think of was escape. It did not matter that the Shoshoni camp was so many miles away. All during the long march Naya Nuki had noted land marks, possible hiding places and the best route to follow home. At the Minnetarre village she began to hide items she would Finally the opportunity came and Naya Nuki began running. She traveled alone in the wilderness and survived for more than a month before finding her people once again. When she told her story, the tribal council honored her by naming her Naya Nuki which means, in Shoshoni, Girl Who Ran.

He offered his assistance and contacted school children in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho and Utah. The children were asked to join the Valley of Flowers C.A.R. members and write letters in support of the naming. Thousands of children responded to his request as interest in the mountain spread throughout the Intermountain region. Indian tribes in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho and North Dakota have shown an interest in the project.

Finally, documentation in hand, the Society began the application process for proposing a name for an unnamed feature. They followed the guidelines given by the United States Board on Geographic Names and sent in the application. This included the research the members had done as well as location maps and pictures.

After months of anxious waiting, Valley of Flowers C.A.R. members were informed that at a meeting on June 11, 1987 the United States Board on Geographic Names approved the name Naya Nuki Peak. It is on the same ridge as Sacajawea Peak in the Bridger Mountain Range. Both peaks are visible from the place where the girls were captured so many years ago. It seems fitting that two peaks on the same ridge should share the name of two Indian friends.

The impact of the Society’s hard work did not stop here. Mr. Thomasma feels this project has benefited an entire region of our country because children have shown a renewed interest in the history of their area. In addition to this, Indian children have pride in the story of this courageous young girl. The dedication of the mountain peak will be in August, 1988.

C.A.R. members can make a difference! If they can name a mountain, they can move a mountain!

Four years later Sacajawea
Members of the Valley of Flowers Society enlisted the help of interested students and adults in the area to find a fitting peak to honor Naya Nuki.

After undertaking the name project, the Valley of Flowers Society, C.A.R. members contacted the remaining members of Naya Nuki’s Shoshoni tribe now living in Fort Hall, Idaho. These present day Shoshoni Indians were thrilled that their ancestor was being remembered and honored by having a mountain peak named for her. They are pleased with the publicity and attention as they are trying to preserve a tribal grave site at another location.

Robert Iron Eyes Cody, Jr., a graduate of Bacone College and Fort Lewis College, gave his active support to the naming. He told the members he had heard the story of Naya Nuki from an old Sioux woman with whom he had once lived.

When this important link in the oral history was established, the C.A.R. members and their senior leaders spent a busy summer in exciting float trips and hiking mountain trails searching for an unnamed peak. They studied maps obtained from the United States Geological Survey and the United States Department of Agriculture’s Forest Service. Local residents were interviewed to determine if any mountains had unofficial names. Finally they found a mountain peak that met all the requirements set by the United States Board on Geographic Names.

The community became involved as displays were placed in the local library by the C.A.R. members, Kenneth Thomasma, author of the book that inspired the project, visited Bozeman C.A.R. members to climb the mountain with them.

Members of the Valley of Flowers Society used the same landmarks as did Naya Nuki when she guided the Lewis and Clark Expedition. According to their Journals, on August 17, 1805 the childhood friends met once again in a touching reunion near the place where the girls had been captured years before. Naya Nuki’s story was handed down for many generations in the oral history of the Shoshoni and Sioux Indians.

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution has restructured the Junior American Citizens Committee. Under the new program schools all across America are signing up their students as Junior American Citizens. Chapters are encouraged to visit their local schools or other groups (scout troops, special education schools, church youth groups, etc.) and obtain permission and cooperation from the proper authority to register their students as Junior American Citizens. Inform them that you would like to be their DAR sponsor to help promote citizenship and provide them with Junior American Citizens pins and membership cards for every student—FREE. Ask for the enrollment of each school so you can order the pins and cards. Give each school a copy of the JAC Handbook, JAC Creed Leaflet, Contest Letter and JAC Fact Sheet. Ask the school to distribute the contest letter and fact sheet to the teachers. Remember to fill in the blanks on the fact sheet: name of Chapter, name of Chairman and her address and phone number, and the date when you will return to pick up the contest entries.

Once the school or group has agreed to participate in the JAC program register them on the NEW registration form (name of school, number of Junior American Citizens which should be the number of students in the school or group, number of children participating in the contest, and the number of actual entries you receive). The Chapter sends these registration forms to her JAC State Chairman. Any DAR Chapter or STATE CHAIRMAN can sponsor a school or group.

The primary purpose of this DAR committee, appointed in 1906 by the National Society, is to encourage the teaching of children of all ages, races and creeds the principles of good citizenship, its privileges and responsibilities, loyalty to the United States of America, respect for its Flag, the history of our great country and of our government.

There is no cost to any JAC member. All supplies are furnished free of charge by the NSDAR. It is the responsibility of the sponsoring Chapter or State Chairman to order the supplies and deliver them to the schools. Order supplies from the Office of Committees, 1776 D Street, NW, Washington, DC 20006.

Any student who participates in any facet of the JAC program (saying the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States Flag every school day, entering the JAC contest, or being involved with your class or community in a function promoting good citizenship) is considered a Junior American Citizen.

The JAC program and contest is open to all students from kindergarten through 12th grade and all levels of special education. A contest theme is selected each year with eight categories: poster; stamp design; essay; poetry; original banner; community service; special projects; genealogy. Each student may enter two categories as an individual, but may participate in another as part of a group.

The National prizes (monetary and certificates) are given to the winners, first runners-up, second runners-up, and third runners-up. Entries are judged at the DAR Chapter and/or State level, then sent to the National Division level, and finally the National level. National Winners are announced and exhibited at Continental Congress in April.

Fourteen of the 1986–87 Contest winners were selected for an exhibit in September at the Valley Forge Visitor's Center in Pennsylvania; the other 86 winners were on exhibit in the Kentucky State Capitol Building. Plans are being made to have another exhibit at the Valley Forge National Historical Park following the 1988 Continental Congress.
NATIONAL DEFENSE
Phyllis Schlafly, National Chairman

By Robert Jastrow and James Frelk

In 1956, when Khrushchev threatened to intervene in the Suez crisis with nuclear rockets, NATO Commander Greunther replied, “Moscow will be destroyed as night follows day,” and Khrushchev backed away. In 1973, as Soviet troops prepared to enter the Yom Kippur War, Nixon and Kissinger faced Brezhnev down with the threat of a nuclear attack.

In 1979, when Soviet troops moved into Afghanistan, Carter held a meeting with his advisers, considered a nuclear alert, and decided to withdraw from the Olympics.

What had changed between 1973 and 1979? What was the Carter Administration afraid of? Figures on the growth of the Soviet nuclear arsenal suggest the answer. In 1973, the Soviets had no militarily effective nuclear warheads—the accurate kind that can land within a few hundred yards of a hardened missile silo or communications center and destroy it. Accurate warheads are the key to the use of a nuclear arsenal for intimidation, because if used in sufficiently large numbers in a first strike, they can cripple the other side’s nuclear forces, and prevent him from effective retaliation. The United States had more than 1,000 accurate warheads in 1973. The yield of these warheads was not very large, but the Soviet targets were not very well protected either. As a consequence, we could cripple the Soviet nuclear forces, but they could not cripple ours.

But in 1974, the Soviets started deploying accurate warheads, and in 1977—a critical year of transition—they reached parity with the United States in this important category of strategic weapons. By 1979, they had 3,450 accurate weapons capable of a first strike—more than twice as many as the U.S.

The result, according to then Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, was that by 1979 the Soviet Union could destroy 95 percent of our Minuteman ICBMs in their silos. They could also, Secretary Brown reported, “destroy our bombers by a barrage attack . . . so that even if the bombers got off the ground, they may not escape.”

When Nixon and Brezhnev signed the ABM Treaty in 1972, the Americans thought they had obtained a promise from the USSR that it would not menace the survivability of our retaliatory forces in this way. The essence of MAD and the ABM Treaty, after all, was the guaranteed ability to devastate the adversary’s homeland if he attacked. In fact, the Americans felt so strongly about this point that they added a “unilateral understanding” to the ABM treaty, in which they said a prime purpose of the negotiation was to “reduce threats to the survivability of our respective retaliatory forces.” Failure to reach an agreement on that point, the American negotiators said, “would constitute a basis for withdrawal from the ABM treaty.”

But the ink was hardly dry on the ABM Treaty when the Soviets began to slide into their silos the first of a new generation of Soviet ICBMs, more accurate than previous Soviet ICBMs, and good enough to take out our missile silos, command and control centers and other top-priority military targets. The Soviets kept on building these accurate, first-strike weapons until, in 1979, as Secretary Brown noted, they had enough of them to place at risk a large fraction of our nuclear deterrent.

And the Soviet arsenal continued to grow. By 1981, the number of accurate Soviet warheads had reached nearly 5,000, leading Secretary Brown to comment, in his annual report to Congress, on “the degree of emphasis in Soviet military doctrine on a war-winning nuclear capability.” In one of the great understatements of all time, Dr. Brown called this development “troublesome.”

The biggest of the new Soviet missiles, and the biggest ICBM in existence, is the SS-18. The SS-18 is twice as large as an MX, weighs 200 tons, is as high as a 10-story building, can carry at least 10 warheads—each with destructive power exceeding half a million tons of TNT—and has sufficient fuel in reserve to “cross-target” the entire United States. SS-18 warheads are very accurate—better than the Mark 12A warheads which have been the mainstay of the U.S. ICBM arsenal for years. The SS-18 is certainly the most fearsome weapon of mass destruction ever devised by man.

At last report, the Soviets had 308 SS-18s in the field, carrying more than 3,000 warheads. They also had 360 SS-19s and 150 SS-17s, with warheads of comparable accuracy. The number of accurate warheads known to us in this arsenal totals nearly 6,000. The destructive power residing in the deployed
HOW THE SOVIETS EMASCULATED AMERICA'S DETERRENT

SS-18s alone is greater than the destructive power of the entire U.S. missile force.

