Margaret Brent (1601-1671) was born in Gloucester, England, the sixth of 13 children. Because of her conversion and that of most of her family to Catholicism, the family was forced to choose the new colony of Maryland in order to escape religious persecution and the loss of family fortunes. Margaret arrived in St. Mary's, Maryland on November 22, 1638 bearing a letter from Cecil Calvert granting her and her sister the right to hold land in their own names. Upon the death of Gov. Leonard Calvert, Margaret was named administrator with power of attorney for his estate. This was extremely unusual for a woman at this time. She found his affairs in disarray with heavy debts to mercenaries used to put down a rebellion.

Because of her position and her land holdings, Margaret demanded of the Assembly that she be granted two seats. She also demanded the right to vote. She has been called “the first woman lawyer in the world,” and the original suffragette.

In honor of Women's History Month, the cover photo, from Historic St. Mary's City, depicts Margaret as she makes her appearance before the Maryland colonial Assembly.

Dear Daughters,

The city of Washington is awakening from the long winter and it is exciting to note the harbingers of spring around National Headquarters. The pansies are brighter than ever, the jonquils are pushing up into the welcoming sunshine and the cherry tree buds are swelling to burst forth with colorful blossoms.

March is Women's History Month and it is appropriate to remember and honor the women who helped establish our great nation and the Four, who with unequivocal foresight founded our National Society. As Mary Smith Lockwood wrote in her famous Washington Post article: “Were there no mothers of the Revolution?”

From her vision and that of Mary Desha, Ellen Hardin Walworth and Eugenia Washington evolved the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

You as women are also to be honored for you to continue to carry the torch for Education, Historic Preservation and Patriotism. Your membership is a sacred trust to promote the programs and goals of DAR and to instill in others the good that makes America great. Continue to enlist new members to join you in this unique quest—our programs are many and varied.

In addition to the new computer and telephone systems reported to you last month, more changes are taking place at your National Headquarters. You will be welcomed during Continental Congress by new doors at C and D Street entrances. The Ladies Lounge area in Constitution Hall is being enlarged and renovated. The Seimes Microfilm Center has been relocated to offer more convenient and efficient service.

Your President General is looking forward to her visits to State Conferences during March. It will be a pleasure to review the many accomplishments that move the Society forward into the future toward a new century and dedicated service through God, Home and Country.

See you at the 108th Continental Congress where we will meet in Unity of Spirit and Unity of Purpose.

Yours in DAR love,

BERGAMAND FERGUSON LANE
In 1756, Colonel George Washington, commander-in-chief of the Virginia forces, had difficulties concerning rank with an officer holding a royal commission. He found it necessary to go to General Shirley, commander-in-chief of his majesty’s troops in America.

Colonel Washington left the headquarters in Winchester to ride to Boston attended by an aide-de-camp, an Englishman, whom he had engaged at short notice, by name Roger Morris. Colonel Washington was a young, handsome man, full of ambition. His keen, blue eyes took in everything in the way of adventure.

When he reached New York he visited a dear friend, Beverly Robinson, who remained true to him until the Revolution began. At this time Robinson lived in a grand old manor house in what is now Yonkers. It had been handed down to his wife from her father, the Honorable Frederick Philipse, who had been speaker of the assembly. The house and grounds which were large and beautiful overlooked the Hudson river. The family consisted of Mistress Robinson, her husband and her sister, Mary Philipse, a very beautiful and accomplished young woman. She was extremely fascinating in her manner and most men lost their hearts to her, but she seemed to enjoy their homage. She had a graceful figure and a pair of dangerous eyes. Her skin was white and fair, and her glossy, black hair framed her attractive face. On the night of Washington’s arrival, Mary was not at supper. Later when they were sitting on the veranda, they heard a voice singing an old song. The conversation flagged. Washington became attentive at once, for the musical tones were sweet, full of that something which appealed to the emotions. The notes stirred the brave colonel. The words were distinctly uttered:
"When thou are far a'wa—
Thou'lt dearer grow to me;
But change o' place an' change o' folk
May gar thy fancy free.

"Tis thoughts that bind the soul
And keep friends in the mind,
And if I think I see thee now
What can part thee and me?"

The tender voice grew more distant and died away.

"To whom are we indebted for this pleasure?" asked Colonel Washington.

"It must be Mary, she did not join us at tea," said Mistress Robinson, "because she had been for a ride and was late in returning. Shall we go in and see her?"

But before they could do so Mary stepped out.

"Good evening all," she said cheerfully, then seeing Colonel Washington, she paused. "I had forgotten you had a guest."

Robinson introduced them. They began an animated conversation and were so interested that they did not observe how soon the other two withdrew, and that they were alone in the summer night, with the romance, the ideals of their lives just opening before them. Something, perhaps, of this they realized when they looked into each other's eyes.

Meanwhile the river shimmered and shone in the waning light and beneath, far down, flowed the darkness of the waves.

"Do you see that long pathway of light?" Mary said, at last somewhat seriously. "What do you think is beneath it? It is like a life, Colonel, is it not? My life, for instance."

"Your life is all sunlight, if you will, Mistress Philipse," he answered. "There can be no darkness, no gloom for you."

"One can never tell," she said thoughtfully.

"And yet I am sure that you will never be unhappy."

"It's very kind of you to think so cheerfully about me, but just as sure as there is darkness beneath that stream of light so beneath this happiness of my life, trials will come. I must say good-night, Colonel," she ended, giving him her hand. He saluted it, saying:

"Good-night, fair Mistress Mary, may your dreams be sweet. God keep you." He watched her go, her step light and noiseless.

He stood there some moments lost in a reverie. The fair face of Mary Philipse seemed to be with him, entangling him in a web from which he did not try to escape. He fancied he could see and know that beneath the careless beauty of her face lived a soul, pure and true.

Colonel Washington's stay with the Robinsons was short for he was obliged to go to Boston. The farewell with Mary was by the gateway, a quarter of a mile from the house. She went thither with him, walking beside him while he led his horse. She was dressed in a quaint, flowered muslin. The delicate bloom of her fair skin showed through its gossamer texture. Her wide brimmed bonnet was tilted over her eyes. Roger Morris, his aide-de-camp, came in sight as they reached the gateway. He was waiting for the colonel. He was a fine specimen of an Englishman, as he stood straight and tall holding the bridle of his horse.

"Present me, Colonel," she said gaily.

The aide-de-camp bowed low over the young girl's hand.

The colonel, alert to the slightest change in Mary, detected a peculiar expression on her face, as with eyes lowered, she received his salute.

"You also go with Colonel Washington?" she inquired.

"Undoubtedly, Mistress Philipse," Morris replied.

"Come back soon, Colonel," she exclaimed, adding in a teasing voice, "and be sure to bring Captain Morris with you."

"Of course," was the reply, and saluting her with their swords, the two rode away.

Morris was a few paces behind the colonel, he turned to look, Mary stood watching him, her bonnet off and she threw him a kiss.

Soon after, Mary received a letter from Washington; others followed. In all she read between the lines the true manly nature gradually becoming interested in her. Perhaps, she might in time return the feeling.

Meanwhile Washington did his errand in Boston and sent Morris further on. During their separation letters passed between them, for Washington became attached to his aide-de-camp and wrote him confidentially about Mary Philipse. He did not disguise from him that he was in love and wondered if Morris detected the slightest sign of a return of his affection in the short glimpse he had of her. To this Morris replied that he feared the lady's heart and hand were already given to another. Washington would not believe him, but continued writing effusive epistles regarding Mary.

So matters stood when the two met and returned to the old manor house. They lingered indefinitely. They walked, they rode with Mary and in the evenings they listened to her as she sat at the spinet singing quaint songs. The colonel was not quite satisfied to have Morris continually at hand, so he made an errand for him to a neighboring city. In the interval Washington hoped to ask Mary the question nearest his heart. And she, during this dream of summer, did not stop to think where the days were leading. On the day after Morris left, Washington surprised her with an open letter in her hand, she flushed hotly. A misgiving, a doubt overwhelmed him and Morris's warning recurred to him. It sped away and the midsummer lived again with Mary beside him. Looking into her eyes he forgot his ambitions, his patriotism.