And the Soviet ICBM buildup continues, apparently without letup. The USSR is now deploying the first of its new fifth-generation missiles, the SS-25, and is about to deploy the 10-warhead SS-24. Both missiles are mobile. The SS-24, which is the size of an MX, is designed to be carried around the country on a railroad flatcar. The SS-25, about the size of a Minuteman, can be carried on the back of a truck.

The mobility of the new Soviet missiles makes a mockery of offers by Soviet leaders to reduce their nuclear forces. We will never be able to tell how many SS-24s and SS-25s the Soviets have because, as James Hackett, former Acting Director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, points out, the SS-24s and the SS-25s, and SS-20s as well, "can be in bunkers, hangars, factories, tunnels, garages—U.S. satellites can't see or count them."

A few months ago the USSR successfully tested a follow-on to the SS-18, apparently even larger than the SS-18, and with even more accurate warheads. There are also reports of follow-ons to the SS-19 and SS-20 (which is accepted by the U.S. as a European and Asian "theatre" missile, but can target the United States if one or two of its three warheads are left off). Finally, the Department of Defense has reported signs of a sixth generation of ICBMs—follow-ons to the SS-24 and SS-25, and also mobile.

The CIA estimates that by the mid-1990s these new missiles can increase the size of the Soviet ICBM arsenal from around 6,000 warheads, its "official" value today, to between 10,000 and 12,000 warheads—all accurate, fast, first-strike weapons capable of destroying U.S. military targets. Around 1995, with this combination of accuracy, prompt delivery and great numbers of warheads, the Soviets will have a first-strike force of terrifying potential.

What security needs in the Soviet Union require this enormous number of ICBM warheads? The Soviet arsenal has long since passed the limits of any reasonable nuclear force aimed solely at deterrence of an American attack. If deterring a nuclear attack were the main goal of Soviet military planners, they would have created a relatively small force of ICBMs, as the U.S. did, and placed the bulk of their resources in second-strike weapons—submarines and bombers. Most (80 percent) of the U.S. arsenal consists of second-strike weapons, either too inaccurate (on submarines) or too slow (on bombers and cruise missiles) to use in a first strike.

With the Soviets, it was the other way around. Most (75 percent) of the their warheads are on ICBMs—fast, accurate, and usable in a first strike.

The critical asymmetry between the U.S. and the USSR in numbers of first-strike warheads is masked by figures published now and then for the total numbers of warheads in the two arsenals. The U.S. strategic arsenal has a total of about 11,000 strategic nuclear weapons. But the USSR has a first-strike arsenal; the U.S. does not. The difference can mean curtains for America.

But is the Soviet arsenal really big enough for a first strike? In building a first-strike capability, large numbers of warheads are as important as accuracy and prompt delivery; a small number of warheads, even if accurately placed, will only irritate an adversary without greatly diminishing his power to retaliate. How many accurate warheads are required by the USSR to mount a crippling attack on the nuclear forces of the United States?

American capability for nuclear retaliation is concentrated in some 3,000 key military sites in the U.S. The USSR, targeting two warheads on each site for a higher probability of destruction, would need 6,000 accurate ICBM warheads to cripple our retaliatory power. The Soviet nuclear arsenal projected for the mid-1990s will have sufficient numbers of accurate warheads to do that. After the first strike, the USSR will still have thousands of warheads left for a punishing attack on American cities—if we should be so rash as to attempt to retaliate with the remnant of our nuclear forces surviving the first strike.

Does the U.S. have a first-strike force? The Soviet target list is about the same length as our own—a few thousand key sites. The American ICBM arsenal contains 900 warheads with an accuracy and a destructive power comparable to that of the 6,000 first-class Soviet ICBM warheads (although none comes close to the lethality of the SS-18). When the planned force of 50 MXs is deployed, it will add another 500 accurate warheads to the U.S. arsenal for a total of 1,400. The remainder of the U.S. arsenal is too inaccurate to be useful against well-protected Soviet targets.

Assigning two warheads to a target, this relatively modest U.S. arsenal of 1,400 accurate weapons can take out 700 targets in the USSR—a minor dent in the Soviet target list. The U.S. arsenal has the accuracy, but not the necessary numbers, to cripple the nuclear forces of the Soviet Union. Mounting a first strike against the Soviet Union with that arsenal would be a suicidal act.

The U.S. plans to deploy larger numbers of accurate warheads in the 1990s, on the Midgetman ICBM and also on a radically new type of submarine-launched missile called the D-5. The D-5 compensates for the inaccuracies of a launch from a submarine by taking a navigational fix on a star or an overhead satellite after it has been launched and correcting its course in midflight. The course corrections are supposed to make the D-5 nearly as accurate as the best ICBMs.

The Midgetman ICBM will not have much effect on the strategic balance because Midgetman warheads are very expensive ($80 to $100 million per warhead compared to $20 million per warhead for the MX) and the Defense Department only plans to buy 500. But the D-5 is another story. Thousands of D-5 warheads are slated for deployment in the 1990s. If they work out as expected, they should be very effective against an SS-18 silo or any other immovable target.

But therein hangs a sad tale for U.S. defense planners, for the USSR has already taken steps to negate the effectiveness of the D-5—as well as the MX and the Midgetman—by putting its newest ICBMs on mobile platforms—trucks and flatcars. Unfortunately, while the extraordinary precision of a D-5 or an MX makes it a deadly weapon against an SS-18 in a fixed silo, it is almost valueless against a target that can quickly be moved a few thousand yards down the road.

And the USSR has also gone to great lengths to protect a second set of highly valued targets—its own leaders—from the newest U.S. weapons. More than 1,500 hardened fuhrer-bunkers have been built for 175,000 key Party and government officials—the entire top stratum of Soviet leadership. Some of the older bunkers are close to the surface and vulnerable, but the newest ones are deeply buried and probably safe from the most accurate of the new U.S. warheads. The one under the Kremlin is reported to be a mile underground.

The U.S., on the other hand, continues, to keep its command structure—both facilities and people—in relatively soft, fixed locations at or near the surface, and vulnerable to the SS-18 and the new fifth-generation Soviet ICBMs. The vulnerability of the U.S. command structure is likely to continue. Imagine the outcry if President Reagan built a bomb shelter a mile under the White House.

So thanks to Soviet foresight, even the highly accurate MX, Midgetman, and D-5 will not change the strategic picture very much. The Soviets will be able to place our important assets at risk in the 1990s, but we will not be able to place theirs at risk, because by the time the new American weapons are deployed, all the Soviet targets of prime value will be either readily movable or deeply buried.

ARE SUBMARINES VULNERABLE?

At this point, the thoughtful observer will object that the menace of the Soviet nuclear arsenal has been exaggerated. After all, we still have our bombers and ballistic missile submarines.

It is true that the effectiveness of the U.S. bomber force has been compromised by the Soviet ICBM buildup, as former Secretary of Defense Brown noted; in fact considerably less than a third of our bombers are likely to escape the first wave of Soviet ICBMs, and of those that escape, a still smaller fraction will penetrate the massive Soviet air defenses, which now include 10,000 surface-to-air missiles and 12,000 air defense radars.

But the ballistic missile submarines are more effective, and make a better case. One Trident submarine carries enough warheads to attack every large city in the Soviet Union. Furthermore, the newest U.S. submarines are very quiet and hard to find, so the Soviets cannot count on eliminating them in the first wave of their attack, as they can with our land-based missiles. At the present time, ballistic missile submarines are nearly invulnerable.

Navy sources maintain that this invulnerability will persist into the indefinite future, but other defense planners are less optimistic. Promising lines of research have developed for the detection of submerged submarines by other methods than tracking the sounds they emit. In principle, these methods work no matter how quiet the submarine is.

For example, a submerged submarine creates a wake—a disturbed pattern of waves and wavelets that trails behind it on the ocean surface. There is evidence that the wake can be seen from space, using satellites equipped with a new type of "synthetic aperture" radar. Radar images of this kind obtained from SEASAT, the NASA ocean satellite, are reported to have revealed wakes of unknown origin, that could have been produced by submerged submarines.

The problem of submarine vulnerability is compounded by the fact that the USSR now has more than 200 attack submarines, but only 10 to 12 U.S. Trident submarines will actually be at sea at any one time in the 1990s. (Submarines in port would be a relatively easy mark for Soviet first-strike warheads.) With that ratio, Soviets can assign five or even 10 attack submarines to each Trident to trail it from the time it leaves port, keeping it in a box from which it cannot readily escape.

Finally, analysts of Soviet missile capabilities note that the Soviet intercepting missiles, the SA-12s, are small enough to be placed on ships. If armed with nuclear weapons, they may be very effective in destroying our submarine-launched ballistic missiles while these are still in their boost phase. Nuclear-tipped SA-12s promise to be a deadly weapon against U.S. submarine-launched missiles, and one to which the United States appears to have no response at present.

Taking all these factors into account, the Scowcroft Commission on Strategic Forces concluded, "Over the long run, it would be unwise to rely so heavily on submarines as our only [survivable] ballistic missile force." And in a rare display of frankness, a senior Pentagon official said two years ago, "It is a matter of time before our confidence in the invulnerability of the submarine is degraded." Informed opinion agrees that while submarines are safe today, and may remain so for a few years to come, they will not be able to hide in the oceans forever. Exactly when the submarine loses its cloak of invisibility is anyone's guess. However, it is not a question of whether, but when.
SOVIET ABM BREAKOUT. Anxiety over the extent of Soviet preparations for a first strike has been intensified by the discovery that the USSR also seems to be preparing a nationwide ABM defense. This discovery confronts defense planners with the frightening prospect of a Soviet first-strike force that can diminish considerably the American capacity for retaliation, and a Soviet ABM defense that could block whatever counterattack we might manage to get off the ground afterward with our crippled forces. The banning of this nightmarish possibility was, of course—for the Americans, at least—the driving force behind the ABM Treaty.

The ABM Treaty notwithstanding, technical reports received from the Defense Intelligence Agency and the CIA indicate that the USSR has acquired nearly all the elements needed for a defense against the ballistic missiles that would constitute the main instrument of American retaliation. The Soviet Union appears to be poised for a breakout from the Treaty.

Some experts say there is no cause for U.S. concern, because the Soviet ABM defense is not very effective. It is by no means as good as the defenses the SDI is designing for the 1990s; it is certainly not good enough to stop a massive U.S. first strike—if we were to launch one.

But the American arsenal being what it is, a first strike by the United States is of vanishingly low probability. American defense planners are not worrying about how well Soviet ABM defenses might block a U.S. first strike; they are focused on deterring a Soviet first strike—a possibility that the Soviet ICBM buildup brings to the forefront of their attention. For that purpose, the American planners rely on the threat of massive destruction of the Soviet Union in a retaliatory second strike. And against a U.S. retaliatory second strike, with weakened and diminished forces surviving a Soviet first strike, the Soviet missile defense could be exceedingly effective.

At present, the Soviet ABM defenses are deployed only around Moscow, in accordance with the restrictions of the ABM Treaty. However, the CIA has confirmed existence of production lines for turning out the components of the Moscow ABM system—intercepting missiles, radars and so on—in large quantities. Right now, the output of those production lines is only going into the defenses around Moscow, as far as we know, but new sites can be put into operation in a matter of months. By the early 1990s—four or five years from now—these components can be deployed across the USSR, defending every key Soviet target against U.S. ballistic missiles.

Concern over the intensity of Soviet ABM preparations was heightened last year by the discovery of three huge "battle management" radars—each the size of a football field—in the western USSR near Poland. These radars are the last major gap in a network of similar radars ringing the USSR. Six were already known; the last three to be discovered make a total of nine. Each of the nine has the range and precision needed to pick up oncoming U.S. warheads as they approach the USSR, determine which target each warhead is headed for, and alert individual ABM sites in that warhead's path so that they can send up a missile to intercept it.

The battle management radars are the long pole in the Soviet ABM tent, because they take many years to design and construct. But the Soviets started working on these radars a long time ago. In fact, they must have started designing them while they were still negotiating the ABM Treaty. The three just discovered near Poland are probably the last in the network. They should be finished around 1991.

The famous Krasnovaysk radar is one of the radars in the Soviet ABM network. It looks across 2,000 miles of the USSR from central Siberia to the northeast, and covers the approach corridor for U.S. ICBMs from the missile fields in the western states. It also covers the launch of missiles from U.S. submarines in the Bering Sea. The Soviets say the Krasnovaysk radar is for tracking space objects, but its design makes it almost useless for that purpose. The CIA says the Soviet claim is "preposterous."

The network of nine battle management radars, combined with the facilities for mass production of ABM components, will give the Soviet Union the means for setting up a nationwide ABM defense in short order, whenever it judges the moment to be propitious for an overt breakout from the ABM Treaty. According to intelligence reports, that could be in the early 1990s.

Any single one of these Soviet ABM activities would be a cause for concern to the U.S., which is still attempting to honor the ABM Treaty. But the ensemble of Soviet ABM programs is more menacing than the individual items; Robert Gates, Deputy Director of the CIA, calls it "significant and ominous."

The overall pattern of Soviet activities in recent years—the ICBM buildup and the burgeoning ABM capability—suggests that the USSR is intent on positioning itself for a first strike. As a consequence of the resultant threat to the effectiveness of our retaliatory forces, the theory of deterrence by Mutual Assured Destruction is collapsing like a house of cards. If the Soviets have a sufficient number of accurate missiles to wipe out the bulk of U.S. nuclear forces in a surprise attack, and they have a missile defense and an air defense adequate to handle the ragged second aftermath of that attack, they will not be deterred by the fear of retaliation, because we will not be able to retaliate.

THE UNEXPECTED ATTACK. Dramatic advances in the accuracy of warheads in recent years have contributed further to U.S. fears of a Soviet first strike. Zbigniew Brzezinski has explained why these technical developments increase the chance of a missile attack on the United States.

That story starts in World War II. When the Germans were raining V-2s on Britain, they were pleased if a rocket came within 10 miles of its target. The launch crews used to point their V-2s in the direction of London and hope for the best. Later, the accuracy of ballistic missiles improved to a mile, then to half a mile, and then to a quarter of a mile. For the SS-18 and the Minuteman III, it is 200 to 250 yards. For the MX, warhead accuracy is about 150 yards.

That is, half the time an MX warhead will land within 150 yards of its target, after a flight of thousands of miles.

The remarkable precision of these weapons has an important consequence. It makes it possible to achieve the military objectives of a nuclear attack—destruction of the adversary's missile silos, command and control centers and other sites vital to his effective retaliation—with quite small nuclear weapons. The record demonstrates, in fact, that as accuracy has improved, the sizes of nuclear weapons have gone down markedly.

In 1962, the average explosive power of the nuclear weapons in the U.S. strategic arsenal was three megatons (three million tons of TNT). Today it is seven times smaller. The average explosive power of the weapons in the Soviet arsenal was 4 1/2 megatons in 1970; today it is five times smaller. The total destructive power of the U.S. arsenal is a quarter of what it was in 1962; the total destructive power of the Soviet arsenal is down by about 40 percent since 1970.

These trends toward greater warhead accuracy and smaller nuclear weapons have been steady over several decades. Now, enter the Pershing 2, recently deployed in Germany. The Pershing 2 is a quantum leap beyond the technology of earlier missiles, because its warheads are "smart." That is, they have computer "brains" and radar "eyes" that view the terrain below, compare what the eye sees to a map of the target area stored in the computer's memory, and then adjust the warhead's course so that it steers itself into the target.

Prior to the advent of the Pershing 2, ballistic missiles carried dumb warheads. Once a dumb warhead has been pushed off its ICBM, its course is set and cannot be changed. The accuracy of the warhead in reaching its target depends on how accurate a push it received at the start. The finest dumb warheads presently deployed are carried by SS-18s and MXs. The 150-yard accuracy of the MX is probably close to the ultimate that can be achieved with a dumb warhead.

But the Pershing 2 warheads, with their brains, eyes and ability to change their own courses, can do much better than an MX warhead. Half the time, a Pershing 2 warhead will land within 35 yards of its target. The Pershing 2 warhead is truly a revolutionary development in missile technology. It has been said, with only mild hyperbole, that it can fly through any window in the Kremlin.

Still, the Pershing 2 is only the beginning of the new revolution in warhead technology. Experts see the possibility of warhead accuracies coming down to a few yards or even feet. They forecast the destruction of key military targets by nuclear charges so small as to produce essentially no unwanted blast damage or radioactive fallout.

At first, this trend to accurate warheads and smaller nuclear weapons seems like a good thing, because it means no wholesale destruction in a nuclear attack, and no civilian carnage. But Dr. Brzezinski has pointed out another, and less reassuring, meaning.

When nuclear warheads were all large and very destructive, he notes, a nuclear first strike was "messy and unpredictable . . . not an attractive option for either side." But small, accurate nuclear weapons are usable. They make it possible to carry out a surgical first strike—a surprise attack that decapitates the opponent's command structure and destroys the bulk of his forces, leaving him "strategically crippled, capable of only a spasmodic, disorganized and strategically aimless response—or none at all."

For the military planner, Dr. Brzezinski concludes, highly precise nuclear weapons make the dreaded first strike "a viable option."

When would the attack come? According to the conventional wisdom among American analysts, a nuclear exchange would develop out of crisis escalation, as in the Mideast crises of 1956 or 1973, or the Cuban missile crisis. As tension mounted, the U.S. would place its forces on nuclear alert; bombers would be loaded and dispersed; the entire fleet of ballistic missile submarines would be put to sea; the U.S. command structure would be geared to a prompt decision when word came that the first strike was coming.

But the conventional wisdom is almost certainly wrong. Why would an adversary pick such a moment as this to attack, when the chances of success are minimal? It would be far better to wait until the crisis has been defused by diplomatic concessions, weary forces have been stood down from their alert, and American leaders are relaxed in the euphoric belief that the threat of nuclear war has passed. That would be the time to strike.

The mind recoils from the possibility of the "bolt out of the blue"—a surprise nuclear attack, launched when America's guard is down, after a skillful Soviet campaign of deception and disinformation. Yet, as Dr. Brzezinski notes, in commenting on the developments in nuclear weapons in recent years, "One can disregard this possibility only at the greatest peril."

THE NEED FOR A SPACE-BASED DEFENSE. In the ongoing, and often abrasive, argument over the Strategic Defense Initiative, this is one of the main issues that separates SDI supporters from their opponents. Opponents of SDI, by and large, do not believe that the Soviet Union can launch a successful first strike, because they do not agree that U.S. retaliatory forces are vulnerable to a surprise attack; they feel that U.S. deterrence of a Soviet attack by the threat of retaliation will remain effective for many years to come.

In our view, their confidence is contradicted by the events of the last 10 years: the new threats in anti-submarine warfare; the trend toward accurate, small-yield nuclear weapons; and most important, the Soviet ICBM buildup, coupled with alarming signs of Soviet preparations for an overt breakout from the ABM Treaty by the early 1990s.

As matters stand today, powerful congressional forces are opposed to the deployment of a missile defense in the 1990s. The SDI budget has been cut to levels that postpone the achievement of test objectives by several years, and a major effort is underway in Congress to force a type of compliance with the ABM Treaty that would preclude demonstrations of the first-generation spaced-based defenses regarded by the Department of Defense as feasible for deployment in the 1990s.