On a certain afternoon they were alone. They had been for a walk. They paused in Mary's garden under the shade of an oak tree. Mary was more silent than usual, she seemed tired. Washington had just told her of a summons to camp.

"Yes, Mary," he said, as they rested on a bench, "to-morrow I shall be leaving here. It is imperative that I go, much as I wish to stay."

"Will you not remain longer? I wish you would," she replied, urgently. She recovered her usual light-hearted manner as she continued. "You were telling me about your wife—the woman you will marry, wern't you?"

"Yes, Mary, yes," he said, following her mood. "Yes, my wife will be beautiful, and I shall adore her."

"Indeed, and will she adore you?"

"She will have to."

"But how will you manage, suppose, Sir, you marry a coquette? Would you like to see your wife flirting with other men?"

"I should love to, Fair Mistress, my wife, if I ever have one, can do anything on God's earth she pleases," he laughed, goodnaturedly.

"I somehow do not believe you would really care to have her flirt with other men," she said seriously. He made no answer.

"But I have almost given up hope of marrying. Those days are over, and I am settling down into bachelorhood."

"What nonsense, Colonel, of course you will marry."

"I sometimes fear, Mary, that in my love for the battlefield, and my country, I might forget my wife, and she would never understand if I seemed unresponsive."

"You do not seem to realize that your wife would be the one person in the world who would thoroughly understand you, and know you as you are, good and true and..."

"And what? what else? Mary, dear girl, tell me the rest."

"And to be loved, Colonel," she ended slowly.

"By you Mary?"

"Perhaps, later on, do not ask me now, for we were but arguing," she said.

"But I must know, now. I have waited too long as it is. I love you," he said, with deep feeling.

"And I can only say," she answered, "hope for nothing from me, at the same time, accept my regard for you, my—"

"It is love, Mary, you have for me. I know it, I know it," he exclaimed, drawing her to him, and for a moment she allowed his embrace.

"If this be not love, Mary, then what is it?" he whispered.

"For me, sorrow, misery, let me go, for this is impossible," she said, in a troubled way, and he obeyed her.

Quite slowly they proceeded to the house.

At the dining room door she turned hastily, giving him her hand, "Good-bye, Colonel, I shall not see you on the morrow."

"I shall not go to-morrow," he answered, "I have decided to wait until my aide-de-camp returns." A flash of fear, confusion came into Mary's eyes. Washington saw it, and was glad he had made the decision to stay.

"So this is only good-night," he added, as they parted.

During the next two days he saw little of Mary. He noticed that she appeared nervous and her eyes, when they met his, were full of sadness. He confessed he did not comprehend her. On the evening before Morris was expected Washington was walking along the shaded road which led to the house.

"Will Mary ever love me?" he thought. "She is the only woman I shall ever love." Suddenly he heard footsteps approaching, he stopped abruptly. Roger Morris walked swiftly toward him from an adjoining path.

"You!" Washington, exclaimed in astonishment, "I did not expect you until to-morrow."

"True, Colonel," Morris replied, trying to master his embarrassment, at the meeting. "I returned sooner than I thought, because I found I could do so. Your errand was accomplished in a few hours. Did I do right in coming to-night?"

"Quite right, Morris," the other replied. They walked toward the house.

"I think there is some one coming along the road," Washington remarked.

After an interval, Morris, whose eyes had been seeing her at a great distance, agreed that there was.

"Who can it be out here alone?" Washington continued in a curious voice. The figure came nearer, she was all in white, and he was amazed to see Mary Philipse. Her face too, was without color, save for the luster of her eyes and her red lips. She did not look surprised at encountering Morris and on a sudden, her presence was clear to Washington.

"Mary," the colonel said calmly, "you did not expect to meet me here. "Tell me honestly."

"No, I did not."

"You came to meet Captain Morris?"

"Yes."

They moved slowly on. Mary between the two men. She could see Morris’s clear-cut profile distinctly as they came out into the full light of the moon. As for the other, she could not distinguish his features. She felt his mood, however. She knew he was suffering and she blamed herself for what had passed between them, yet she rejoiced over much he had told her. How still the night! Now and then a chirrup of a cricket or a call of a katy-did. Mary knew her future now. It stood beside her in the form of Roger Morris. A year or two before, she had given him her faith, long before she had met Washington, she must keep her word, though the keeping of it meant pain to one very dear to her.

"I am sure, Colonel, you will excuse us, if we leave you at this turn. I have a grave matter to talk over with Mistress Philipse," Morris remarked, as they paused in the walk.

"I wish it, Colonel," she replied, gently.

"Mine, darling, mine, mine," he said.

"Yes, Roger, yours," she answered, slowly.

"You say it, but let me feel your kisses on my lips, your arms about my neck."

The embrace she gave him and the kiss were both quiet, gentle, but he was satisfied.

"I do believe, Mary," he remarked afterwards as they neared the house, "that Colonel Washington is in love with you or at least admires you."

"Possibly the latter, Roger, for you know many men have done that."

"Yes, I know. I must prepare myself not to be jealous of you, once you are my wife," he said laughing.

"You will have no cause, then," she replied seriously.

"Perhaps I may," he went on, still laughing.

"Since you seem to wish it, perhaps you may," she exclaimed, lightly, and then she bade him good-night and went in. The night was reaching out to the dawn, but still Washington sat on the veranda, watching the scene before him. The ever moving river, the wide expanse of country before him, and above, the moon creeping forth, stealing over him, and over the ruins of his love castle, which he had built so carefully, so tenderly, so hopefully! He knew that smoldering among the ruins, burned a dull, eternal fire of constancy, that would never go out, no matter if in after years he might marry. Mary had an odd personality, but he thought he had fathomed its depths. At this moment he heard some one move near him, a flutter of a gown, a light footstep. He turned in his chair to behold her standing close beside him. Her singular beauty made him gaze and gaze at her.

"Mary," he said, in a low voice, rising and grasping her by the arm. "You here, God help us both."
"I could not rest until I had said good-bye. I heard you would leave to-day," she said firmly.

"Yes, to-day, in a few hours. It will be soon time. But why should you come after what has happened?"

"Because, oh, because I wanted you to know I could not let you go without a word." She laid a hand on his, his closed over it.

"Mary, Mary," he said, "What do you mean? There is danger for both of us. You know I love you."

"Yes, yes, and I—She hesitated and looked long into his eyes. He dared not trust what he saw there.

"And you—you?" he asked.

"Oh, can you not see? Do you not know how much I care whether you go or stay. I wish tomorrow would never come. I wish that we might never say good-bye," she exclaimed.

"You mean you love me?" he asked, still holding her.

"I mean I love you," she answered.

"But you are bound to Roger Morris, isn't this the truth?"

"Yes, I know, I know," she went on, "I have given my word to marry him, and so I will, but you shall know that my love is yours."

"Mary, do you know what you are saying, giving me joy, sorrow, all in a moment?"

"Yes, but I had to say it. I could not rest until you knew. I could not let you go, with a word." They stood speechless, each regarding the other—a glance of love—of adoration. She crept closer to him, her face calm, love-lit.

"For one moment let us believe we are happy, just you and I and no one else," she said caressingly.

"Mary, I love you," he repeated. "There is no one else but you here in my arms always. God help us, and keep you for we must part now. Farewell." He turned away.

"It will be the last time we shall be together," she said.

Suddenly he stooped and kissed her and thus they parted.

On the morrow he departed for camp life. In the confusion and din of battle he did not forget Mary Philipse. Her image was with him.

He heard that his aide-de-camp had proved unfaithful to him and his cause, so he dismissed him from his service. Thus the two men separated.

Meanwhile Mary and Roger heard reports of Washington's love and devotion to her. They tried to stop the idle gossip, and it was finally hushed, when they were married, and most positively, when two years later, Colonel Washington wedded.

In the year 1775, grave troubles arose between the British and Americans and soon came the battle of Lexington. Roger Morris was in the thick of the fray with Beverly Robinson at his side. Both men had gone over to the British, and thus, in a measure, Washington's friendship ended with Robinson.