As a result of these congressional actions, it appears that the United States will have no defense—and certainly no defense based in space—against Soviet ICMBs in the 1990s. That is unfortunate, because a spaced-based defense located on satellites orbiting over the Soviet Union, that can shoot down the Soviet ICMBs as they rise from their silos, would have a paralyzing effect on Soviet first-strike planning. Since the planner cannot tell beforehand which missiles and warheads will be shot down and which will get through, he cannot target key sites, such as missile silos and command posts, and be confident of their destruction. Thus, the sine qua non of a successful first strike—the guaranteed destruction of the adversary's retaliatory forces—is denied to him. Space-based defenses, even if their effectiveness is limited, have a toxic effect on first-strike planning.

This is not true of the "point" defense favored by some members of Congress for the protection of our MX silos and other key military sites. The Soviet planner, confronted by a point defense surrounding a small number of critically important sites, can assign five, 10 or even 20 warheads to those sites to be confident of their destruction; and yet he will have consumed only a very small part of his arsenal on those targets. But if he is confronted with a space-based defense, and feels it is essential to achieve the same level of confidence in (Continued on page 226)
In response to your requests, the Centennial Jubilee NSDAR Committee, Mrs. William Henry Sullivan, Chairman, is pleased to publish the Charter Members of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution. At the organizational meeting which formed the National Society on October 11, 1890, the names of 18 women were enrolled for membership with 11 paying dues. These signatures are preserved in the NSDAR Archives. When the Charter membership list closed on October 11, 1891, the last National Number was 818.

Subsequent issues of DAR Magazine will publish the complete list of Charter Members in National Number order with Revolutionary Ancestor and brief description of the service rendered.

Massachusetts

The Massachusetts Society Daughters of the American Revolution had a highly successful ninety-third State Conference at the Marriott Motor Hotel, in Auburndale, Massachusetts, Mrs. Eric G. Hook, State Regent, presiding. The meeting was called to order at 2:00 o'clock on Thursday, followed by the opening exercises and welcome by the manager of the Newton Marriott, Mr. Olof Arnheim, with a response given by Honorary State Regent, Mrs. Robert Lubker. Introduction of honored guests by Mrs. Hook included: Mrs. Donald Dean Zimmerman, Registrar General; Mrs. Gabriel Omar Saavedra, Past Curator General and National Chairman, DAR School Committee; Mrs. Donald J. Morton, Past Vice President General and National Chairman, Genealogical Records, and Honorary State Regent; Mrs. Robert H. Lubker, Honorary State Regent and National Vice Chairman, Lineage Research, Northeast Division; Miss Gertrude MacPeek, Honorary State Regent; and Mr. Joseph H. Mitchell, Executive Director, Crossnore School. Hostess Chapters for the Conference were from District VI.

The reports of the State Officers were given, telling of our accomplishments during the past year. The State Regent expressed her appreciation for the response to her Regent’s Project of the Corbin Collection and to the Nathaniel Gorham, Signer of the Constitution, memorial marker. The State Registrar, Mrs. Donald M. Hazard, reported a membership in the state as 3457 members and seventy-four chapters. State Counselors, National Chairmen, National Vice Chairmen, Northeast Division, and District Co-Directors were presented by Mrs. Hook.

The invocation was given at 7:00 p.m. by the State Chaplain, Mrs. William Potter, at the Conference Banquet, followed by introduction of guests. Mr. John Butler, Headmaster, Hillside School, and Mrs. Butler attended. Maple syrup from Hillside was on each table. Mr. Mitchell had his special gifts for the dinner guests and gave a short talk. Mr. Raymond F. Fleck, Past President of the Massachusetts Society, SAR, presented Mrs. Hook with a Medal of Appreciation and a certificate from the Massachusetts Sons of the American Revolution.

The Conference reconvened on Friday morning with opening exercises followed by the State Regent welcoming members and guests. Mrs. T. Baird Lewis, National Vice Chairman Northeast Division, DAR Schools, and Honorary State Regent, Rhode Island; and Mrs. George C. Houser, Honorary State Regent, and Past Vice President General, were additional honored guests. Mrs. William Potter, State Chaplain, conducted a most inspiring Memorial Service. Mrs. Barbara Firth was soloist and Mrs. John O'Malley was the pianist.

Mrs. Donald Dean Zimmerman, Registrar General NSDAR, and Honorary State Regent of Illinois, was the luncheon speaker, who spoke on the “Challenge of Membership.” Mrs. Susan Hooker, State Chairman, Good Citizens, presented the 1987 Good Citizen Division Winners with Christopher J. Carbone, Haverhill High School, as the State Winner. The Massachusetts State Outstanding Junior, Lorinda Luce (Mrs. Douglas), was presented by Miss Elizabeth Klein, State Chairman, Junior Membership Committee, and given her pin.

After adoption of the Courtesy Resolutions, Benediction, and retiring of the colors, the ninety-third Conference came to a close.—Madeline F. Pond.

Colorado

Anticipation was high as Colorado Daughters gathered in Denver for their 84th State Conference March 16-17. This year the President General would visit!

Mrs. Raymond Franklin Fleck, President General, was welcomed by the State Regent, Mrs. Perley W. Prior. Mrs. Fleck’s charm and warmth made the Daughters happy to contribute to the Climate Control and “Pipes and Drum” projects.

At the Monday morning opening Mrs. Perley W. Prior, State Regent, introduced the honored guests—Mrs. Fleck, Mrs. Frank Seymour Crane, Vice President General from Colorado, and Mrs. Frank J. Frick, National Chairman of the Friends of the Museum Committee. Other guests were Mrs. Harold Mitchell, Honorary State Regent of Hawaii and Mrs. Thelma Gardner, President of the Colorado American Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Prior reported that she traveled 11,668 miles in visiting 30 Chapters. Before the Conference was over she would add to her titles “Honorary State Regent.”

Arkansas Valley Chapter of Pueblo presented the flags of Spain, Great Britain, France, Texas, Mexico and the United States—the countries that claimed Colorado between 1787 and 1876 when Colorado became a state.
During Monday's luncheon Mrs. Daniel F. VanDerWerken, Regent of Denver Chapter, was named Outstanding Junior. Awards were also given to the Good Citizen, the Outstanding History Teacher, the History Scholarship winner, the Outstanding VA Hospital volunteer, and the History Month essay winners.

The Monday evening banquet honoring Chapter Regents included a drum demonstration. Mrs. Fleck's imitation of a steam train leaving the station and coming back caught the attention of everyone.

At Tuesday's luncheon Dr. Alfred O. Ginkel, President of Bacon College, was the featured speaker. The State Chairman of Children of the American Revolution, Mrs. James T. Golden, Jr., introduced their State President, Miss Karen Whitehair, and Senior State President, Mr. Frederick O. Jeffries, Jr. New 50-year members were honored.

Pre-Conference events included the Memorial Hour, the 50-year Member High Tea, the State Officers Club dinner and the Get-Acquainted dinner.

At the Memorial Hour a tribute was given to Mrs. Alexis Coquillard, State Vice Regent, who died during the year. Breakfasts featured a speaker from the Denver VA Hospital and the slide program, "40 Steps to the Constitution." The State Officers Club met for a formal dinner and other members enjoyed an informal Get-Acquainted dinner.

The Conference included the election and installation of officers for 1987-89. The Society will be ably led by its new Regent, Mrs. James T. Golden, Jr., member of Peace Pipe Chapter. Mrs. Golden has been National Chairman of Public Relations and has had many positions as National Vice Chairman of Western and Southwestern Division Committees, as well as State and Chapter offices.

The Conference closed with "Blest Be the Tie," after which the new officers formed a reception line and were greeted by the members.

Indiana

The Indiana Daughters held their 87th Annual State Conference at the Marriott Inn, East, Indianapolis with Mrs. Marion Hugh Miller, State Regent, presiding. The Conference Theme was, "The reward of having done a thing is to have done it."—Emerson.

Pre-conference activities taking place on Sunday included the Dedication Ceremony of the State Regent's Project, the beautification of President Benjamin and Caroline Scott Harrison gravesite at Crown Hill Cemetery. The President General, the 74th Army Band, Fort Benjamin Harrison, visiting State Regents, State Officers, the Executive Vice President, Crown Hill Cemetery, members of the Harrison family and guests participated in the ceremony.

Processional music for the Conference was provided by Mrs. Morris Conly, pianist. Mrs. Marion H. Miller, State Regent, called the Conference to order. After opening ceremonies and posting of the colors, Mrs. Cornelius B. Oster, Central District Director, hostess for the Conference, welcomed all and Mrs. Robert P. Rehl, State Vice Regent, responded. The State Regent then extended Greetings and introduced the distinguished guests: Mrs. Raymond F. Fleck, President General; Mrs. Richard O. Creedon, First Vice President General; and Mrs. Tom Werner, Honorary Vice President General.

The Monday Session consisted of reports from Committees, State Officers, National Chairmen and Vice Chairmen. The film "Portrait of a Daughter" was shown and Mrs. Carl Bastian honored the 50-year members present. Nominations of the candidates for the State Officers for 1988-1991 then took place. Reports of National Committees continued and Mrs. Howell Osborne, State Chaplain, conducted the Memorial Service with music provided by the Misses Mary and Ruth Berkebile. Tributes were given to the memory of Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, Honorary President General, and past State Officers.

The Formal Opening Banquet took place Monday evening with a concert and the processional by the 74th Army Band. Mrs. Miller welcomed the assembly and introduced the Distinguished Guests who brought greetings. Other outstanding guests were Mrs. Nancy B. Garber, Indiana's 1987 Outstanding Junior Member; Mrs. Ernest Chandler, Senior State President, C.A.R.; and Mr. Matthew Murray, State President, C.A.R. Mrs. Raymond F. Fleck, President General, after playing the drums and directing the Army Band for one number gave a talk "Open a New Window."

After the benediction a reception was held in the Atrium honoring the President General.

Mrs. David Thompson, State Librarian, gave a talk, "How to Enjoy Being a Chapter Regent." Voting took place and at the business session reports continued. The resolutions were read, discussed and voted upon. The Conference unanimously endorsed Mrs. Marion H. Miller as a candidate for Vice President General, and all nominated State Officers were elected. The 87th Indiana State Conference closed with the Daughters joining hands and singing "God Bless America."—Elizabeth D. Johnson.