After Mary's marriage she and her husband lived in New York and her house was visited by noted personages. Her husband adored her, and did everything for her comfort and happiness. Sometimes he grew uneasy and doubtful as to whether he alone possessed Mary's devotion. It was when news reached them of Washington's increasing fame. Her face would flush like a girl's and her eyes grow very happy as she listened, but her husband never alluded to it. Thus their lives passed in a peaceful way. Later, however, troubles began to brew, for when Morris joined the British, Mary's estate was confiscated, in punishment for her loyalty to the king. However, she did not lose courage, but remained her husband's ally and a staunch upholder of his cause. At last she found herself alone with scarcely enough to live on and keep her children in clothing. She now decided to go to Washington and intercede for their rights.

Washington was passing through New York at the time, staying at the old headquarters facing what is now the Battery. He was to be there but one night. He had not seen Mary Philipse for nearly twenty years. What changes since then! He thought of her now as he sat before a huge log fire. Thus after twenty years this love of his youth lived in his heart.

Presently as Washington sat dreaming, watching the flames leap higher, higher, taking with them his fame, his ambition, and leaving below the settling ashes of his love, some one knocked. A servant was admitted bringing word that Mistress Roger Morris sought an audience. He started slightly as he bade the man admit her. While he waited, there came to mind his last meeting with her. The agony, the joy of that moment were lived over again. He stood by the mantle-shelf as she came in. He was not prepared for the sight of her for she seemed, even after all this long time, as fair, as sweet, as ever. The same trick of the eyes, the well-beloved face and gentle manner. He had expected a change in her, but there she stood, the same almost as when she had kissed him twenty years ago. It sent the hot blood to his face, and made him feel as he had in that well-remembered past.

“Mary,” he said, taking both her hands in his.

“Mary, can it indeed be you?” What happiness this is to see you here, to feel your hands in mine, to look into your eyes.”

“And I to see you, General, still the same,” she hesitated, her eyes looked away.

“Yes, Mary, yes.” For a moment there was silence. Then she said: “I have come, General, to plead for my estates, which have been confiscated, as you know, on account of my husband’s loyalty to the king. Is it right, is it fair, General, to me, to him, and to our children?” she asked very urgently.

“Yes—I know—I know—such contentment is little enough for you—you—who can love so truly, and—so—but General, I thank you for taking an interest in my troubles.”

“There is nothing to thank me for, I would do more if I could.”

She went to his desk and looked at the documents, the letters piled away. A secret drawer, by some mischance, had sprung open, and in it was a miniature of herself, which she had given him years ago. “You have this even now?” she asked, taking it in her hand to look at it.

“Yes, even now,” he replied, earnestly. The room was very quiet as they stood there. The place seemed pulsing with memories; memories of that dear well-remembered love of theirs. He roused himself from the spell which was over him.

“Mary,” he exclaimed, hurriedly, “I will see that your children are righted, and so farewell.”

“Forgive my coming to you,” she said, “I did not know you still cared.”

“Good-bye, Mary,” he said, in a voice full of love, of tenderness.

Pressing her hand a moment, in farewell, she passed out of the room. Later she received notice that the rights of her children were not effected by the attainder.

Mary’s life from this period grew calmer, and she lived in comparative seclusion. She returned with her husband, her children, and her sister to the old estate on the Hudson.—Reprinted from November 1901, American Monthly Magazine, now DAR Magazine.

The battle over the future of college education just got hotter. On May 26 the City University of New York, or CUNY, Board of Trustees voted to phase out remediation at CUNY’s four-year colleges during the next three years, and to limit community college remediation to one year. (The regents’ meeting was the scene of a near riot in which 24 demonstrators were arrested.) Two unlikely allies, liberal Republican Mayor Rudolph W Giuliani and conservative Republican Gov. George Pataki made common cause to support the regents’ plan. CUNY faculty were unalterably opposed to eliminating remediation in four-year schools, as well as limits on repeating remedial classes and limits on financial aid for remediation.

Similar showdowns are looming in several other states. The concerned parties in this fight fall broadly into three camps: 1) “progressive remediationists” who call for unlimited remediation, and unlimited financial aid for students to repeat remedial classes; 2) “moderate remediationists,” who seek to create a nexus between the schools and the colleges, so that high-school graduates will have the skills that college requires; and 3) “antiremediationists” who see in remediation a reward for incompetent teachers and students, and a method for inflating college enrollment. I adhere to the third group.

In New York, massive remediation was necessitated by the CUNY Board of Trustees’ political decision to end meritocracy in favor of open admissions in 1970. This decision guaranteed every New York City high-school graduate a place in the system.

The New York model has long since gone national. Take Louisiana, where Joseph E. Savoie, the Board of Regents’ commissioner on higher education, tells me that 48.5 percent of all first-time freshmen require remediation. Or California, where 43 percent of incoming students in the California State University system need English remediation and 53 percent require math remediation. A 1996 statistical study by policy analyst Linda Knopp of the American Council on Education found that 56 percent of American college freshmen required at least one remedial course.

At CUNY today, 68 percent of four-year college and 87 percent of community college (up 1.5 percent from the previous year) first-time freshmen require remediation, based on having flunked 11th-grade tests in reading and writing and 10th-grade tests in math. CUNY students claim the tests are on a junior-high-school level and that many CUNY classes function on a sixth or seventh-grade level.

Self-styled Progressives defending remedial courses for years have charged that the call for higher standards is part of a racist plot to whiten CUNY. Despite promises 30 years ago of educational miracles, and remediation’s track record since as a virtual guarantor of failure, remediation defenders demand unlimited remediation and unlimited financial aid. Psychology Professor Lawrence Rushing of CUNY’s LaGuardia Community College harangues, “Higher standards without more opportunity to improve is unjust. The real problem with CUNY is that it’s doing its job too well educating all the people, and not just some!”

Let’s take a closer look at the job CUNY is doing. The following complete essay was written by a New York City high school graduate in a community college class:

“I am going to college, to learn a profession for my future. My major is computer science. In this moment is difficult, to someone get a good job. It is important. You go to school to learn, because you finish major. After that you get a good job, in important company. They pay you a lot of money, do you could a position in the society and every do you want. For that I am going to college.”

Remediationists blame the public schools for underserving CUNY’s students. While correct, this tactic boomerangs. For, according to the United Federation of Teachers, between 80 and 90 percent of New York’s public-school teachers themselves are CUNY graduates.

As economist Thomas Sowell has reported, the teaching profession is dominated nationally by the lowest 25 percent of academic achievers. Thus, New York public education is a $13.7 billion-per-year failure. (This breaks down to...
Should Colleges Offer Remedial-Education Programs for Students?

No: They Inflate Enrollments and Turn Colleges into Overpriced High Schools.

paying $7,600 per pupil for the schools, and $21,000 per student for CUNY.)

"While the statewide passing rate on New York's teacher certification exam is 76 percent, the passing rate of State University of New York alumni, with limited access to remediation, is 95 percent. CUNY alumni have a 62 percent passing rate. At CUNY's City College, once the nation's top undergraduate college, the passing rate only is 35 percent. The failures - semiliterate, when not functionally illiterate - keep on teaching.

Inexplicably, remediationists routinely support the progressive writing theories of Linda Brodkey, et al., which insist that it fundamentally is wrong to correct students' writing. Brodkey and Co. argue that remediation imposes a hegemonic, white middle-class culture on indigenous student cultures which are authentic, and even superior to the mainstream culture. Intellectual consistency would require that Progressives oppose remediation.

Why, then, do so many academics and administrators lobby for the continuation of remediation? Their own material interests cannot be ignored. Larger student bodies ensure the flow of aid from state and federal funders. It may be argued that the louder their voices get, the more we hear the money talking. However, if you pay a plumber to fix a leak, and afterward the leak floods your home, you don't give him more money. You sue him and get his license revoked.

Legislators in Louisiana and California are seeking to do something to dam the flood. Louisiana State Sen. Tom Greene, a Republican, sponsored S337 last year to make students and the school districts that graduated them pay for remediation. Greene told me: "There should be a shared responsibility between the institution they came from and the individual that came through that institution. I've had high school teachers tell me 'My whole class will be required to take remediation.' The students' response is, 'I'll just take it in college.'"

In California, Republican Assemblyman Brooks Firestone and Assemblywoman Lynne Leach have sponsored bills to reduce remediation. Firestone staffer Matthew Hargrove explained, "What Brooks needed to do was make the K-12 system teach students to the level they need to get to college. He focused on students who were getting honors grades [but required remediation]. The bill (AB2631 in 1996, and AB37 in 1997) created a nexus. It was not to be punitive, but to make sure the college system got together with the K-12 system."

Leach, who sponsored the Academic Warranty Program Act of 1998, told me, "Those high schools that were graduating students who need remediation upon entering college would have to produce a Remedial Education Reduction Plan; identify resources necessary to enact such a plan and procedures to monitor compliance with the plan."

The proposals by Greene in Louisiana and Firestone and Leach in California passed in committee, but were held up by partisan Democrats from reaching the floors of their legislative bodies for a vote. All three lawmakers vow to bring back their proposals. Savoie, Louisiana's commissioner of higher education, explained that "The idea is to move remediation, which is now done at four-year colleges and universities, to 'teaching institutions,' i.e., two-year schools, which previously had no remedial structure.

Savoie, pointing to a high correlation between the students borrowing money and needing remediation noted: "We are frustrating them, providing them hope and putting them into debt. He explained that due to Louisiana's historical status as an educationally poor state, and the large number of students who are parents attending college part-time, state education officials track graduation rates during the course of 10 years. The state's six-year graduation rate from four-year public schools is approximately 33 percent; the 10-year rate is 45 percent. By contrast, in wealthy New York, the four-year graduation rate at CUNY's four-year colleges is 9 percent; the six-year rate is only 25.7 percent.

Unlike in Louisiana, there is no correlation between remediation and student debt in New York City, where thousands of remedial students pocket more than $5,000 in grants per year, after deducting tuition. Such generous aid attracts many students who are hostile toward learning. Meanwhile, night classes are filled with older, motivated, employed adults who pay twice for their education: first through their tuition, then through their taxes.

As remediation came to dominate institutions (especially community colleges) that often already were dumbed down, it caused a double-dumbing effect, whereby previous academic minimums were eliminated and the difference between remedial and college-level courses lost. And by consciously seeking out blacks and Hispanics, many remedial programs reinforced racist stereotypes of black and Hispanic inferiority.

Many of my predominantly Third World, immigrant students have told me that if they told their friends and family back home of the goings-on in New York's public higher education system, "No one would believe it."

Sadly, graduates of urban remedial colleges routinely are relegated to low level jobs that a generation ago were done by high-school graduates. President Clinton and the Progressives want everyone to attend college. Who will do the millions of manual-labor and service jobs requiring only basic literacy? Robots? Slaves?

The father of progressive education, John Dewey, called for constant innovation; today's Progressives offer no ideas for improving remediation and shun experimentation. Meanwhile, the heroic black educational tradition founded by Booker T. Washington, W.E.B. DuBois and Carter G. Woodson set standards that put today's Progressives to shame. In addition to Dewey and DuBois, I make my composition students read the unfashionable Washington. Despite failing in his first three attempts at building Tuskegee's kiln, the herculean founder of the Tuskegee Institute eventually taught his students to bake the bricks that made Tuskegee's buildings.

Conversely, today's "Progressives" have regressed. These "no-can-do" types routinely excuse failure based on students' color, sex, ethnicity or status as immigrants or mothers. For years progressive remediationists have not offered any ideas on improving remediation, and they privately acknowledge that few students benefit from remediation. Whereas the justification for great public universities was the right of the talented poor to higher education and, indeed, the foolishness of society in squandering their talents, remediation's defenders imply that the talentless poor have the same right. They do not. Nor do talentless educators.

Report of the Executive Committee

Since the report to the October National Board of Management Meeting, the Executive Committee has been hard at work.

A policy for arranging NSDAR events has been adopted to provide guidance to officers, national committee members, appointees of the President General, and employees who may be responsible for collecting fees from members and making arrangements with vendors for events sponsored by the National Society.
The public relations services of Ruder-Finn, Inc. will be terminated, as of December 10, 1998.

A Disaster Recovery Policy will be prepared for NSDAR to include individual recovery planning for all vulnerable areas. All department heads and management staff will be directed to cooperate and participate in such planning with the member of the NSDAR Executive Committee assigned to coordinate this project.

A new telephone system has been authorized to correct the existing non-Y2K-compliant system and to upgrade current electrical service. The new system will provide significant enhancements to member services capabilities and allow for growth and expansion of the number of users and features.

The Office of the Registrar General, Genealogical Division, has been authorized to approve applications and supplemental papers for applicants who descend from individuals in Texas who supplied cattle for Galvez Forces after 24 December, 1776. These ranchers would be designated as having Patriotic Service from South America.

The Centennial Edition of the Patriot Index will be sold for $25 per set (3 books plus Spouses Index). A discount of 40% will be given on orders of five or more sets. Shipping and handling costs will be charged for all orders.

The NSDAR Library will hold a "lock-in" on the night of February 6-7, 1999 following the meeting of the National Board of Management. Members may participate in this overnight opening of the Library by contributing $150.00 for the Librarian General's Library. The library will be prepared in conjunction with the appropriate offices.

The DAR Library will be extremely crowded during Continental Congress. We are closed to the public between April 11 and 24, 1999. The Library will be CLOSED on Sunday April 25.

The Library’s hours during mid-April will be:

Sunday April 11: 1:00 - 5:00 p.m.
Monday April 12 to Saturday April 17: 8:45 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.
Sunday April 18: 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Monday April 19 to Friday April 23: 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Saturday April 24: 8:45 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Sunday April 25: CLOSED

Special Event on Saturday, April 17, 2:00-4:00 p.m.: A lecture, “Advice for Finding Your Family in DAR Collections,” will be given by the Library Director. The lecture fee of $20.00 per person is to benefit the Librarian General’s Library Renovation Project. To register, please send a check along with your name and phone number to the Department Secretary, DAR Library, 1776 D St., N.W. Washington, DC 20006-5392 no later than Friday, April 9, 1999.

PLEASE NOTE: ALL VISITORS TO DAR DURING THE 108TH CONTINENTAL CONGRESS MUST REGISTER AND DISPLAY A REGISTRATION BADGE. MEMBERS MAY REGISTER IN THE O’BYRNE ROOM ON THE LOWER LEVEL AND GUESTS IN THE LOBBY OF CONSTITUTION HALL. NO ONE MAY USE THE LIBRARY AND OTHER RESEARCH OFFICES WITHOUT A BADGE. THIS PROCEDURE IS A SECURITY MEASURE TO INSURE YOUR SAFETY AND THAT OF NATIONAL HEADQUARTERS. Non-member relatives of NSDAR members are discouraged from using the Library during this period. All must register to gain admittance and pay the daily admission fee of $5.00 each. Seating priority is given to members. Members of the S.A.R., the S.R., and the C.A.R. are exempt from the user fee only upon presentation of a VALID (1999) membership card.

NEW PHOTOCOPY PROCEDURES: Photocopy machines accepting coins, bills (to $20) and vendcards are now in place in the DAR Library for researchers to make their own copies. The staff also will make photocopies to alleviate lines at the copiers but a 25-page per day limit will still apply. The option of the staff making and mailing copies after Congress will also be available.

Members returning Bookworm Project materials or submitting Genealogical Records Committee Reports should give these only to Mr. Barker or Mrs. Hopkins respectively.

The District of Columbia Fire Marshal prohibits sitting in the aisles between the bookstacks.

Volunteers are needed to help with various tasks, particularly book shelving and photocopying during the week of Continental Congress. Please let the Department Secretary, Mrs. Evelyn Labrador, know if you will be able to help. Volunteers can earn Bookworm Credit for assisting during Congress.

USE CAUTION WHEN WALKING IN THE LIBRARY, ESPECIALLY IN THE BOOKSTACKS AND NEAR TABLES. WATCH FOR CHAIRS AND STEP STOOLS.