Michigan

The Michigan Daughters held their 87th annual State Conference at the Michigan Inn in Southfield, with Mrs. John F. Weaver, Sr. presiding. The theme of the conference was "We Are A Nation."

The Assembly Call was sounded by Mrs. Perry L. Bailey and the Processional was played by Dr. Jean Cheger. After opening ceremonies and the posting of the Colors, Mrs. Weaver read greetings from Governor James J. Blanchard, and a welcome from the Mayor of Southfield.

Mrs. Weaver presented Mrs. Raymond Franklin Fleck, President General, and the other distinguished guests: Mrs. Clinton F. Stimpson, Vice President General; Past Vice Presidents General; Mrs. James J. Eastin and Mrs. Maxwell E. Hunt; six Honorary State Regents; out of state distinguished guests: Mrs. Ivan M. Niedling, Vice President General, (Continued on page 228)

Special Procedures for the Use of NSDAR Library
from April 10 through April 24, 1988
Including Continental Congress

NOTICE: Because of the tremendous growth in the size of the Library's book collection in the past few years, new book stacks were added in February 1988. This has reduced the floor space for extra tables considerably, and as a result SPACE WILL BE VERY LIMITED IN THE LIBRARY. Extra tables will be placed on the balconies. Please note that the library is open to members only the week before Congress as well as the Saturday and Sunday before. IF POSSIBLE, PLEASE TRY TO VISIT THE LIBRARY BEFORE CONGRESS WEEK.

1. The Library is closed to all non-members from April 10 through April 24, 1988. Spouses of DAR members will be admitted on a space available basis and will be charged the regular user's fee of $5.00 for each day.

2. For April 11-15 and April 25-29 the Library will be open from 9:00-4:00. During the week of Continental Congress hours will be as follows:
   - Saturday (April 16) 8:00-5:00
   - Sunday (April 17) 1:00-5:00
   - Monday—Friday (April 18-22) 8:00-5:00
   - Saturday (April 23) CLOSED
   - Sunday (April 24) CLOSED

3. Book donations received during April will not be acknowledged and processed until after Congress.

4. Photocopying (During Congress: Regular procedures apply otherwise). ORDERS TAKEN IN LIBRARY OFFICE.
   a. Limit: 25 pages per day in one or several books per person.
   b. All orders should be presented with the book or file to be copied, and with order form and payment. Orders are taken in the Library office. PLEASE PRINT YOUR NAME AND FULL ADDRESS ON EACH ORDER YOU SUBMIT.
   c. All orders must be pre-paid; 15¢ per page. Double paging only if size of book permits.
   d. Orders may be picked up in the Library Office the following day. Arrangements can be made to mail copies to your home if you have your full address.
   e. Rare books and books in poor condition may not be photocopied. This decision will be made by the Library Director.

5. The stacks may be closed for short period each day to enable the shelvers to replace books. This will be based on existing conditions. Please only take three (3) books from the shelf at a time.

6. Members returning Bookworm Project materials should give these only to Mr. Barker or Mr. Grundset to insure proper processing.

7. By order of the D. C. Fire Marshal there will be no sitting in the aisles between the bookstacks.

8. Volunteers are needed to help with various tasks, particularly book shelving and photocopying during the week of Congress. Please let the Library Director know if you will be able to help. Volunteers can earn Bookworm Credit for assisting during Congress.

MRS. RICHARD P. TAYLOR
LIBRARIAN GENERAL, NSDAR
WITH THE CHAPTERS

THE CRAB-ORCHARD (Crosville, TN) sponsored a celebration of the Bicentennial of the Signing of the US Constitution which was highlighted by a concert by the 101st Airborne (AASLT) Band of Fort Campbell, Kentucky. A stirring hour-long patriotic concert featured Mancini marches, “God Bless America,” Lee Greenwood’s “Good Bless the USA,” selections from “Star Wars,” and “Superman” and closed with the very popular “Stars and Stripes Forever.”

One of the highlights was the recitation of the late General MacArthur’s speech “Duty, Honor and Country” accompanied by music which expresses the feelings of those in uniform for their country.

Tennessee State Supreme Court Justice Charles O’Brien delivered the featured address. He reminded the nearly 300 attending that “Today we enjoy the freedoms we do because of the daring, imagination and vision of those few men who created our Constitution. And it was indeed a creation, a labor of love for which they risked their lives and their property.”

LANSDOWNE (Pennsylvania), Mrs. Joseph M. Williams was presented a fifty-year pin by Mrs. John J. Kous, Regent at the chapter’s Annual Luncheon and Fashion Show. In 1936 Mrs. Williams joined the Wyoming Valley Chapter in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, where her aunt was an active member. In 1950 she became a member of the Lansdowne Chapter. Although kept very busy for forty years with a demanding teaching career, Mrs. Williams managed to impressively serve the DAR on local and state levels. She held the position of Chapter Historian, Chairman of the Pennsylvania State Society DAR Student Scholarship, Chairman of DAR Magazine Advertising, Chairman of Lineage Research, and Chairman of Hospitality. The recruitment of new members is of the utmost importance to her, and she has been responsible for bringing in numerous members.

Mrs. Williams was honored by the SAR for the recruitment of members. For a number of years, she has collected Campbell soup labels for the Hillside School and manufacturer coupons for Crossnore. She has also coordinated the planting of trees in Philadelphia’s Fairmount Park. The trees, which were planted adjacent to Memorial Hall in memory of loved ones, were donated by DAR Chapters in the Southeastern District of Pennsylvania.

The Lansdowne Chapter is very proud to have Mrs. Williams among its membership. She is truly an asset.

ARROW ROCK (Missouri), held its first meeting of the fiscal year at the Old Tavern. In commemoration of the two hundredth birthday of the Constitution, a tea was sponsored by the members for all women in Arrow Rock. Thirteen members, two associate members, and nineteen guests were present. After a social hour when refreshments were served, the meeting was opened in ritualistic order led by the Regent, Mrs. Carl Morrow. The program had been planned by committee of three: Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. Robert Feuers, and Mrs. Robert Hodge. Mrs. Smith read three excerpts from the New Age in regard to the Constitution. Each person was given a copy of questions and answers about the Constitution.

The tables were decorated with posters about the Articles of the Constitution, its preamble, and the Bill of Rights. Five minutes were devoted to National Defense. A display concerning the Constitution is at the Post Office lobby for this week of celebration.

Members present were Regent, Mrs. Carl Morrow; Vice Regent, Mrs. David Perkins; Chaplain, Mrs. Mary Lou Pearson; Rec. Sec’y., Mrs. Frank Kruger; Cor. Sec’y, Mrs. Robert Feuers; Treasurer, Mrs. Kenneth Van Arsdale; Registrar, Mr. James Smith; Historian, Mrs. Arnold Katesman; Parliamentarian, Mrs. Wm. Burt; and Mrs. Sallie Haley. Mrs. Mary Lou Pearson, Mrs. Bruce McLaughlin, and Mrs. Verl Rinne. Associate members were Mrs. Ruth Burge and Mrs. Robert LaRue. Guests included Miss Kathryn Borsman, Mrs. John Emmerson, Mrs. Ted Fisher, Mrs. Richard Forry, Mrs. Rolla Humburg, Miss Corinne Jackson, Mrs. Rosemary Kelly, Mrs. James Kennedy, Mrs. Whitney Kerr, Mrs. Johnny McDaniel, Mrs. William Miller, Mrs. Arthur Ozias, Mrs. Patrick O’Reilly, Mrs. J. B. Perkins, Miss Karen Alexandria Perkins, Miss Lisa Smith, Mrs. Buena Stolberg, Mrs. Harry Thomas and Mrs. Bingham Turley.

A luncheon honored the State Regent, Mrs. Clark Froman, at State Headquarters, Roslyn Heights, in Boonville, MO.

DISTRICT VIII (New York) celebrated the Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States with a luncheon meeting followed by a debate on “The Use and Abuse of the First Amendment.” Over 100 DAR members, SAR members and guests attended the event, which was held in the Buffalo Marriott.

Abigail Fillmore Chapter was the hostess chapter, and Katharine Pratt Horton Buffalo Chapter assisted with arrangements. The idea for the program originated with Mrs. Clinton P. Ivins, Jr., Abigail Fillmore Chapter’s Chairman of the Bicentennial of the Constitution Committee. Mrs. Ivins was General Chairman, and Mrs. Robert B. Whitney of Katharine Pratt Horton Buffalo was Reservations Chairman.

Mrs. Robert L. Herron, District VIII Director and member of Abigail Fillmore Chapter, gave the welcome and invocation. Mrs. Richard A. Kamprath, Regent of Katharine Pratt Horton Buffalo Chapter, led the Pledge of Allegiance and the National Anthem. Mrs. Arthur S. Merrow, Registrar of Abigail Fillmore Chapter, was the pianist. Mrs. Rowland A. Rupp, Jr., Regent of Abigail Fillmore Chapter, introduced the moderator and panel.

The debate was confined to two issues surrounding the First Amendment, the Fairness Doctrine (equal time) and the libel threat to the media. Professor Jacob D. Hyman of the University of Buffalo’s School of Law and Jurisprudence was the moderator. Panel members were Leslie G. Arries, Jr., President and Chief Executive Officer of WIVB-TV, Buffalo’s Channel 4; Leonard W. Halpert, Editorial Page Editor of The Buffalo News: James L. Magavern, Attorney at Law with Magavern & Magavern and Adjunct Professor of Law at the University of Buffalo; and Dr. Sarah Slavin, Associate Professor of Political Science at Buffalo State College.

Sitting in on the debate were Buffalo State students who are currently enrolled in Dr. Slavin’s course in American Civil Liberties. After each topic was debated by the panelists, questions from the floor were addressed. The program concluded with a benediction by the Reverend John A. Buerk, Pastor of Parkside Lutheran Church in Buffalo.