We look forward to seeing you at the 108th Continental Congress.

"MISS ROBERTA"

1999 NATIONAL JUNIOR DOLL

Wouldn't you like to take MISS ROBERTA home with you?

This beautiful hand crafted doll is fashioned after Roberta Simpson, Past Registrar General, Honorary Vice President General, and Honorary State Regent of Michigan. MISS ROBERTA is a porcelain Fashion Doll with piercing blue eyes, light brown hair, and moving extremities. Each Michigan Chapter has contributed to MISS ROBERTA'S extensive wardrobe and accessories.

"How can I take MISS ROBERTA home with me?" you might ask.

Voices can be purchased from your State Junior Membership Chairman or at Continental Congress.

Voices are $1.00 each or 6 for $5.00

Money raised from the sale of the voices will be donated to the Helen Pouch Memorial Fund. This fund is sponsored by the National Junior Membership Committee and it benefits the two DAR schools: Kate Duncan Smith and Tamassee

For more information about MISS ROBERTA please contact:
Miss Susan Hartwig, 27851 Cranleigh Drive, Farmingham Hills, Michigan, 48336-1609

Answers

Question asked:
What are some ways you can honor a Chapter or State Outstanding Junior?
From Virginia.

An Answer Given:
Sandra Wallman Franke, Chairman of the Outstanding Junior Membership Contest Committee of Texas, writes:
In Texas, recognition of an O.J. is not limited to the State winner. We have a separate form for Chapter O.J.s who aren't entering the state contest. The State O.J. is featured in an article and the names of all the Chapter O.J.s are printed in the State Conference newsletter Texas Talk. Every Chapter O.J. receives a certificate from the State Regent at the Junior Breakfast.

THE HEARTBEATS OF THE STATES

ARIZONA
The Arizona State Society has elected 2 Juniors to serve on the state board. Mrs. Julia-Isabel Dameron Lightenberg-Davenport is the State Recording Secretary, and Mrs. Hillary Lewis Martin is the State Historian. Julia-Isabel is also the Organizing Regent of the Paradise Valley Chapter. In her spare time she also designed a web page for each chapter in the state. Visit Arizona DAR on the web www.dnrnow.com/azdar/azdar.htm

TEXAS
Texas Juniors publish a quarterly newsletter, "The Lone Star Regalia", which is edited by Marci Pounders. The State Junior Membership Committee gave over 130 Juniors' Choice Chapter awards at the 99th Texas State Conference. This award is open to every chapter, they are judged on a variety of topics; most Friends of the Juniors, largest donation to the Helen Pouch fund, largest sale of Innisbrook Products, etc.

TARRYTOWN (New York) In September, following a delightful luncheon and business meeting at the Moriches home of Board Member, Bette Lyons and her HODAR, Jack, the Tarrytown Chapter visited the Long Island Maritime Museum in West Sayville.

Administrator of the Museum, Douglas Shaw, and Trustee, Gary Herold, took the chapter on a tour of the buildings and described life in this closely knit community.

In the mid 1800's residents of Holland founded a colony on the South Shore of Long Island because the shell fishing reminded them of their homeland. The fisheries thrived, houses were built and to this day, descendants of those early settlers live in the same houses that their ancestors built. However, due to salinity changes over the decades the oyster industry failed.

The Museum has a display of boats up to 60 feet, and other permanent exhibits. Different exhibits are offered at various times of the year and the current one is a documentary of the destructive and disastrous hurricane of 1938. Many events and fund raisers are held during the course of the year, but the Seafood Festival held for two days in August draws over 15,000 people.

At its October Meeting, the Tarrytown Chapter heard President, William Reynolds' Presentation of anecdotes concerning some U.S. Presidents. He also gave the daughters a test concerning First Ladies.

Mr. Reynolds has often been called the Presidental Historian because of his lifetime interest in and meticulous research into the lives of our U.S. Presidents. It all began at age 8, when he made sure the U.S. Flag was flown outside his classroom windows.

Mr. Reynolds has a background in teaching, lecturing and writing and has recently been appointed Village Historian, Ossining, New York.

TRAVELLERS REST (Brentwood, TN) presented to the new library opening in Brentwood, TN two flags for their use. The Tennessee Flag was obtained from our State Representative, Charles Sargent and the Flag of the United States of America was obtained from Senator Fred Thompson.

The four officers present when the flag was presented by Mrs. Carl H. Wood, Regent were Mrs. William K. Ousley, Treasurer and America and DAR Manual for Citizenship Chrm., Mrs. Edward M. Schumacher, Historian and National Defense Chrm. and Mrs. Raymond J. Morris, Chaplain and Flag of the United States Chrm. The morning was beautiful—two Boy Scouts hoisted the United States Flag and the Tennessee Flag was hoisted by a Girl Scout and a Boy Scout.

LUCY WOLCOTT BARNUM (Adrian, MI). On September 17th, 1998, the chapter of celebrated the signing of the American Constitution. It was the two hundred and eleventh birthday, so seven communities across Lenawee County range church bells at 4:00 p.m. At the Croswell House in Adrian the American Legion helped us celebrate by ringing a large bell and firing a miniature cannon. A proclamation by Adrian's mayor, Mr. Sam Rye, was read by Mr. Richard Bailey, a candidate for State Representative. Our two local radio stations and the Daily Telegram newspaper, published in Adrian, helped us commemorate this special event, along with many local participants—including the Adrian College Golf Team! It was an exciting and wonderful event to celebrate: our great American Constitution.

GENERAL WILLIAM CAMPBELL (Radford, VA) celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of its founding on September 19, 1998. The meeting was held at the historic Harvey House in Radford. The house, built in 1890, is one of the finest examples of Queen Anne architecture in the state.

Mrs. Carl Unfug, Regent, called the meeting to order and then introduced the special guests, Mrs. Robert Lipes, Honorary State Regent and Vice President General; Mrs. Joseph Bush, State Chaplain; Mrs. Dolores Smith, Director of District 7; Mrs. George Scruggs, past director of District 7; Mrs. D.S. Looney, treasurer of district 7; and Mrs. Doris Hawkins, Regent of Alleghany Chapter in Blacksburg.

Mrs. Bush brought greetings from the State Regent, Mrs. Donald Gonchar. The group joined in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, the American's Creed, the DAR ritual and the singing of the National Anthem.

The minutes of the first meeting were read, as were the names of the charter members. Mrs. Howard Bruce was honored for her fifty years of membership in the DAR. She has held many offices and chairmanships at the chapter and district level. She is currently serving as chapter chaplain.

At the close of the business meeting, members and guests were ushered into the dining room where lovely refreshments were served.—Patricia Rutherford.

RHEA-CRAIG (Sweetwater, TN) has completed an active year. We presented Good Citizens awards to three outstanding local seniors. We awarded a Certificate of Appreciation to our local news editor who has supported our efforts in publicizing DAR activities. Mrs. Hicks purchased a flag which was donated to our local library. We have begun the process of replacing an historical marker along the Trail of Tears which had been dedicated years ago by our chapter but which has disappeared recently.

Constitution Week was celebrated with a program on unusual and interesting facts about the makers of the Constitution.

An illustrated narrative history of our chapter was compiled by member Marilyn Ward and edited by Margaret Michaels. The "History of Rhea-Craig Chapter of the NSDAR, Sweetwater, TN" has recently been printed having eight chapters covering the first 65 years. Organized in 1931 by Mrs. C.L. Clark, the chapter is named for two of Mrs. Clark's patriot ancestors: Rev. Joseph Rhea and Capt. Robert Craig.

We are participating in the TN Quilt Project proposed by the American Heritage Committee. A program on DAR Museum Quilts was given by docent Mrs. Paladino. Almost all members brought quilts to display and to photograph for inclusion in the TN Quilt Book. Members gathered for a graveside memorial service of a beloved past member; her children were moved by the placement of a DAR insignia at her grave.

We have enjoyed interesting programs this year. One member presented a program on medicines used in Colonial days. Another visited the DAR library and spoke on the vast wealth of genealogical information to be gleaned from it. There was a program on the Many American Indian Tribes of the 1800's, one on the Cherokee Indians in particular, Women Connected with the White House and Women of the Revolution.

ALEXANDER LOVE (Houston, Texas) celebrated the 75th anniversary of its founding on October 19, 1923, by Mrs. W. A. Rowan and Mrs. I. B. McFarland. On that date a society newspaper columnist reported that "Starting as it does with more than seventy enthusiastic and loyal members, the Alexander Love Chapter expects to take an active part in the social and patriotic work of the city."

A beautiful table, a replica of the one used at a tea celebrating the 25th anniversary of the chap-has grown to thirty-two over fifteen years. Eight members are deceased. Their graves have all been marked with DAR insignia. Participation in area, state, and national meetings has been encouraged. Genealogy has been stressed with workshops. Books have been presented to the local library.

The DAR Good Citizen project has had excellent involvement from three county schools. One young man won the state award.

The chapter is proud to recognize the accomplishments of fifteen years by enlightening members and the community about DAR and subjects of history, education, and patriotism.

JOHN REILLY (Hamilton, OH) would like to welcome Mrs. Cheryl Woodall, our new Regent, and Mrs. Beverly Birchers, our new Vice Regent. We believe they are among or possibly the only twin sisters who are serving as Regent and Vice Regent of a current DAR Chapter. Also belonging to the John Reilly Chapter are a great aunt, Mrs. Eula Cissell, two cousins, Mrs. Brenda Hay and Mrs. Joan Thomas. Their mother, Mrs. Maxene Haynes was previously Chapter Secretary.

PALO DURO (Tulio, TX), October, 1998 marks fifteen years since organizing for the Palo Duro Chapter, Tulia, Texas. Honoring the leadership of five chapter regents is the emphasis for the October meeting which was held in the home of Mary Lee Singer who assisted in organizing. The chapter was organizing by Barbara Foreman in 1983 while Nancy Tiner was state regent and Barbara Harrell was state organizing secretary. Pat Robinson from Los Ciboleros Chapter, Hereford, also assisted. There were thirteen organizing members. An average of twelve to fifteen attend each monthly meeting. Membership

GENERAL HENRY DEARBORN (Chicago, IL) Recently checking over our archives to put them on Microfilm, we again were thrilled and amazed at the vision and courage of the early members of our Society. For example: In 1929 a Mrs. Dawley, Historian of General Henry Dearborn Chapter, learned that the splendid Newberry Library had been built over the site of the Mahlon Ogden residence, the only home not destroyed by the great Chicago Fire! She decided that this information was too valuable to be lost.

In her determination to mark the spot, Mrs. Dawley personally solicited funds, contacted the Library, and arranged for the dedication!

Attending the ceremonies were the Vice President General, Mrs. Chubbuck; State Regent, Mrs. Sweeney; State Chairman of Historic Sites, Mrs. Perry, two members of the Ethan Allen Society, Edwin Patterson and Phillip Ballard; Mrs. Fox, Regent of General Henry Dearborn, and Mrs. Dawley. Accepting the Gift was Mr. Horace Oakley, President of the Library.

It was an exciting find for our Regent, Doris Balogi, our Vice Regent, Margaret Hall, and those of us who were working on the project.—Evelyn Lincoln Fogarty

VIRGINIA BEACH CHAPTERS The Virginia Beach City Public Schools have formalized a long term partnership with the local DAR Chapters. This city is the most populous in the Commonwealth of Virginia with more than 77,000 students attending its 79 regular and six special schools.

For more than twenty years, the Daughters here have encouraged excellence in education by meeting with the Social Studies coordinators, distributing information about DAR programs and projects, speaking to classes on patriotic and historical subjects, and recognizing outstanding students and teachers of American History.

An awards ceremony is held annually in the School Board Room of the School Administration Building. Parents, principals, teachers and honorees are officially welcomed. This year, the Assistant Superintendent, Dr. Sheila S. Magula, brought greetings and thanked the DAR for its continued support.

Then, the DAR honored outstanding teachers of American History. Along with a certificate, the recipients received a medallion commemorating the Battle Off the Virginia Capes, a naval encounter off the coast of the present Virginia Beach which assured victory at Yorktown and brought the Revolutionary War to a close.

An outstanding American History student from each of the 10 high schools was recognized with a certificate and bronze medal. For their winning essays about the Flag of the USA, two 4th graders were given certificates and a children's book about the Battle off the Capes.

At the conclusion of this year's ceremony, there was a surprise for the DAR. Each of the four participating regents—Mrs. Josephine Mathis, Adam Thoroughgood Chapter, Mrs. John Schmidt, Francis Land Chapter, Mrs. Nevelyn Stark, Lynnhaven Parish Chapter, Mrs. Annette Hill, Princess Anne Chapter—received a Partners in Education plaque presented by Layne Timlin, Partnership Coordinator, and Georgia Christie, Social Studies Coordinator, for the school system.—Lillian Yowell this same meeting Mrs. Mildred Grumbling received her 50-year certificate. We have another member, Elizabeth Ryneason, who has been in the DAR 67 years and one. Mrs. Helen Durham, who will be eligible for her 65-years certificate in 1999.

Since this is a retirement area, we expect to have older members in our chapter, and we do have 21 who are 90 years plus, but age has not stopped our DAR obligations, and we still continue with the required chairmenships, we give a local nursing scholarship, we have excellent program speakers, and we received the Chapter Achievement Award Level I for 1997–1998.

We are proud to be ACTIVE OLDER DAR.—Nancy Wellman Bales

CLASSVILLE (Arkansas). The City of Clarksville is celebrated its Sesquicentennial year on December 21st, and the Clarksville Chapter has been busy preparing for the occasion. Commemorative Events Chairman, Dayna Trembley-Hilton, conceived the idea for the chapter to sponsor a Seal Design Contest. After writing the rules and a proposal for the contest, Ms. Hilton presented the Seal Design Contest proposal to the mayor, who, in turn put the issue on the agenda for a City Council meeting. The Council unanimously approved the idea and agreed to let the Clarksville Chapter sponsor the contest and to let the winning seal become the official seal of the Clarksville Sesquicentennial.

After judging was completed, an award ceremony was held at Clarksville City Hall. Shown in the photo at the ceremony, are Steve Rinke, City Alderman and Co-Chairman of the Seal Design Contest, Design Winner, 11 year old Stephen Kajdan, Commemorative Events and Seal Design Contest Chairman, Dayna Trembley-Hilton, and Clarksville Mayor, Marvin Vinson. A proclamation was also signed at the ceremony by the Mayor indicating that the seal was to become the official seal of the Clarksville Sesquicentennial. Stephen was awarded a plaque and $50.00 at the award ceremony. His design will go on a commemorative flag which will be raised during ceremonies in December. The chapter is worked with the Johnson County Historical Society on a postage cancellation stamp with a reception in the lobby of the Clarksville Post Office for the special occasion. Also in the works for the Clarksville Chapter and the Historical Society is a commemorative Coke bottle which will feature the Sesquicentennial Seal. The bottle will be the first commemorative Coke bottle for the city.

Another activity keeping the Daughters busy was a Flag Retirement Ceremony held on Flag Day. Clarksville Chapter planned and organized the event which included Boy Scout Troop 76 and the Johnson County Girl Scouts. Over 100 people attended the event on the Clarksville court square. Plans for next years event are already underway, with more Scouts participating, and the addition of Veterans from this area. Congressman Asa Hutchinson, of Arkansas, has donated a flag that has flown over the nation's capitol for next years ceremony.

For more information and photos, visit the Chapter's website at www.geocities.com/HartlandEstates/T8993.—Dayna Trembley-Hilton SARAH WILLIAMS DANIELSON (Brooklyn, CT). The Fourth of July celebration in Seward, AK brought members of the Sarah Williams Danielson Chapter, Fay Blais, Deane Nelson and Mary Brown, Chapter Regent together. Gayle Cederberg of the Col. John Mitchell Chapter of Anchorage, AK joined them in the parade. Gayle is the Alaska State Flag Chairman, Chapter Flag Chairman, Chapter Chaplain and has been recommended for the National Speakers Staff.