ERASMUS PERRY (Silver Spring, MD) placed a wreath on the grave site of Daniel Carroll, a Maryland signer of the Constitution, at St. John’s Catholic Cemetery in Forest Glen, Maryland, in honor of the 200th Anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, of the USA.

Attending the wreath laying were Mrs. Kenneth LaSala,
GREAT BRIDGE (Norfolk, VA) placed first in the state American Heritage Committee. The continued interest in Virginia's rich heritage extended with a bus trip to Petersburg battlefields. We met at the Battle of Great Bridge Monument and the mayor of Chesapeake presented a handsome proclamation acknowledging our efforts to preserve the memory of one of the first land battles of the Revolution on December 9, 1775.

Our Flag Day Observance was at the MacArthur Memorial where the general and his parents are entombed, and Representative Owen B. Pickett was the featured speaker. A television editorial on the event was aired four times.

The public was invited to "Take A Bite Out of the Constitution" for each Friday noon when we had speakers on the Federalist Papers: two federal judges, a mayor, and a university professor. They spoke in the garden of the Moses Myers House. Moses Myers moved to Norfolk 200 years ago so our view was quite timely.

KING'S MOUNTAIN MESSENGER (Fayetteville, TN) dedicated the plaques and monuments honoring a Revolutionary War Patriot, Robert Stephen, and his consort, Sarah Farmer Stephen.

From a higher hill strains of the bagpipes reached our ears in the valley below as Al Hummel's band reached our ears. The colors were posted by the DAR. Refreshments and a social hour were held in the Church Dining Room.

ELIZABETH ROSS (Ottumwa, IA). To be living in this age 1976-1987 is to experience a special patriotic fervor. Caught up in the recognition of what the founding of the United States of American means to us 200 years later has encouraged many creative expressions commemorating our historical past.

The Arts Council provided an opportunity in the summer recreation program to learn about apple-head figures. So the thirteen colonial dressed men representing the delegates to the Constitutional Convention were created and have been used to speak for the founding fathers.

With an audience participation format a 13 part script (taken from the DAR magazine, August/September 1985) was used to present a 35 minute program at our regular meeting. It was well received and word spread that it was an appropriate, timely program for a variety of women's organizations. To date 15 presentations are being made. The figures were on display at our Southeast Iowa District Meeting. They were presented on our local television station (KOLATV) in an interview.

Another script is made available in vocabulary appropriate for elementary classroom presentation. Each participant is given a colonial figure to hold. attended by Senator Flynn and Westchester County Legislator, Kay Cansky, who also presented the graduating seniors with county honor certificates.

During the year, Kesekick enjoyed town of Sunnyside, the home of Washington Irving; the Cropsey House, the home and studio of Francis Jasper Cropsey, a renowned painter from the Hudson River School; Washington's home near Fordham, attended by Senator Flynn and the graduating seniors with county honor certificates.

FRANCIS LAND (Virginia Beach, VA) welcomed new citizens and commemorated the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution by working with the City's Commission on a special Naturalization Ceremony.

HATCHIE (Bolivar, TN) in honor of the Bicentennial of the Constitution, members of Hatchie Chapter, Bolivar and Heritage Chapter, Memphis placed an American Flag at the grave of Revolutionary War Patriot Colonel Ezekiel Polk. Located in Polk Cemetery in Bolivar, Col. Polk was grandfather of President James K. Polk.

In opening remarks, Mrs. Oscar Harris, Jr. Regent of Hatchie and Chickasaw District Director, said "Today, We the People of these Patriotic Chapters could think of no better way to begin our celebration of the Bicentennial than to honor this Revolutionary War Colonel, who was a signer of the Mecklenburg Declaration."

Two members of Memphis Chapter SAR also assisted in the ceremony. George Albright gave the prayer of dedication and Oscar Harris, Jr. added that "in placing this flag today we honor all the brave and courageous men of the American Revolution."

Earlier in the day a DAR marker was dedicated for member of Hermitage Chapter, Mary S. Wright Chester, sister of Mrs. Fiveash. Assisting in the dedication were Hermitage Chaplain, Mrs. George Albright and Hatchie Chaplain, Mrs. William Haas.

The day ended with a reception at "The Pillars," ancestral home of Mrs. Fiveash. Hatchie members hosting the occasion were Regent-elect Mrs. Jim Cox, Mrs. David Durrett, Mrs. Maurice King and Mrs. Woodson Savage, Jr.

ARDMORE (Oklahoma). We, The People, celebrated the Bicentennial of the Signing of the Constitution with a most unique program in Central Park of Ardmore.

Mrs. Theron Korns, Regent, welcomed everyone present. The Assembly Call given by bugler, Cory Deyalsingh; posting of the colors by Color Guard of the Oklahoma Army National Guard, Ardmore; Flag Salute led by Jamie Mitchell and Stacey Curtis; 4-H Club members; National Anthem sung by Kendall Green, Ardmore High School; and Invocation given by Dr. Harold Dowler First Christian Church, followed.

At 4:00 p.m. the bells of St. Mary's Catholic, First Presbyterian and St. Philip's Episcopal churches rang 200 times with silence following.

Mrs. Nora Harris, DAR Constitution Chairman, was the emcee. A certificate of commendation was presented to Ron Deyalsingh (most recent naturalized citizen of Ardmore) by Mayor Glenn Jones.

"Little Americans" a young singing group from Will Rogers School, sang patriotic songs. Mrs. Harris introduced guests and thanked everyone who had helped make the Constitution Week so meaningful: the VFW, Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, Campfire girls, Boy Scouts, Boys Group Home and American Legion for displaying the flags on our Main Street every day and for taking them down. She mentioned that the picture, "The Signing of the Constitution," was on display at the Public Library. Also she thanked the five radio stations, the two TV stations and the American National and Lincoln Banks for their marquee publicity. The Daily Ardmoreite and the surrounding towns gave wonderful coverage in their newspapers.

An address on the Constitution was made by Attorney Wilson Wallace and he stressed Americanism to young and old alike.

The Handbell choir of the First Baptist, First United Methodist, First Christian and First Presbyterian churches performed a "first" by playing patriotic songs out of doors for the first time. The benediction was by Howard E. Mims of Exciting Warren Memorial United Methodist Church.

Refreshments were served by the Home Demonstration Clubs and the Ardmore Church Women United.—Marguerite Harder.
8th Pennsylvania Regiment of the American Revolutionary Brigade acted as honor guard of the ceremony.

The Ohio Society wishes to thank the Fort Laurens Chapter, Mrs. Thomas Ingersoll, Regent, for arranging the local details and for providing all in attendance with a luncheon at the St. John’s United Church of Christ, in Bolivar. We appreciate the beautiful floral wreath, made by Mrs. Thomas Savage, past Regent of Canton Chapter.

ALEXANDER McCULLAR (Manford, TN) continued its excellent and extraordinary programs and genealogical workshops. Members were ushered back two centuries when the hostess, Mrs. Larry Gustafson, greeted them in authentic Colonial costume, replete with cap and “granny glasses.” She is shown welcoming Mrs. Nell Sanders Aspero, regent (left) and Mrs. L. Kenneth Malhoit, Vice Regent, center. Typical refreshments were switchel (drink), sweet potato muffins, baked ham, Sally Lunn bread, tavern biscuits, almond butter sauce, and buttermilk pie! A Recipe Booklet of these Williamsburg foods was given each guest.

Emphasizing Genealogy, Rhodes college history professor spoke on Searching Early Colonial Records while the Memphis Librarian told of Genealogical Material in Mormon Church Libraries in Memphis and in Salt Lake City. Members were treated to a Neopolitan luncheon prepared by the Regent’s husband from recipes brought by his mother from Naples, Italy.

One of our new members, Mrs. Maxine Crowless Hansberger, entertained us as her luncheon guests at Chickasaw Country Club. Another is the wife of U.S. Navy Commander Henry A. Hudson, who was our National Defense speaker at Rhodes College Luncheon.

American History Month was observed at University Club luncheon with Dr. McCarthy DeMere speaking on Finding Your Roots. He is an internationally known plastic surgeon, former Tennessee State President of Sons of the American Revolution, now Surgeon-General of National Society, SAR, recipient of DAR Medal of Honor sponsored by our Chapter. Mr. Robert Burt of Kansas, also a DAR Medal of Honor recipient, was another guest.

The Bicentennial of the signing of the Constitution of the United States was celebrated with a Luncheon entertaining us as guests of two new members. The program was given by our three women-lawyer speakers, and open to the public, our regent Nell Sanders Aspero, pioneer woman attorney with almost 50 years of courtroom practice, speaking on “The Constitution and Its Amendments; former assistant attorney-general Kathleen Spruill spoke on prosecution of violators, while Jan Rochester described defenses available to the accused.

REPRISAL (Newport, NH) experienced an interesting year in the field of American history. A noteworthy program was the presentation of an original script on Jane Appleton Pierce, New Hampshire’s only First Lady. Several members participated in the accompanying tableau. An American Flag was presented to the historic Old Fort Number 4 in Charlestown, NH, by Mrs. John Killoran, a member who serves as a volunteer hostess there.

Excited interest in Revolutionary History was occasioned by the discovery of a bronze John Paul Jones medal in chapter archives. It had been presented in 1920 by Elizabeth Biddlecombe, who had served as a Red Cross nurse in World War I. She purchased it from the French mint. We voted to present it to the John Paul Jones House in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. Several members attended the presentation.

The chapter honored its outgoing regent, Mrs. John Newman, by recommending her for the NSDAR History Medal, based on her historical activities in her home town, which resulted in her feature article in the DAR Magazine. The award was presented by Mrs. Sara B. H. Smith, Vice President General.

The Bicentennial of the Constitution has been recognized by the planting of 200 pine seedlings at an historic site. The September 12 meeting was a patriotic observance honoring the signing of the Constitution, at which the Regent, Mrs. A. John Gilbert, presented an excellent program on, “The Constitution of a Free Country.”

COLONEL JOSEPH STOUT (Hopewell, NJ). Twelve fifth grade students at the Hopewell Elementary School won several prizes in the New Jersey “Junior American Citizen’s” Contest. Four students who achieved recognition at the state level also earned awards at the National level.

The 1986-87 theme for the contest was “The Making of the U.S. Constitution.”

Mrs. Douglas T. Terhune chaired the JNC contest for the Colonel Joseph Stout Chapter.

The students were honored at Awards Day at Rutgers University in New Brunswick and by the local chapter.—Betty Leverton.

MARY STUART (Tupelo, MS) celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary and the marking of the Siddall Place, restored law office of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Lee Carnathan, 316 North Broadway Street, Tupelo Mrs. Keith Grisom, Regent of Mary Stuart, gave the welcome. Mrs. Gary Lee Carnathan, First Vice Regent of the Mississippi State Society, introduced the guests. The Siddall Place was built in 1895 and was marked to exemplify an early example of beautiful Queen Anne Victorian architecture in the North Broadway Historical District of downtown Tupelo. Mrs. Carnathan, Chaplain, led in the DAR Ritual. Mrs. Grisom presented the marker in the name of Mary Stuart Chapter to Mr. and Mrs. Carnathan. The Tupelo Gum Tree Marking followed. Mrs. Balfour Ruff served as the tree chairman while Mrs. Martha Jean Lanphere gave the history of the Tupelo gum tree. Mrs. Carnathan told the DAR Story followed by Mr. and Mrs. Carnathan’s leading a tour of The Siddall Place. A reception followed in the courtyard. Mrs. S. E. Fleming, Jr., served as overall chairman. Two hundred Mississippi and out-of-state DAR members and guests attended.—Margaret DeMoville Carnathan.

LUCY WOLCOTT BARNUM (Adrian, MI). The year 1986-87 was a busy time for members and the results were most gratifying: treasurer Louise Blanchard received a State award for her efficiency; Jean Burkey was cited by State for her special work as Chaplain; the yearbook received a first place ribbon from State and a second place ribbon from National headquarters, due to the diligent work of Dorothy Arnold and Blanche Willnow. Ruth Mary Westfall was recognized by State as an outstanding Registrar and the chapter received a gold ribbon from National headquarters for meeting all requirements for the honor roll, which included donations to local, state and national charities, schools and scholarships.

At the April meeting, Mrs. Ruth Jerrells was honored on her 100th birthday as a Past Regent of the chapter, and an active member for more than 55 years. During its 75 years of existence, our chapter has devoted much time and money to working with youth in local and area schools through the Good Citizens and American History programs, and also helps to sponsor students through awards for ROTC performance and through scholarships.

Major Dennis, who also was awarded several Purple Hearts for wounds received in Viet Nam, is the head of the ROTC Department at Hillcrest High School, the school that Chucalilla supports by presenting an annual Bronze Medal to the Outstanding ROTC student. Chucalilla has presented this award for over ten years in an effort to encourage good citizenship. The Memphis High School ROTC program is one of the largest in the country and Hillcrest has a highly successful program.

Mrs. Wieters said the DAR group will continue to work with Major Dennis and school principal Elmer P. Ray.—Dina L. McKelvey.

CAPT. JOHN JOSLIN, JR. (Leominster, MA) participated in the Tri-City Bicentennial of the Constitution Parade held in Leominster. Cities participating in the Tri-City celebration were Leominster, Fitchburg, and Gardner. There were 168 entries comprised in the four divisions which paraded along the three-mile route past the reviewing stand on Leominster’s common.

The chapter entered a float, the theme being Women’s Suffrage. Chapter members dressed in early twentieth century dress portraying Suffragettes addressing the public in front of a red brick town hall complete with a U.S. Flag, urged “VOTES FOR WOMEN!” Overall, the members passed out over 100 copies of the U.S. Constitution to parade observers near the reviewing stand.

The red, white, and blue decorated truck with float may not have won in the competition, but the chapter is proud that it participated in the community celebration of this most valuable document.—Elaine Perreault.

GENERAL JAMES BRECKINRIDGE (Roanoke, VA) held a Grave Marking Service for Revolutionary soldier, Capt. George Hairston. The service was held in the family cemetery at this Beaver Creek Plantation home in Henry County, near Martinsville. Invitations were sent to State DAR Officers, Martinsville and Henry county Officials and to all known descendants.

About 150 attended, including 20 descendants of slaves who had worked on the 230,000 acre plantation. Six descendants took part in the service. Regent, Mrs. Glenwood Strickler, presided. The Invocation was led by Dr. Alpheus Potts, husband of a chapter member. Presentation of Colors by American Legion Post, Martinsville. Pledge of Allegiance, Mrs. John Cooper, Committee member, the National Anthem by area High School Band. Welcome by Mrs. Sidney Deems, Regent of General Joseph Martin Chapter, Martinsville. Purpose by Historian, Mrs. Charles Aldridge, Introduction of Guests, Mrs. William Windle, District Director. Louisa Hairston Breden introduced the Speaker, the Honorable Peter Hairston, Superior Court Judge of North Carolina, who spoke on the Life and Service of George Hairston. The Regent and Chaplain, Mrs. Foley, led the Dedication. Unveiling the grave stone and marker were Donald Hairston Breden and Christopher Roper Thompson, descendents. Robert Hairston placed the wreath and Anne Wilson Thompson, descendant, accepted the marker with words of appreciation to DAR. Rev. Wilbur Sims pronounced the Benediction. After the retiring of the Colors, the Service closed with Taps. At least eight DAR Chapters were represented and Descendants came from as far as Mississippi.

SAVANNAH (Georgia) Chapters, Savannah, Lachlan-McIntosh and Bonaventure, held a Constitutional Centennial Luncheon at the Plantation Club. There were 102 guests at the Luncheon with many of the Daughters in Colonial Costume. Judge John Sognier spoke on how the Constitution was formed, with emphasis on Georgia’s Abraham Baldwin’s contribution. Catharine Warth, an honorable mention winner of the Bicentennial Commission’s essay contest was honored. The Bonaventure Chapter made a “NO” to a Constitutional Convention display with blank cards for senators and representatives with names and addresses for guests to write to if they so desired. Red, white and blue balloons were used for the table.—Margie Griner.

GRAND CANYON (Mesa, AZ) We the People...members of the chapter, teachers, parents, students, and the media gathered at the Pima Elementary School in Scottsdale, Arizona on Constitution Day 1987 to celebrate two centuries of one of the most important documents ever written for the benefit of mankind.

As 312 enthusiastic children waved their American Flags adorned with red, white and blue, the Chapter members, the students and the teachers joined in. "This Land is Your Land." Then students who were chosen as Good Citizens from each classroom added cups of soil from 12 of the 13 original Colonies to the Arizona soil to plant three commemorative pine trees, to which the Grand Canyon Chapter contributed funds.

The bell from the original Scottsdale’s Little Red School House was brought to the celebration by Mayor Drinkwater. Ten other children took turns ringing the old bell 200 times as bells all over America joined in. The Mayor read the Proclamation designating September 17-23 as Constitution Week.

One special, caring, Teacher/Librarian, Eleanor Zoeller, of Pima School was honored two days later at our Chapter Constitution Week Luncheon meeting for her efforts in helping to establish this Bicentennial of the Constitution celebration that these children will never forget. A pin, depicting the Rising Sun, as shown on the cover of the September issue of the DAR Magazine, was presented to Mrs. Zoeller by the Grand Canyon Chapter and supplied by our Arizona State Regent, Mrs. Fay Glenn, who also attended the celebration.

Howard V. Peterson, Justice of the Superior Court of Maricopa County, Speaker for the Luncheon meeting, gave us information on the Bill of Rights to the Constitution. A question and answer session followed giving many members greater insight.

Grand Canyon Chapter would like to recommend a good fund raiser for your chapter, with little work involved! We’ve enjoyed two Silent Auctions this past year and our Chapter Treasury was increased by almost $150. These extra funds enabled 312 young Americans to have their very own American Flags.—Paula Amos Upton.

JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER (Whittier, CA). In Colonial dress members entertained with a Tea which was attended by over 100 members and guests. The Tea served a dual purpose, celebrating the 100th birthday of the City of Whittier and honoring winners of the Good Citizens Contest and the American History Essay Contest. The Mayor of Whittier, Gene Chandler and California State Vice Regent, Mrs. Starr E. Deuel, assisted in the presentation of the awards to the students.

The members again donned their colonial attire to participate in the Whittier Centennial Parade. Some of them marched carrying the DAR Banner and flags of the 13 Original Colonies while others rode in a horse drawn carriage and a covered wagon.

The chapter also contributed to and attended the dedication of a Town Clock, which was placed on the grounds of Whittier City Hall in honor of the Whittier Centennial.

MASSANUTTON (Harrisonburg, VA). The celebration of the 90th anniversary of the chapter was held at the Belle Meade Restaurant after having been postponed a week due to snow. The meeting was called to order by Regent, Mrs. R. C. Windmiller Jr., and a welcome was extended to all, including seven visiting Regents. Mrs. James Weaver, Chaplain, gave the invocation.

During the luncheon, special stringed music was provided by two James Madison University students, Mill Jacqueline Stone and Paul McNabb. The duet provided a background of 18th century music. Mrs. Robert Frazier presented the State Regent's March which was composed by Mrs. Frazier. The group present then sang Happy Birthday to the Massanutton Chapter, led by Mrs. Frazier.

Following lunch, our immediate past Regent, Mrs. E. M. Onsager, led the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag and the American's Creed. The group present sang the Star Spangled Banner led by Mrs. Frazier. Mrs. Wilbur Harnsberger was recognized for 25 years of membership.

Mrs. Edward Honts was introduced as Martha Washington and, in costume, gave a delightful and informative program on life in colonial America and her role as wife of George Washington.