The delegation was well received and much interest in DAR was generated. Seward's major attraction features mountains of granite and ice vaulting thousands of feet above the fishing village as fishing boats ply in and out of port on Resurrection Bay. It is the most coastal town you will have ever experienced and one of the most sensational in its setting. We plan to enjoy this event again next year, won't you join us?—Mary Brown

DANIEL CHAPMAN (Vienna, IL) has the distinct honor of having two members over 100 years old. Edith Bradley Rendleman (Mrs. William), was born Aug. 2, 1898, daughter of Elijah and Sarah Penrod Grammer Bradley. Her home was a farm near Wolf Lake, IL. She became interested in family history, and after writing a book on the Liverpool family, she joined the Daughters of the American Revolution in 1975, her ancestor being Zachariah Lirely, NC. She has recently authored a book of memoirs, "All Anybody Ever Wanted of Me Was to Work." She is a resident of City Care Center, Anna. She had three children, Bill, Bonnie (deceased) and Lee Roy.

Eva Lena Veach White (Mrs. Bob) was born in Vienna Nov. 12, 1898, daughter of W.A. and Leona Mathis Veach. She has always lived in the Vienna area now, making her home in Parkway Manor Nursing Home, Marion. Her daughter, Rose Mary Hunt Orr (Mrs. Harold), became interested in Genealogy, and proved five ancestors, but used John Gaither, MD for her DAR membership. Eva was widely known as owner-operator of Bob White Cafe, Vienna, for many years.

In addition to Eva and Rose Mary, two more generations of the family belong to Daniel Chapman Chapter, Patricia Lou Crain of Raleigh, NC and Robin Courtney Roseberry Anders (Mrs. Johnathan) of Raleigh.

Rose Mary is an Honorary State Regent of Illinois.—Helen E. Garrott

CHEROKEE OUTLET (Alva, OK) is proud to have Dr. Coeta Evans as a member of the chapter. Dr. Evans was recently named to the Hall of Fame by her alma mater, the University of Sciences and Arts of Oklahoma (formerly the Oklahoma College for Women) where she graduated in 1951.

The certificate reads, "This honor comes in recognition of the meritorious contributions to society which reflect an innate personal affinity to superior endeavor."

Dr. Evans received the prestigious honor at USAO's homecoming banquet June 21, 1997, where officials presented her with a "Hall of Fame" medallion and she presented a speech before her former classmates, teachers and friends. She told how her years at USAO allowed her to develop her God given abilities.

Besides USAO, Dr. Evans attended many other universities. Dr. Evans is a licensed dietitian and received State and National honors from several other organizations.

Dr. Evans is an inspiration to all who know her. She served as Regent of the Cherokee Outlet
Chapter 1992–1994, during which time she was instrumental in establishing the Woods County Centennial Wall. Dr. Evans also helped assemble the DAR Room (which features fine presidential china, glassware, etc.) the Indian Room (for which she purchased numerous items besides commissioning work) and the Fireside Room at the Cherokee Strip Museum in Alva.

Dr. Evans grew up on a farm near Taloga, Oklahoma, and is married to Earl Evans. They have four children, all graduates of Northwestern Oklahoma State University in Alva.

The members of three local chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution have been holding joint flag day luncheons since 1923. Mary Little Deer Chapter, Moline, IL; Fort Armstrong Chapter, Rock Island, IL; and Hannah Caldwell Chapter, Davenport, IA held their 75th luncheon celebrating Flag Day and Regent Kathy Carey presided over the luncheon.

The program was presented by the Illinois State Regent, Mrs. Victor G. Marty, who spoke on “Ascending the Columns: Diary of an Expedition.” Mrs. Marty selected her topic to coincide with the renovation of DAR owned Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C.

Honored guests included Illinois State Regent, Mrs. Victor G. Marty; Vice President General, Mrs. John P. Fixmer III; Vice President General, Mrs. Ronald Ootschalk; Iowa State Recording Secretary, Mrs. Christopher Juehring; Illinois Division I Director, Mrs. Robert Magie; Past Vice President General, Mrs. Glendon Gustafson; and Regent of Hannah Caldwell, Mrs. Roger Larson.

Mrs. June Chatterton presented an original “75th Anniversary Prose” about the joint Flag Day celebrations. Lauri and Kelly Carey designed paperweight table favors. Mrs. Lorraine Hathaway researched the 1923–1998 history of the luncheon and developed a souvenir program booklet.

In addition to the joint celebration Mrs. Marty presented a ‘50 year’ membership pin to Bee Fritz.—Kathy Carey Swatara Pine Ford (Middletown, PA). Chapter Meetings were interesting and covered Honor Roll requirements. The first meeting was in one of Middletown’s oldest restaurants, the site of the first Middletown Borough Election on the second Tuesday of April 1828. Before dinner the Regent gave a brief history of the restaurant and the surrounding area. The second meeting was concerned with the ghosts of Middletown, including the photograph of an actual ghost, a Civil War Officer who was killed in battle. The chapter received the Level 3 Chapter Achievement Award.

Members celebrated the chapter’s 77th Birthday by attending a Dinner-Theater, a fund-raising project of the Chancel Choir of Middletown’s Wesley United Methodist Church.

The chapter and Junior DAR benefited from the Chapter’s sale of Christmas Wrappings. The chapter presented one Good Citizens Award and one History Prize to Middletown Area High School Seniors and four Good Citizenship Medals to area grade school students. A floral planting and a U.S. Flag were placed in front of the Monument on the grounds of Saint Peter’s Kierch, which contains the names of the area’s Revolutionary War Soldiers. The Chapter admitted four new members, one a Junior. The chapter also has several prospective new members.—Eliner G. Overeer

Mary Marion (Knoxville, IA) recently played an important part in building a memorial in the courthouse square to honor the memory of the creator of the Iowa flag, Dixie Cornell Gebhardt. Mrs. Gebhardt was a native of Knoxville and was the founding Regent of Mary Marion Chapter. She served as State Regent from 1914 to 1916. The memorial is a granite marker featuring a bas-relief bust of Mrs. Gebhardt on one side and a replica of the Iowa flag on the other, both with engraved inscriptions. On each side stands a tall flag pole, one displaying the Iowa flag and the other, the Stars and Stripes. Chapter Regent Pat Harding, in period costume, has recreated Dixie to promote the memorial at Pella’s Tulip Time, various Knoxville functions, and the Iowa State Fair.

More recently, the chapter float took first place in the parade during the Knoxville Nationals Sprint Car Races. The float featured a race track, complete with cars, and flags in keeping with the theme: “Knoxville, Home to Many Flags.” The DAR banner was prominent among them. On the float were two recipients of chapter honors: Bonnie Cook for Community Service and Valerie Van Zee, one of our Good Citizens. The prize of five hundred dollars was gratefully received by the chapter.

The chapter also assisted financially with the historical project of moving the old Busey Railroad Depot to the Marion County Park.

Mary Marion Chapter was honored during Governor Branstad’s farewell and thank you tour of the state, when members gave a short program on the Iowa flag and Dixie Cornell Gebhardt.—Jean Shively

James Billingsley (Richardson, TX) presented the NSDAR Conservation Medal to Dr. Harold Laughlin, Director Emeritus of the Heard Museum and Wildlife Sanctuary in McKinney, Texas.

Dr. Laughlin was hired in 1965 by Miss Bess Heard to create and establish the Museum and Sanctuary on 265 acres south of the city. It now serves 100,000 visitors and students each year. His zoological and ecological expertise and his love of nature particularly birds and animals transmitted to concern for conservation of natural resources. He has encouraged the planting of indigenous and native adaptive plants and saved many from urban development.

The chapter surprised one of our own at the Ancestral Luncheon, Miss Catherine Halford, who was presented the NSDAR Certificate of Award for Excellence in Community Service for over twenty years work with the Literacy and English as a Second Language and the Teaching of Citizenship at her Baptist church. Miss Halford provides the DAR Flag Codes and the DAR Manual for Citizenship for each of the students.

Programs this year included “Collections of a Pioneer Richardson Family,” “Women in the Revolution,” “Historic Homes—Crocket, Texas,” “Take Off Your Hats for the Flag,” and “Dallas, Zoo -2000.”

The American History Library Exhibit served the twofold purpose of illustrating the role of the DAR in local communities and of illustrating American History in its diversity through a time line from the early nineteenth century into the twentieth century decade by decade with dolls telling the story.—Norma R. Allen

ELIZABETH RAMSEY (Wheatland, WY) arranged the placing of a DAR marker by DAR member, Isabell Hill, assisted by the Elizabeth Ramsey Chapter members. The DAR insignia marker was placed on the gravestone of Britta D Snider Brown Sunday, September 6, 1998 at 11:00 a.m. in the Valley View Cemetery near Torrington, Wyoming.

Britta was a faithful DAR member, who was dedicated to the educational, historical and patriotic objectives of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Britta’s mother, Eliza Chandler Snider, was one of the founding members of the First Baptist Church of Torrington, Wyoming. Britta was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Connie Jones, granddaughter and DAR member from Wheatland, Wyoming, did the welcome and read the poem, I’m Safe with the Lord.

Keely and Kevin Cox, great grandchildren, and Pam Cox, granddaughter, from Cheyenne, Wyoming recited the poem, Down Memory Lane.

Tom Youngquist, a friend of the family, from Lyman, Nebraska, vocalist and guitarist, sang “Blessed Assurance” and “God Bless America.” His mother and grandmother were DAR members in Nebraska.

Sean Fredrick and Diane Marie Jones, great grandchildren and C.A.R. members from Wheatland passed out book markers made of dried flowers with a Bible verse on it and the programs. They also unveiled the marker. They are the 4th generation in a lineage of first daughters.

Ellen Marie Burnett, Chapter Regent, and Barbara Costopoulos, Vice Regent and Pro-Tem Chaplain, gave the DAR dedication and ritual.

Isabell Hill, daughter and DAR member from Lingle, Wyoming read the scripture.

Nancy Zimmerer, granddaughter and DAR member from Lingle, Wyoming presented a tribute to her grandmother telling how she taught people to know the Lord and to be patriotic.

Following the ceremony guests, DAR members and their families attended a luncheon at King’s Inn in Torrington, Wyoming.

Many happy memories will remain with those present at this touching ceremony. The Elizabeth Ramsey Chapter, NSDAR, was organized April 18, 1925.—Nancy Zimmerer

Mrs. Love is pictured in the back parlor of Rosalie, the Georgian-style mansion in Natchez, Mississippi built by Peter Little in the early 1820's and purchased by the Mississippi State Society DAR in 1938 as an historic preservation project. During Mrs. Love's term as State Regent 1986-1989, the antebellum garden was restored to the period of the home, replicas of the original double parlor rugs were purchased and Rosalie was designated a Registered National Historic Landmark.

Karen Bradley (Mrs. Larry Curtice)
Honorary State Regent of Missouri
Candidate for Vice President General

Missouri Daughters proudly accomplished many projects under Karen's dynamic leadership as State Regent. Among these were the establishment of a capital improvement fund for Roslyn Heights, establishment of a capital improvement fund for Groves Cottage at Tamasee, the hiring of an architect to render a long range plan for restoration of exterior of Roslyn Heights, and beginning fund raising for a $165,000 capital campaign for that restoration ($39,000 raised). Along with these achievements was an ambitious membership project that brought about an increase in members by application and reinstatement each year during her 1996-1998 term.

is pleased to offer
THE THIRD EDITION
ADVENTURERS OF PURSE AND PERSON VIRGINIA 1607—1624/5

GREEN HARDBACK COVER, GOLD IMPRINT—ILLUSTRATED—859 PAGES
Includes: 94 pages Index, double column, Acid Free Paper
MUSTERS OF THE INHABITANTS OF VIRGINIA 1624/1625

Contains over 130 families of settlers in Virginia prior to 1625 or of members of the Virginia Company of London whose descendants came to the Colony of Virginia, from well over one hundred of whom descent can be traced to the present. Twenty families not treated in previous editions are included. In each family all proved American descendants to the fourth generation have been identified, a total of nearly 3800 individuals about whom available vital statistics and biographical information are presented. In addition, the ancestry of those families whose origins in England have been identified is set forth briefly with reference to the appropriate sources establishing the ancestry for several generations. Over 7000 footnote citations provide the documentation upon which the descents and biographies are based.

The National Society, including DAR Magazine, has a new computer system: iMIS, as the new system is called, is an integrated Membership system to offer members the additional services they have requested over the years. Please bear with us as we struggle through the transition to this new system. If you received duplicate mailing of your Magazine issues or you fail to receive your copy, please notify the Magazine at once so that corrective action can be taken.

Honor Roll reports for advertising and subscriptions will be mailed to you as soon as they are available. Although the new system will bring you better reports, the initial transition is somewhat slow.

D.C. Daughter Honored

At a well attended luncheon sponsored by the District of Columbia C.A.R., Mrs. Eris T. Hand was recognized for her lifetime interest in the youth of America. For many years she has supported the local efforts of the Harriett Lothrop Society D.C.C.A.R. and currently she is serving as National Organizing Secretary N.S.C.A.R.

She also spends untold hours at headquarters assisting prospective members with their application papers. A real highlight of the past few years has been watching her granddaughter Beth grow up in C.A.R. Midge Hand is a great role model for us all.

After the ceremony some of the D.C.C.A.R. members gather around Mrs. Hand. Beth Buranich is on the back row, third from right.

D.C.C.A.R. State President Elizabeth Warner-Osborne presents the recognition plaque to Mrs. Hand.

We're the Daughters of the District of Columbia
Birthplace and home of the NSDAR
Mrs. Robert L. Hilton, State Regent

Dear Daughters:

Next month we will gather together in Washington, DC, for the 108th Continental Congress. It promises to be an exciting, fun and productive time for all. The DAR Magazine Office looks forward to welcoming you!

We invite you to join us for Breakfast on Thursday morning, April 22, from 8:00 a.m.-9:00 a.m. in the President General’s Assembly Room located on the Second Floor of the Administration Building. Please come and let us thank you personally for your enthusiastic support of the Magazine this past year. We also hope you will visit us in the Magazine Office during Congress and share your thoughts, ideas and suggestions as to how the Magazine can better serve our members.

Deep appreciation is expressed to states, chapters and individual members who submitted articles and advertising this year. We are also most grateful to our Magazine Milestones and to all those who have purchased the DAR Magazine Index.

A special “thank you” is extended to those who contributed to the DAR Magazine Endowment Fund this year. Your generosity helps to promote the National Society and to insure that we can continue to publish our fine periodical.

This has been a year of many successes and accomplishments. Let us continue to work together to make next year even better!

We look forward to seeing you next month!

Congratulations to the Johnny Appleseed Chapter, Attica, Ohio, winner of the March “Ad Excellence” Award!

Sincerely,

Presley M. Wagoner

Now Better Than Ever...
The Long-Term Care Plan for NSDAR Members

Now Includes
HOME HEALTH CARE
and
ADULT DAY CARE
Coverage

in Addition to Nursing Home Coverage

No one wants to think about the time that they will not be able to take care of themselves. Yet the startling fact is that an estimated 43% of Americans over age 65 will require nursing home care at some point in their lives. Whether you're looking ahead for coverage for yourself or for a family member, you will find a wide range of options available under this long term care insurance plan now available to NSDAR members, underwritten by General Electric Capital Assurance Company (in New York, GE Capital Life Assurance Company of New York).

ACT TODAY!

Since your acceptance in the Plan is based on your health when you apply, the better your health now, the better your chance of being accepted. A future health condition could make you ineligible at a time when you really need the protection.

Your rates are based on your age at time of application and will not increase because of your age or any changes to your health (however, GE Capital Assurance reserves the right to change rates based on class and state). You can save a substantial amount over your lifetime by taking out this coverage now at the lower rates for persons at your present age.

To receive complete information about this Long Term Care Insurance Plan for you or a loved one, complete and return the coupon below. A licensed GE Capital Assurance representative will contact you.