The raffle for the pink knit wrap, handcrafted by Mrs. Windmiller, was completed and Mrs. James O'Donnell drew the name of the winner, Mrs. Betty Forkvitch.

HUNTSVILLE (Alabama). Mrs. Walter R. Byars, State Regent, was guest at Huntsville Chapter, Mrs. J. W. Ivey, Regent; Hunt's Spring Chapter, Mrs. Vaughn Stewart Regent; and Twickenham Town Chapter, Mrs. Frank Morring Regent, at a Bicentennial of the Constitution coffee at the new library facilities in Huntsville. Other Alabama Society Officers attending were Mrs. Ewin H. Aubuchan, Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. G. T. Green, Flag of the United States Chairman, Mrs. Eugene Sanders, State Librarian, and Mrs. A. E. Pierce, Conservation Chairman, Mrs. Betty P. Swenson, National Chairman, Transportation and Safety, Mrs. Thornton Wallace, Chairman Board of Trustees KDS.; Mr. Mike Gillespie, Chairman Madison County Commissioners; Mr. Robert Frazier, Adams: Administrative Assistant to Mayor Davis; Dr. Frances Roberts, Huntsville Historical Society.

Some of the Daughters were in costumes of the period. The Library Auditorium was filled with refreshment tables covered in blue with red and white carnations.

Following the introduction of guest, the DAR ritual was read, the mayor's proclamation of Constitution Week was read and presented to the City. A special tribute to the flag was given by Mrs. Robert Middleton; a special prayer for our country was lead by Mrs. Thornton Wallace.

Prof. Lawrence Nelson of the University of North Alabama History Department gave an address on the Constitution: "America's Gift to the World."

GREAT SMOKIES (Gatlinburg, TN) celebrated the Fourth of July in a gala manner by decorating and having several members ride on a float in the Midnight Parade in Gatlinburg, billed as the FIRST July 4th Parade in the nation. It was covered by the Press and National Television. Hundreds of red, white, and blue lights and many American flags on the float were witnessed by more than 75,000 cheering spectators.

DAR members played an active role in the week long events celebrating the Bicentennial in Gatlinburg. They acted as hostesses for the signing of a large scroll, a replica of the Preamble to the Constitution, which attracted thousands of townpeople and tourists. The scroll will be a permanent display in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Members also judged fifty essays written by school children on the topic "What the Constitution Means To Me." Awards were made to the winners.

Spot announcements on a local radio station were given by several DAR members, reaffirming their belief in, and giving their thoughts on the Constitution.

On September fourteenth, Wilma Dykeman, nationally known author, reviewer, and Lecturer, was the guest speaker at a Luncheon at the Open Hearth Restaurant in Gatlinburg hosted by Great Smokies and neighboring chapters, William Cokc and Spencer Clark, in celebration of Constitution Week. Among distinguished guests were members of the Board of Managers, Sons of the Revolution, from Knoxville.

On Constitution Day an American flag was presented to the new Community Center in Gatlinburg.

CLARK COUNTY (Missouri) observed the Bicentennial of the Constitution by holding an open house and tea at the Courthouse. The ladies, dressed in colonial costumes, served tea and appropriate finger foods made from colonial recipes.

Clark County has the distinction of being the final resting place of two Revolutionary War soldiers. Pictures of both graves, along with pertinent information, were on display. Much patriotic literature, including copies of the Constitution, were presented to the many guests who helped the ladies celebrate the important occasion. A background of colonial and patriotic music gave the appropriate atmosphere to the affair. At the close of the day, the Daughters were joined by the local Old Settlers Committee plus the band and the student body of the Clark County R-1 School for the balloon release and bell-ringing.

Ladies of the local chapter felt honored to have their Director, Mrs. Russell Roberts, as one of the guests.—Alice Gallup.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR MELVIN A. STEINBERG PRESENTED THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION—BICENTENNIAL DAY PROCLAMATION IN THE STATE HOUSE IN ANNAPOLIS TO MRS. DAVID S. HAWKINS, STATE REGENT (l) AND MRS. CHARLES A. BLOEDORN, VICE PRESIDENT GENERAL FROM MARYLAND, (r).
WHEREAS, September 17, 1987 marks the grand 200th anniversary of the drafting of the heralded Constitution of the United States of America by the Constitutional Convention; and

WHEREAS, History has shown us time and again that this mighty document truly is "the greatest document for human liberty in two thousand years of recorded history," and the vital principles and provisions contained within it have served as an inspiration for all; and

WHEREAS, Our Constitution gives us the firm foundation to foster a free, prosperous and independent life for every citizen... a belief that helps to sustain and strengthen the glory and the promise of our magnificent nation; and

WHEREAS, Maryland, the great Free State, is pleased to join in this celebrated and deserving tribute to our country's distinguished Founding Fathers... as we shall always be both grateful and indebted to them for the outstanding wisdom and foresight which they displayed in writing, adopting and implementing our Constitution.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, WILLIAM DONALD SCHAEFER, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF MARYLAND, do hereby proclaim September 17, 1987 as UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION - BICENTENNIAL DAY in Maryland, and do urge all citizens to join with our proud Daughters of the American Revolution members in celebrating this milestone.

Given Under My Hand and the Great Seal of the State of Maryland, this 17th day of September, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Eighty-seven.

destroying these key sites, he must multiply his entire arsenal by a factor of five, 10 or 20, since he does not know beforehand which particular missiles in his arsenal will be shot down. Since the present Soviet arsenal cost some $700 billion, that would mean an expenditure of trillions of dollars.

This is only true of the space-based defense, not of the ground-based "point" defense. That is one of the main reasons why Defense Secretary Weinberger has insisted on the inclusion of a space-based layer in even the earliest defenses under consideration by the Defense Department for deployment.

The outlook for the next 10 years is not promising. The congressional politics of missile defense—and especially the opposition to early deployment of a defense from prominent Members of Congress—are such that in the early 1990s the Soviet Union is likely to have a lethal combination of a first-strike attack force and a defense against retaliation—and the United States will have neither. In these circumstances, we believe it will be clear to all that American government cannot protect its citizens from a nuclear attack, and is no longer a nuclear superpower. The consequences, writes Robert Gates, Deputy Director of the CIA, will be "awesome—negative for stability and peace." We suggest that this development will be seen by the world as the greatest military reversal the United States has ever suffered, with catastrophic political consequences certain to follow.

ROBERT JASTROW is President of the George C. Marshall Institute and founder and past Director of the NASA Goddard Institute for Space Studies. JAMES FRELIX is Executive Director of the George C. Marshall Institute and former National Security Affairs Analyst for the U.S. House of Representatives.

Peet, was recognized.

The afternoon session chaired by Mrs. Walter Fysh, State First Vice Regent, had the State Chairmen’s reports and gift presentations. Mrs. John A. Collins, State Chaplain, conducted a moving Memorial Service for 106 departed Michigan Daughters.

Over 250 attended the Banquet and repeated the Preamble to the Constitution. The President General, Mrs. Fleck, gave an inspiring talk, “Open a New Window.”

Mrs. James E. Hartmann, Jr., State Chairman Junior Membership, assisted the State Regent in presenting 20 Certificates to Junior Members in attendance. A reception was held honoring Mrs. Fleck, the distinguished guests, the Honorary State Regents, the State Executive Board, National Vice Chairmen, National Appointees, and the Hostess Chapter Regents.

The National Defense Luncheon had Captain Joseph Walch, USNR, talk on “One Navy Committed Around The Globe.” The assembly sang the Michigan Sesquicentennial song. The 87th State Conference closed with the singing of “Blest Be The Tie That Binds” and the DARs went home to inspire their chapters.—Jane T. Moulthrop

Dear Daughters:

Congratulations to all those chapters which achieved Magazine Advertising Honor Roll credit for 1987-1988. Many of you put a great deal of time and energy into your ads, and your efforts show! More and more of you are discovering the benefits of camera-ready ads, which allow you to create ads to your exact specifications. Remember, all camera-ready ads receive a 10% discount on ad space, too.

Honor Roll reports were mailed to State Regents and State Advertising Chairmen on February 17, 1988. As stated in last month’s letter, any corrections (submitted in writing) needed to be received within 30 days, therefore due on or before March 18, 1988. As of that date the finalized report will be turned over to the National Honor Roll Chairman.

Now that we are into a new Honor Roll year, you should begin to think of ways your chapter or state can increase their advertising. One way to do this is with commercial advertising. DAR Magazine is a widely read publication and is an excellent means for businesses to reach potential customers. In addition to receiving Honor Roll credit for commercial ads, your chapter or state would also receive commission on the ads. If you have any questions regarding commercial advertising, or need commercial advertising kits, please contact the Magazine Advertising office at (202) 879-3248 or 879-3284.

Sincerely,

Miss Marjorie Giintner

Even With The Advances In Modern Medicine Today, Cancer Is Still A Very Great Risk

No matter how careful you are, cancer can strike at any time, without warning. And there is little any of us can do to avoid it.

According to the American Cancer Society,* cancer will strike in approximately three out of four families. That's one in every three Americans.

But today with early detection many types of cancer can be cured. We are fortunate to have radiotherapy, chemotherapy, surgery and other unique forms of treatment available. But all this takes time... and money.

Long-term cancer care is just not covered under many basic health insurance plans. That's the whole reason behind special cancer expense policies.

The NSDAR Group Cancer Expense Protection Plan, underwritten by Mutual of Omaha, will help supplement your basic hospitalization policy with high limit lifetime benefits of up to $250,000 per insured person.

This Plan covers you through every stage of cancer care. Benefits are provided for both in-patient and out-patient treatment, drugs, therapy, surgery, blood and even medical transportation.

ACT TODAY TO LEARN MORE ABOUT THIS VALUABLE COVERAGE

Just complete and mail the coupon below for complete information about benefits, features and cost of this program. When you receive this information in the mail, you can decide for yourself if this program is for you. You are, of course, under no obligation.
